Man Arrested on Larceny Charges

Roger Walter Moreland, 30 North Front st., was arrested by Medford police Wednesday on charges of larceny from a building. He was charged with taking two suitcases valued at $13.50 from a local store.

Police said Moreland entered the side door of the F. W. Woolworth company, 39 North Central ave., took two suitcases from near the door and left. The door was left unlocked for employees arriving for work early, police said.

Moreland, who was arrested when found with the suitcases in his hotel room, is being held in the city jail.

Family Council

Mr. J. F.—I want to push Leon on.

Mrs. J. F.—There's no sense expecting big things of him.

Mr. J. F.—Our young boy is somewhat of a problem to us. Leon is 14 and is in the right grade in school for his age, but he is always at the very bottom of his class.

Leon does his homework every day, but I can see that his mind is not on it. He just daydreams. He realizes he is not as smart as some of the others, but he doesn't make the extra effort he should make to keep up with them.

I am sure he can do much better work and I try to push him on, telling him how important it is for him to get an education. These days a college education is everything and Leon's brother will soon be starting college. I want him to go, too, but my wife says it's no use trying.

Mrs. J. F.—I say we should just leave Leon alone as far as his schooling is concerned. He finds the work very hard and there's no sense making him feel worse than he does about it. He'll never be able to get into college in a million years. He told me the other day and he had tears in his eyes. Why should we torture him?

My husband broods about Leon all the time, but I tell him we should be grateful we have one smart son. There's no sense expecting big things of Leon. We should be glad if he stays out of trouble and is a healthy boy. He'll earn a living, even if it isn't in a fancy occupation. Everyone, including his teachers, likes Leon very much.

The Council: It is not a good idea to hold up an excessively high goal to an adolescent and if Leon is now at the bottom of the class, college does seem to be a too high goal. It certainly does seem wrong to torture this boy by aiming at something he feels he can't possibly achieve.

We disagree very much, however, with Mrs. J. F.'s idea that Leon should be just "left alone as far as his schooling is concerned."

We are sure that Leon is better in some subjects than others. He should be encouraged to develop these strong points. Mr. and Mrs. J. F. should enlist the aid of Leon's teachers to help him excel in a great deal for his personality and his potential mental ability.

Just because Leon may not be college material is no reason to believe he does not need help in planning his future. His parents should give a good deal of thought to this matter.

Mrs. J. F. seems to take the attitude that the main question involves is whether or not the parents should be willing to accept the ego blow of having a boy who is not too bright. The real question is how can the parents help Leon to live and work up to his fullest potentiality.

Vaginal Distresses Due to Trichomonas or Molds

Many women write, terribly distressed because of marked vaginal discharge or irritation or sensitivity. Some know that it is due to the Trichomonas which is a little single-celled parasite. In most cases, parasites don't cause much trouble, but in a few women, they produce much discharge and irritation. In many cases the infestation appears to die out by itself, and in others the woman gets relief by taking a vinegar douche, perhaps morning and evening (adding perhaps a tablespoonful of vinegar to a bag of warm water). In other cases, the woman gets well by inserting a suppository which contains a medicine that kills the parasites. The trouble is that the parasites can hide, perhaps in the neck of the womb or in some of the glands at the entrance of the vagina or of the urethra (tube leading into the bladder). In some cases they get into the urinary bladder, and then they must be gotten out of there and the vagina at the same time.

In many persistent cases the husband and wife are infesting each other back and forth. Then, obviously, there is no use treating the wife unless the husband is cured.

After taking large doses of a powerful antibiotic, some women used to get a distressing infection of the vagina with a mold that was hard to get rid of. Fortunately, I haven't seen such cases lately.

The National Epilepsy League

Many a troubled mother of an epileptic child, living in some small isolated community far from a big city, will write me asking where she can get expert help for her youngster. Her good home doctor may admit frankly that, like me, he has not had experience using the new powerful, but potentially dangerous, drugs for epilepsy. Usually I suggest that the mother get in touch with Mr. Gray, of the National Epilepsy League, 130 N. Wells st., Chicago, 6, Ill. He has a list

Weighing of Mayor Amuses Rotarians

Hartford, Conn. — Rotarians back from their recent European trip for the international convention were intrigued with the fact that in a small English town the mayor-elect is weighed before he takes office and when he leaves office.

If he has lost weight, it is assumed his administration was successful.
