

New England Gets Snow, Sleet, Rain; Warnings Issued

By UNITED PRESS
Snow, sleet and rain moved into New England today, while cold Arctic air crossed the Canadian border causing temperatures to drop rapidly as far south as the Central Plains. The U. S. Weather bureau issued livestock warnings in Northwestern Kansas where blowing snow and frigid temperatures were expected to accompany the icy blast.

Rain In Virginia.
Warmer weather accompanied a broad area of precipitation which covered the Southeast, dumping almost an inch of rain at Roanoke, Va., during the night and close to an inch-and-a-half at Charleston, S. C.

Although rain was expected to stop in the Southeast today, rainy skies were seen over the Mid-Atlantic states, and, farther north, changing into sleet and snow as the precipitation area came in contact with sub-freezing temperatures.

Weathermen warned of possible hazardous driving conditions today in parts of Pennsylvania and southern New York.
Lebanon, N. H., reported one of the coldest temperatures in the nation at midnight, two below zero. The chilling air which spread over the Northern Plains caused temperatures to drop an average of 20 degrees. It was two degrees above zero at Minot, N. D., at midnight.

Northwest Gets Rain
Scattered snow flurries occurred in advance of the cold air movement and in the Central and Southern Rockies, while somewhat cooler temperatures prevailed from the Rockies to the Pacific coast. Light rainfall amounts were common in the Far Northwest. Today's forecast showed snow flurries in the Upper Great Lakes and much colder temperatures in the Central Plains and the Upper Mississippi valley. Scattered showers were seen in generally cloudy skies east of the continental divide, light rain in the Pacific Northwest, and generally fair weather elsewhere.

Furniture Company Has Anniversary
Weeks and Orr furniture store, 114 West Main st., Medford, this week is celebrating its 66th anniversary. The store started in 1892 on Front st. and featured furniture manufactured at its small plant in Phoenix. Since 1900 the local firm has been located at its present site.

Although the furniture store showed steady growth through the years a big change was made when the present modern building was completed in 1953. The present store is considered the largest of its kind in southern Oregon. It has 23,000 square feet of floor space devoted to displays. In addition, it has 14,000 square feet of storage space in another location.

Present manager is Eugene Orr who joined the staff in 1932 and has been active in its organization except for a period in the armed forces during World War II. Certain members of the Pirate Log staff are now working on class pictures. The pictures are being arranged differently this year. Each individual class will have its own special arrangement. For example, the junior class pictures might be arranged in the shape of a "J" while the sophomore pictures might be arranged in rows.

Phoenix High School

Edited by Mary Ellen Mitchell and Jean Floyd
Semester tests will be given to the students of PHS Wednesday, Jan. 13. All students with a "B" average and with no grade lower than a "B" in citizenship will be exempt.

Teens Against Polio Drive
at PHS will get underway Jan. 13. The drive will be sponsored by the Phoenix chapter of FTA. An inter-class contest is to be held, Jan. 13-17, to determine which class can raise the most money. Results of this contest will be indicated on a thermometer in the hall. Collections will be taken each day in the English classes.

According to Mr. E. R. James, superintendent, a new flag has been ordered to replace the old one at Phoenix high school. This flag will fly on the flag pole between the main building and the gym. The flag twirlers put on their first performance at the Phoenix-Illinois Valley basketball game, Friday, Jan. 10. A routine made up by the twirlers was done to the record "Raunchy." The girls who participated were Nancy Stewart, Nedra Harris, Sharice Skipworth, Sharon Miller, Virginia Martin, Frances Stout and Bonnie Mullineaux.

Their uniforms are short, blue, felt skirts with straps and a white taffeta blouse. The flags are made of white satin. Blue and White day was observed by the students of PHS Friday, Jan. 10. Every student was to wear blue and white school colors. Those who were members of the Pep club wore their white V-neck sweaters and blue pleated skirts. This is the second blue and white day conducted at PHS this year.

Would-Be Robber Of Crosby Receipts Lauds His Captor

Monterey, Calif. — A retired Army hero said today the deputy sheriff who captured him while he was trying to rob the receipts of the Bing Crosby golf tournament is a "perfect gentleman."

"A less worthy man and I would have had the money," said Lt. Col. Melvin Russell Blair (USA-ret), 42, who holds decorations for gallantry in World War II and the Korean war. Blair was arraigned on charges of assault with a deadly weapon, armed robbery and burglary. He was to appear in Municipal Court here to have a date set for a preliminary hearing.

Blair drank three pints of whiskey late Sunday night. He forced Chester Gillette, treasurer of Del Monte Properties, and Frank Norton, an auditor, into the office and ordered Martin to drop his pistol. Martin obeyed.

"Martin backed up like a boxer on his toes, sort of caving the situation," Blair said. "I knew I had a worthy adversary. If the Army hadn't done anything else, it has taught me to know people. I saw I had to tie him up right away."

Blair ordered the three men to lie down on the floor. Then Martin decided to feign a heart attack. He began groaning and thrashing around. "He was rolling, drooling and his tongue was hanging out," Blair said. "I'd read enough to know about heart attacks. I had laid down the gun to tie him up, and when I leaned over to pick up the gun again, he grabbed me."

Gun Goes Off
During the furious struggle that ensued, Blair's gun went off, but the bullet lodged in the wall. Gillette and Norton piled on Blair after Martin finally disarmed the gunman and nailed him to the floor. Blair said he had thought there would be $250,000 in receipts. He said he decided on the holdup because "it would be like taking candy away from a baby."

Blair said he retired from the Army in 1954 after 20 years of service. Army records showed he has received two Distinguished Services crosses, the Silver Star, the Bronze Star with two oak leaf clusters, and three battle stars.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

FROM SCRANTON, PA., comes the story of a chef named Napoleon whose roasts and sauces were famous for miles around. The president of a nearby university borrowed him one day to cook an important dinner, and Napoleon proudly set forth to fill the engagement, his trusty carving knives wrapped in a piece of old newspaper.

He just did catch his bus, and breathing heavily, instructed the driver, "Step on the gas, mister. The president is waiting for me." The driver looked warily at the carving knives, nodded, "You're the boss," and drove him straight to a lunatic asylum.

Thinking this must be the university, the cook unwrapped his knives and announced to the guard at the gate, "I'm Napoleon Knears-the party?" Next thing Napoleon knew he was in a padded cell.

University officials—plus the hotel manager—rescued Napoleon some eight hours later.

$83 Million Given Programs by Ford Foundation in '57

New York — The Ford Foundation made new grants and appropriations totaling $83 million for education and other programs of national importance during the last fiscal year, according to the 1957 annual report. The report covers the period from Oct. 1, 1956, to Sept. 30, 1957. Actions during 1957 had brought to more than $1 billion the Foundation's grants and appropriations since it was established in 1936.

The largest single grant was $24.5 million to expand nationally the Woodrow Wilson fellowship program to combat the shortage of college teachers. Henry T. Heald, completing his first year as president of the Foundation, said in the report that "the cornerstone of the Foundation's philosophy and program is the belief that through education society can realize its fullest potential for material abundance, intellectual enlightenment, and moral growth."

Jayne Mansfield's Wish for Quiet Wedding Foiled

Palos Verdes Estates, Calif. —Blonde Jayne Mansfield, a vision of pink in a form-fitting wedding dress, Monday night got her man but not her wish for a quiet, solemn wedding ceremony without "fuss and publicity."

Fans and friends looked on as the bosomy 24-year-old actress and Mickey Hargitay, 29-year-old former Mr. Universe, were wed in the glass-walled modernistic Wayfarer's Chapel of the Church of New Jerusalem. Thousands Jam Area

Thousands of curious, including chanting teen-agers in blue jeans, jammed the area, craning their necks to see through and around the shrubbery which partly hid the ceremony inside the chapel. Traffic was blocked a mile and a half along the highway below the church. Floodlights lighted the scene and red flares lined the road. The whole atmosphere was one of a Hollywood premiere.

About 100 personal friends jammed the tiny church. "Big names" of Hollywood were invited but mostly the guests wardrobe mistresses and news-were hairdressers, technicians, men—persons the blonde film star met in her work in pictures. Takes Bride In Arms Jayne's mother, Mrs. Harry L. Peers, Dallas, Tex., was matron of honor, Ross Christena, Indianapolis business-man, was best man, and Miss Mansfield's stepfather, Harry Peers, gave the bride away. Hargitay took his bride in his arms after the final "I do" and embraced her firmly and for a long time. They turned and walked back to the steps of the church.
