

How To Keep Teachers Is Group Discussion Topic

Gold Hill—"How can we keep our teachers," was the topic for an informal group discussion following a business meeting of Gold Hill Parent-Teacher association January 9 in Hanby school gymnasium. The invocation was given by Dean Roberts, seventh grade teacher at Hanby.

Mrs. Floyd Taylor, president of the unit, presided.

Two piano solos and several vocal selections were given by the "Singers choir," fourth and fifth grade pupils directed by Mrs. Norman Gail. Mrs. Walter Doherty accompanied the group. Soloists for the choral group were Crystal Litton and Sybil Dwer, introduced by Richie Herrington. He also presented Charlotte Vollmert and Charmaine Doherty, who played piano solos.

Mrs. Melvin Johnson, ways and means chairman, stated that $65 was cleared on the PTA quilt project. Mrs. Edsel White announced that Miss Marie Johnson's third grade room won the room count.

Norman Gail, chairman of District 6-C opened the informative discussion, arranged by Mrs. Doherty, program chairman. He said the primary problem in Gold Hill is the lack of available homes for teachers who want to reside in the community. Several teachers, who do live in the community, agreed it is an important factor.

The home, the church and the community all play an important role in making a teacher want to remain in the school, and are as essential as the economic factor, was the general decision of the group.

The overall opinion voiced by the parents is that cooperation with teachers should begin at home, before a youngster becomes school age, because in order to be good citizens in school, a child needs discipline and guidance in the early years of his life, and this is the parents' responsibility. After a youngster starts to school, parents agreed that it is important he be taught at home to understand and respect his teacher's problems. Also it is the responsibility of the community to keep superior teachers and maintain suitable economic standards for them, along with providing the best of school facilities.

Dean Roberts, Mrs. Von Buskirk, Mrs. Barbara Charles, Gilbert Mack, Mrs. Barbara Steele, Miss Marie Johnson, Mrs. Mildred Black and Mrs. Wilda Franks, all teachers at the school spoke to the group. They said that Gold Hill residents should be complimented for the interest and excellent support they have given the school and for the congenial attitude among the parents.

Refreshments were served in the school cafeteria by fifth grade room - mothers, Mrs. Delos Walker and Mrs. Dale Clements, who were assisted by Mrs. Arthur Boye, Mrs. Norman Gail, and Mrs. Ted Schenemann.

A "Turban" is essentially a scarf folded round the head. The English name derives from turband, turlibant or tulipant, all variations of the flower tulip, suggested by the design of the folds.

Dress up a basic black dress with a fur-trimmed chiffon scarf. Wear the scarf with the fur as a collar and the chiffon tied in back as a shrug or kerchief.

Store potatoes where it is cool (40-50 degrees) and dark and cover with cloth or paper. Light causes green spots.
