Swan Island Paved Road Collapses

Portland — The only paved route to Swan island was blocked here Thursday afternoon when an approach to a viaduct over the Albina railroad yards collapsed. Traffic was expected to be restored over one lane of the approach early today. The approach dropped about three feet and a panel truck passing over the viaduct was trapped. It was pulled off without harm. Officials said a wooden bulkhead gave way, spilling fill material from under the road.

The Hollywood Scene

Hollywood — To cure Gisele Macenzie's show of the rating miseries her buddies from the old "Hit Parade" program are paying a call this Saturday night to boost the songbird's sagging Tendency.

Snooky Lanson and Russell Arms will appear with Gisele in their first reunion since the trio was pole-axed last June 8. Fourth member of the old musical gang, Dorothy Collins, is off on a personal appearance tour and unavailable.

Like the U. S. Cavalry in a "B" Western, Arms and Lanson aim to save Gisele from a sponsor stampede.

But inasmuch as they are baritones instead of saddle soldiers, Snooky (his real name is Roy) flew in from New York while Russell ambled across town from his new Bel-Air home.

Four of a Kind
They met at the Brown Derby to hash over old times before joining Gisele at rehearsal.

"Sure miss having a regular show to count on," said Snooky.

"Not me," Russ put in. "That regular paycheck was nice, but I like the freedom."

"Wish Dorothy was going to be with us," Snooky continued. "The four of us sure had good times when we were on the 'Parade.' Guess I miss those poker games more than anything else."

Since getting fired from the show both Lanson and Arms have played state and county fairs, nightclubs, a few TV guest shots and hotel dates. Snooky had been with the show seven years, and Russ fell five, when the axe fell.

While their careers haven't exactly boomed since they left the program, "Your Hit Parade" hasn't prospered either. Its rating is falling faster than a yo-yo with a broken string.

Rock 'N' Roll Leaves 'Em Cold
The boys have theories for the show's troubles.

"Rock and roll music is ruining the program," Russ ventured. "It comes on late at night, and adult audiences don't dig the likes of 'Jailhouse Rock.' And I can't blame 'em. They also cut the budget."

Lanson, nodding agreement, added, "The music is mainly to blame. It took all the fun out of the show. We didn't enjoy singing most of those songs."

Gisele, Snooky and Russ will spoof their old show on their clambake, singing a few songs individually and combining forces for Auld Lang Syne.

"Nothing would please us more than to see Gisele's show hit the top," Russ said. "She's a great gal, and I only hope we can be of some help in drawing a few more viewers."

"We'd never be able to become a foursome again," Snooky concluded. "I don't think the public would go for us again. But everyone seems interested in what's become of us. Maybe someday in the future we can do a one-shot show together. I'd bet it would have a good rating."

A badger, using all four feet and his mouth, can dig himself underground in a matter of seconds.

Forestry Board Reverses Policy

Salem — The State Forestry Board has reversed past policies to put the state into a position to receive matching funds for forest rehabilitation under provisions of the deferral soil bank program.

Available to Oregon will be $100,000 a year over the next 10 years for use in reforestation and rehabilitation of forest lands under jurisdiction of the board and the State Forestry Department.

Public hearings on classification of forest lands under the forest fee and yield tax law in nine counties also were set by the board.

They are: Clackamas county, Oregon City, 10 a.m. Feb. 3; Washington county, Hillsboro, 2 p.m. Feb. 3; Benton county, Corvallis, 10 a.m. Feb. 4; Polk county, Dallas, 2 p.m. Feb. 4; Yamhill county, McMinnville, 10 a.m. Feb. 5; Marion county, Salem, 2 p.m. Feb. 5; Lincoln county, Newport, 2 p.m. Feb. 6; Douglas county, Roseburg, 2 p.m. Feb. 7; and Jefferson county, Madras, 2 p.m. Feb. 11.

SIMPLE SEX CONFUSED

London — The authoritative medical journal, the Lancet, said today that science has confused the simple issue of deciding whether a human is a man or a woman. When trying to determine the sex of a person, the Lancet said, scientists now look for six things: genetic sex, gonadal sex, anatomical sex, hormonal sex, social sex and psychological sex. In most people all these "sexes" agree, the journal said, but there are some who have a mixture of each.

STALIN COMRADE DIES

Moscow — G. I. Petrovsky, a comrade of Lenin and Stalin in the October Revolution of 1917, died Wednesday after a long illness. The official Tass agency said Petrovsky will be buried with full honors outside the Kremlin Saturday. He joined the Communist Party in 1897 and was one of its oldest members.

Army Requests Relics Of Sheridan Career

Chicago — The U. S. Army is requesting relics of the 1880 period in U. S. history or which relate to the military career of Gen. Phil Sheridan for a post museum to be opened at Fort Sheridan. Objects such as uniforms, books, pictures, weapons and maps are among items sought for the museum. Persons wishing to donate such items should contact Fort Sheridan's special services museum director, Richard E. Duckett.
