

'Studio One,' Often Top Show, Slips on Last Try

By WILLIAM EWALD
United Press Correspondent
New York — It was back on Nov. 7, 1948, that "Studio One," a drama beamed out of Manhattan, made its debut on a network of eight stations.

From those small beginnings, grew a TV giant. In the ensuing years, it was "Studio One" that helped nurture such acting talent as Charlton Heston, James Dean, Grace Kelly and Eva Marie Saint, such directing talent as Franklin Schaffner, Yul Brynner and Sidney Lumet, such writers as Reginald Rose, Tad Mosel and David Shaw.

It was "Studio One" that tackled such chewy pieces as Gian-Carlo Menotti's "The Medium," Henry James, "The Ambassador," Hawthorne's "Scarlet Letter." It was "Studio One" that turned out a "Macbeth" and modern-dress versions of "Julius Caesar" and "Coriolanus." It was "Studio One" that can be credited with "Twelve Angry Men," "Dino," "Mr. Arcularis," "The Remarkable Incident at Carson Corners," all TV dramas of quality.

But time caught up with "Studio One" and in recent years, the excitement began to disappear from the show. For every decent hour, there were a half-dozen mediocre offerings. It began to look tired.

And so, late last year CBS-TV decided to move "Studio One" to Hollywood, to jazz up its bones with stars and give it more room to maneuver in the 4500 square feet of rehearsal halls and 12,000 square feet of sound stages in its West Coast TV castle.

Last night, CBS-TV unveiled "Studio One in Hollywood." The play was called "Brotherhood of the Bell" and it starred Cameron Mitchell, Joanne Dru, Tom Drake and Pat O'Brien.

Technically Perfect Job
The production was slick, glossy, polished. It was a professional job in the best Hollywood sense — it was as technically perfect as say, a Ted Williams swing, a Ray Robinson jab, a precision kick by the Rockettes.

And for the first half hour or so, it seemed to me that the play, a melodrama about a secret organization dedicated to the overthrow of democracy, had some substance. It was taut, crisp, exciting.

But something snapped somewhere along the way. The first sag certainly took place in a scene in which a group of newsmen scoffed at the revelation that such a secret terrorist organization could exist (with Hollywood type actors and actresses in the role of reporters).

And in its final collapse occurred in its closing moments — a frantic mish-mash of fist-throwing, gunwielding and good government agents coming out of the wall to clear up the mess. The nick-of-time solution was a little like the old, old Hollywood westerns now seen on the late, late, late show in which the cavalry rode to the rescue in the last reel.

Gavin Probably Won't Quit; Presses for Weapons Research

Washington — Lt. Gen. James M. Gavin said today there is still a "50-50 chance" he won't quit his job of leading the Army's fight to match Russia's missile might.

At the same time the outspoken three-star general stepped up his public attack in the Army's behalf—calling for money to increase weapons research and nearly double Army manpower to 28 divisions.

Gavin expressed his views in an interview after he was reported to have told Senate investigators Monday he decided to retire after being informed he was "no longer being considered for promotion . . . to a more responsible position."

Wants Gavin to Remain
Army Secretary Wilber M. Brucker issued a statement saying he wants Gavin to remain as chief of Army research and development. He said Gavin "has a brilliant future in the Army and is certainly four-star material."

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (Tex.) chairman of the Senate Preparedness subcommittee before which Gavin appeared, warned today against "even a hint of reprisal" against military men who oppose administration policies before Congress. He said Gavin's treatment "certainly will make others hesitant to speak frankly and candidly."

Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) a subcommittee member, said Congress must protect officers "who speak sincerely and openly." He urged Brucker to refuse to retire Gavin and give him "the promotion he deserves."

Adm. Rickover 'Worried'
Another officer, Read Adm. Hyman G. Rickover, told the inquiry that lagging research programs and a lack of sense of urgency among top officials have left him "very much worried that it is almost too late to match the achievements of the Soviet Union."

Rickover, assistant chief of the Navy's Bureau for Nuclear Propulsion and "father" of the atomic submarine program two years ago but was turned down by "Navy submarine officers."

In a related development, key congressmen forecast defeat for proposals to create a single military chief of staff. Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House Armed Services committee said if such a bill gets to his committee "it won't get out."

Chairman Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) of the parallel Senate committee also has opposed the idea. Adm. Arleigh Burke, chief of naval operations, said Monday such a play would "lay the foundation for disaster."

Gavin, while he did not call for a single chief, started official Washington in an appearance before Johnson's group last month by urging scrapping of the present joint chiefs setup in favor of a general staff or senior military officers.

Extension Classes Underway Here

Three college extension classes are being held in the Medford high school, a school spokesman said today.

First of the classes—School law (Ed. 419) started Monday, 7 to 9 p.m. in room 241 of Medford high school. Instructor is Dr. William A. Sampson.

Audio-visual aids (Ed. 435-G) is scheduled for Wednesday, 7 to 9:45 p.m. in room 226 of the Medford high school. L. E. Butler will teach.

Juvenile delinquency (Soc. 407-G) is planned for Tuesday, Jan. 14 7 to 9:45 p.m. in room 241 of the Medford high school. Instructor is Dr. Fred Trost.

Classes will be held for a 10-week period and may be taken for credit or non-credit, a spokesman explained. Three hours credit is given for each course.

Jury Selected For Trial of Girl

Redwood City, Calif. — Four women and eight men were tentatively seated in the jury box today to hear the trial of Suzanne Elaine Soule, 20-year-old Freeport, N.Y., girl accused of murdering her socialite roommate.

However, neither prosecution nor defense attorneys expected a jury to be chosen until late today, if then.

Miss Soule's trial opened Monday in the court of Superior Judge Frank B. Blum of San Mateo county.

Her heart-shaped face puffed slightly from a tearful night in jail, Miss Soule listened impassively while attorneys questioned the veniremen. Occasionally, she stared at the ceiling and blinked to keep back the tears.

Miss Soule is accused of bludgeoning and stabbing to death Catherine Marie (Kit) Elvins, 19-year-old daughter of a prominent Seattle physician last July 24.

Natural Gas Firm Formed at Dalles

The Dalles — Formation of the Northern Utility Company for the purpose of distributing natural gas to the Harvey Aluminum Company plant and the adjacent residential area here was announced Monday.

Officers include George A. Rhoten, president; Richard Sabin, secretary-treasurer; Sam Speerstra, vice president, and F. Keith Lindin, second vice president. All are from Salem.

General manager is Edward Chambers of The Dalles, a former official of the Harvey Aluminum company. An application for a certificate of necessity and convenience and a rate schedule have been filed in Salem with Howard Morgan, public utility commissioner, officials said.

Idaho Man Drowns While Ice Skating

Nampa, Idaho — The body of Gerald A. McKinzie, 38, Nampa, who was drowned in Lake Lowell near here Monday night while skating, was recovered early today.

THIRD MAN THEME
Dixon, Iowa — Dixon's third choice for mayor became mayor today. James Quigley, a 34-year-old write-in candidate, said he didn't particularly want the job "but somebody had to take it." A. J. Gibson, who won the election, declined the post and so did the runner-up, former mayor D. T. Danielson.

"Where did the Wilsons get that gorgeous new convertible?"

The answer is this. Mrs. Wilson keeps her family savings account with us. One of our friendly officers gave her a simple savings suggestion one day. "Every hundred miles you drive," he said, "put in another $5.00. When you get ready to turn the car in, you'll have the money you need to make up the trade-in difference."

The Hollywood Scene

By VERNON SCOTT
United Press Writer

Hollywood — Marlon Brando, embattled with gossip columnists for not revealing details of his marriage, will talk about almost anything else — including why he won't discuss his personal life. Question — why haven't you appeared on TV?

Answer — the medium is not entirely satisfactory. Budgets for TV films don't allow for carefulness in preparation. Live TV is hazardous because it lacks rehearsal time.

Q—Do you have a preference for leading ladies?
A—None.

Business Bored Him
Q—you formed a production company, Pennebaker, two years ago. What are your plans for producing movies?

A—My company co-produced "Sayonara," and we'll be making "Comanchero" at Paramount very soon. I don't like to talk business, it bores me.

Q—You're being mentioned as a strong contender for a second Oscar for "Sayonara." Do you ever perform with an Oscar in mind?

A—Naturally, an actor has such things in mind. But it's never the basic objective.

Q—Do you believe performers have as much right to privacy as other citizens?

Demands Privacy
A—It's not a matter of being entitled—it's an absolute requisite. The trouble is everyone's life in this country is public property. This fact is significant when you consider we have the highest crime rate in the world, the highest delinquency rate, the most alcoholics, that $2 billion worth of tranquilizers were sold last year, and that half the hospital beds in the U. S. are occupied by mental patients.

Anyone who objects to the intrusion of his private life is considered to be idiosyncratic, bizarre, uncooperative and dishonest.

But I can't win. Too many people are prying and conning me.

Declining Profits Predicted for 1958

Portland — The president of the First National Bank of Portland predicts that 1958 will be a year of "tougher competition and declining profits."

C. B. Stephenson gave that outlook Monday to the Chamber of Commerce.

The banker told his audience, however, not to be "disciples of gloom and doom." "Let's pull up our socks and go to work," he said. "Keep your thinking flexible."

Stephenson said that 1958 should be no worse than 1954 "which, as one merchant put it the other day, wasn't too bad."

Two Oregon Men Escape From Jail

Anacortes, Wash. — Two Oregon men charged with the burglary of an Anacortes dry cleaning establishment and escaping from the local jail Monday night.

The two, Jack Gibb, 18, and Wesley Davis, 30, both Portland, were arrested Friday night and charged with taking $400 from the Anacortes dry cleaning shop.

They also are wanted for questioning by Oregon authorities. Police said they escaped after making a key from an aluminum lamp casing.

RAIN LASHES TRANSVAAL
Johannesburg, South Africa — The worst rains in living memory have marooned many towns and villages in the northern Transvaal, reports reaching here said today.

Twenty-two and a half inches of rain have washed away hundreds of native huts since Thursday. Food supplies were reported low and rail lines were blocked by floods. No casualties were reported.

Starts Tomorrow 9:30 a.m.
