Is That So? The Medical Roundup

by EUGENE BURNS
Ranger-Naturalist

Even the most casual afternoon's drive past any ranch in North America testifies dramatically to the tremendous improvement of our milk and beef stock. More has been accomplished—thanks in part to the many boys and girls farm clubs—to improve the stock in the past 20 years than in the preceding 200.

Once these methods for improvement, so well known by these future farmers club members, are adopted worldwide, they could easily triple the world's milk yield and double its beef yield, thereby helping feed the world's millions of undernourished people without the addition of a single acre of pastureland.

The process does not depend on breeding animals that will eat more food—but rather to breed stock which can make better use of the food they get.

The problem has been one of developing desirable milk- or meat-yielding traits. Man's first domesticated cow gave only enough milk to rear her calf (the use of cow's milk for humans is comparatively recent). Through careful selection some of today's cows give enough milk in a year to raise 20 calves.

In milk production this was merely a matter of selecting the best milk yielders and breeding them to become parents of succeeding generations of high milk yielders.

Artificial Insemination As any future farmer club member could tell you, one of the most important factors in achieving this end in North America has been artificial insemination. This is not quite as new a method as it might seem. Centuries ago, Arabs used it to breed better desert horses. But it has only been in the past 20 years or so that it has become standard practice in the U.S., Britain, Holland, Denmark and the USSR.

Storing semen has improved cattle breeding in yet another way. Heretofore it often took several years before the bull's side of the family could be assessed for milk production. By this time, his reproductive life might be ending, or he may even have died. And so, this related knowledge would be of little value.

But with the storing possibilities, it can be used for producing many more generations of calves once the milk-producing quality has been checked.

Great as the improvement has been in the past 20 years, greater results can be looked for in the years to come—and not alone in North America but throughout the world, to give milk and meat for millions. And not only for cattle, but also for man's other domestic animals such as horses, sheep, pigs and rabbits and chickens.

More Valuable Offspring This is a highly efficient method for increasing the world's supply of meat and milk—and as a result one good sire can produce anywhere from ten to 100 times as many valuable offspring, leaving behind him a progeny of several thousand improved offspring.

Another advantage. It means that it is not necessary now to keep an expensive bull on every farm. Better yet, that even a small herd-owner can avail himself of the finest sire to improve his stock. Besides, artificial insemination is perhaps 66 per cent effective as against 45 per cent with natural methods.

To make artificial insemination even more valuable, within the past five years it has been found that semen can be stored. Heretofore, it lost its vitality within a week but now by mixing it with glycol and freezing it, it will retain its life for months and even years. As a result, one bull may now become the father of as many as 100,000 calves.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain, Stops Itching as it Shrinks Hemorrhoids

New York, N. Y. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain—without surgery.

In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place. Most amazing of all—results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!"
