

American Prestige Faces Setback in Okinawa Election

Naha, Okinawa—American prestige in the Far East may suffer a setback if it rains on this U. S. fortress island Sunday — and it almost always rains at this time of year.

Bad weather would be good news for the tightly-disciplined supporters of Saichiro Kaneshi, the 49-year-old pro-Communist who is running against 65-year-old, pro-Western Tatsu Taira for mayor of Naha.

The two men are competing for the post left vacant when the city council deposed Majuro Senaga, the pro-Red who was elected mayor in 1955.

Senaga himself is not a candidate this time, but observers here say he is "maneuvering Kaneshi like a puppet."

Campaign Heated

The campaign has been heated, with "Sputnik" running as a candidate on both sides. Senaga has described his candidate as "a Sputnik rising higher and higher," while Taira has warned voters that they may suffer the same fate as Laika if they elect Kaneshi.

The weather may be the deciding factor.

"If it rains on Sunday we might just as well shut up shop—and it always rains around election time here," one Taira supporter said. "Senaga's got the discipline to get his voters out. Our side hasn't."

Taira, a local industrialist who at one time was on the "bad books" of the U. S. authorities here, is running as the candidate of the Socialist Masses party.

Kaneshi, a former newsman who has shifted sides in island politics often, is a fading big league ballplayer, became a "Senaga Independent" when the SMP turned down his bid for his nomination.

The U. S. administration of Okinawa is backing Taira in the race, and — despite his Socialist connections — he has been assured of support from most of the city's conservative groups.

A conservative candidate whose nomination might have split the non-Communist vote agreed to quit the race last month.

Although the post at stake is purely a local one, a number of international issues have influenced the campaign — most of them "hate America" charges launched by the Senaga forces.

When the Bank of the Ryukyus released $100,000 in frozen funds to island dwellers recently, Kaneshi charged that the United States was trying to influence the voting. He made the same charge when the United States gave Okinawa $3 million for reconstruction.

The refusal of customs to pass some 200,000 leaflets and posters printed for Senaga by Japan's extreme leftist, Shoyu unions, caused Kaneshi's supporters to scream "censorship."

Stock Market Drop Blamed on Message

New York — Stocks declined further today.

The drop, according to market experts, reflected President Eisenhower's address which was a disappointment to those who had anticipated a wild spending surge on an unbalanced budget. The President said his budget would be in balance and neglected to pinpoint the spending for various defense items.

Steel issues and metals again felt the brunt of the selling. Most of the aircraft-missile makers lost one to two points. Several soft spots developed in the oils which are facing price difficulties. Specials retreated.
