Women Arrive By Plane

By MRS. CLYDE KELL
Gold Hill — Mr. and Mrs. Gervas Southall of 683 Fifth ave., Gold Hill, were on hand at Medford airport Saturday, Jan. 11, to meet Southall's two sisters, Mrs. Rose Southall and Mrs. F. A. Lankford, who arrived by plane from Shenandoah, Va. It had been 20 years since Mr. and Mrs. Southall had seen Mrs. Lankford.

The women were house guests of the Southalls while here and left Saturday, Jan. 18, for San Diego, Calif., where they will visit another brother. From San Diego Mrs. Southall and Mrs. Lankford will go to Beverly Hills to spend two months.

Mrs. W. S. Bower left Wednesday, Jan. 15, for Oregon City to attend the funeral of her brother, George Califf, who died Monday. Mrs. Bower will go on to Hubbard, where she will visit a sister, Mrs. Ruth Eberly, for ten days before returning to Gold Hill.

Friends of Mrs. Fannie Kies report that she is improving after receiving a broken shoulder which caused her to be hospitalized.

A surprise party was given for Mrs. Iva Lentz in her new home on the banks of the Rogue river Monday, Jan. 13, in honor of her 73 birthday.

Present for the occasion were her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Davis and son, Larry, of Central Point, Mrs. Clarence Huntley and daughter, Kay, and Mrs. Helen Shoemaker, all of Gold Hill. A decorated cake was made for the occasion by Davis.

Insanity in Seeking 'Franking' Right Author Disclaims

By ELDON BARRETT

Seattle — John Patric, a bushy faced non-conformist from Frying Pan Creek, Ore., told a federal court judge Thursday that he was not "crazy."

Furthermore, the bearded author-lecturer said, the federal government "has to prove I'm nuts before they can give me a psychiatric examination." He cited several opinions from other courts in an effort to prove his case, in which he, himself, is serving as his own counsel.

Patric appeared before Judge William Lindberg. The hearing is to determine whether or not he should be examined by a psychiatrist in connection with a charge of using the "frank" to avoid paying postage. A frank is used by congressmen, etc., in lieu of postage.

Says He's A "Crusader"

The 55-year-old "yankee hobo" was ordered to appear next Thursday after he had pleaded that his actions were entirely sane. At that time he hopes to prove that he is "merely a crusader against exorbitant use of the United States mail."

NEWLY APPOINTED — Lt. Gen. Arthur G. Trudeau, newly appointed Army research and development chief, said at a Tokyo news conference that he would defend the Army budget "the best I can." The 55-year-old former Army Intelligence Chief replaces Lt. Gen. James M. Gavin.

Patric, who is a candidate for mayor of Snohomish, Wash., told a United Press reporter that he "robbed" the waste baskets in Snohomish in an effort to prove his point.

"When I found a piece of mail that had been franked by one of our esteemed members of congress I sent it back using my own name in place of a stamp just like they do," he said.

"If they want to send me to jail for this, I'll go," he said, "because I'm trying to prove a point."

Claims Same Rights

Before Judge Lindberg, Patric was very calm and businesslike. After the judge indicated that he planned to continue the case, Patric asked that it be put off until next Thursday so that he could go down to Oregon and look over his 160 acres of timberland near Florence.

Patric contended that franking privileges were not made to take advantage of. He said that he had attempted to prove this point by sending such things as fish heads and even a dead robin through the mails.

"They don't like it but I've got as much right to do these things as they have to send me all kinds of propaganda," he argued.

He said that he had been arguing with the government franking privileges for 25 years.

Patric, who visited in Medford briefly last month, is a former newspaper and magazine writer and photographer, and is author of several books, including "Yankee Hobo in the Orient," and was co-author of "Repairman Will Get You if You Don't Watch Out," a book expanded from a Reader's Digest article.

Applications Being Taken for CS Work
