Chennault Advises Victims of Cancer Not To Abandon Hope

Editor's note: Retired Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault, who organized the famed Flying Tigers and fought the Japanese in China before Pearl Harbor, disclosed last month he is suffering from cancer. Chennault, now head of the Chinese airline, Civil Air Transport, will return to the U. S. Jan. 10, here for the first time the 67-year-old general tells his own story in his own words.

Taipeh, Formosa —(UP)— I wanted to bet the doctors two to one that I didn't have cancer.

It is a good thing that they didn't take me up on it, because I would have lost.

I don't know enough about cancer to be giving advice. And I don't go sounding off unless I know what I'm talking about.

But I will say that everyone who has cancer, or thinks they have it, should not give up hope. And, they should have regular medical examinations.

Dr. Alton Ochsner (of New Orleans, La.) whom I consider one of the foremost cancer specialists in the United States, advises against smoking cigarettes. In fact, he thinks it does a lot of harm.

Still Smoking Pipe

He told me to stop smoking cigarettes, and did not fully stop. I'm still smoking my pipe. He has seen me smoking it and hasn't said anything.

Personally, I haven't got the slightest idea if smoking brings on cancer. It may contribute to it, but as far as I know there's no conclusive proof.

"I've been smoking both cigarettes and a pipe for years and I thought I'd be the last one in the world to have cancer.

In the summer of 1956, my wife, Anna, myself and our two girls drove from Monroe, La., to Canada. It was a long, 6,500 mile trip and we took turns driving. I didn't feel too good on part of it.

When we returned to Monroe I had some stomach trouble and was coughing more than usual.

But I've had bronchitis for years and didn't pay too much attention to the coughing.

Cancer Spotted

I was in Washington on business in August, 1956, and dropped into Walter Reed Army Hospital for my annual physical check up.

The doctors, using an X-ray, found a small spot on the upper part of my left lung. I laughed when they said it might be malignant.

The doctors said they could not determine for certain unless they cut it out and examined it in a laboratory. But they insisted that if it was a malignant tumor, I wouln't live another year. They wanted to operate right away.

It was quite an operation. It lasted about three hours. Lt. Col. William Moncrief, the chief surgeon, slit me open all the way around the left side of my chest, under my arm, from front to back. He cut out the upper lobe of my left lung.

Five days later, while I was still stitched up, the results came back from the laboratory. It was a malignant tumor, all right.

The doctors said if there was no recurrence within 12 months, the chances were that I would be out in the clear. The weeks went by and I went regularly once a month for an examination.

In May of last year I began to feel uncomfortable. My coughing increased and I felt tired more easily, although I kept right on working.

The doctors said they couldn't find anything. So, Anna and I went off for a three-week trip to Europe.

Another Spot

When we returned at the end of the 12th month, the doctors said they still couldn't find anything to indicate a recurrence. But in the 13th month they located another small spot in my lung cavity.

The surgeons told me they could operate but it probably would do more harm than good.

Dr. Ochsner has been giving me shots of nitrogen mustard compound. I have been taking them intravenously.

He believes that he can arrest the growth of the cancer. They don't talk about curing cancer yet. But Dr. Ochsner told me, "General, we will keep you alive until a cure is discovered."

I plan to be around many more years.

Anna and I attended four conventions last year. I'm continuing my regular work, and in the past four weeks I will have flown more than 20,000 miles out to the Far East and back to the U. S.

I've lost 15 pounds since May of last year. I now weigh 155 pounds—just the same as I did when I came out to China in 1937.

Sometimes I wake up in the night choking from mucous. It might happen only twice a night, or as often as 12 times a night.

But I've been in a lot of tough situations before and have never quit yet. I certainly am not going to let this get me down. I may have cancer, but I am not going to sit around worrying about it.

Youthful Bandit Takes Money at Seattle Bank

Seattle —(UP)— A youthful bandit with a pock-marked face held up the Times Square branch of the Seattle Trust and Savings Bank about 12:25 p.m. Tuesday and escaped with a sum of money which the bank manager described as "not too much."

The robber, described as being between 17 and 24 years old, took the money from only one teller cage.

Salem (UP)—The State Agriculture Department has announced that Paul Knight, Ontario livestock brand inspector, has been trasferred to Portland.
