Neighbors Rally To Help Negro

Payette, Idaho (UP)—Residents of this southwest Idaho farming community rallied Saturday to the defense of Eddie (Willie) Alford, 51-year-old Negro laborer and their neighbor for the past 16 years in his fight to avoid return to Mississippi to face an old prison-break charge.

They not only backed him with encouraging words but with money. His friends hired an attorney to help him fight extradition.

Alford was arrested here a few weeks ago on a drunk charge. A check of his fingerprints revealed that he was wanted in Mississippi on a charge of escaping from prison, where he was serving a five-year sentence on a charge of stealing $240 from a Mississippi farmer in 1939. He had served two years of his sentence when he broke out. He refused to waive extradition when arraigned on a fugitive warrant from Mississippi.

Alford claims that he did not steal the money in Mississippi. "I wouldn't have run away if I did," he said. "But since I didn't steal it, I figured I didn't owe the state of Mississippi anything."

Government Back To Red Ink Use

Washington (UP)—The federal government has returned to red-ink spending.

The expected budget surplus for the current fiscal year has been turned into a deficit by a billion-dollar boost in spending in the wake of Russia's Sputniks and a billion-dollar drop in tax revenues caused by the business slump.

President Eisenhower made the startling disclosure today in his budget message to Congress.

Submitting a precariously balanced budget for the new fiscal year starting July 1, the President said he can't balance the budget for the current fiscal year despite all previous hopes.

He said federal spending will exceed revenues by $400 million in the year ending June 30. Only three months ago the administration forecast a $1,500,000,000 surplus. A year ago when the current year's budget was submitted to Congress the President foresaw a $1,700,000,000 surplus.
