Frances D. — Mother shouldn't have to take guff.

Dolly M.—Why don't they treat an older person with respect?

Frances D.—My mother is a widow in her late 50s. Not having worked for some 30 years, she recently took a job in a neighborhood shop.

I hated to see her go to work, but Mother says she is better off working. One day, however, I came into the shop and Mother looked as though she was passing out on her feet. Just the same, her employer told her to hurry up and do something she had neglected. Mother complains that he treats her like that all the time.

Mother can get by without this salary, so I don't see why she should take that kind of guff from anyone.

Dolly M.—Frances makes me feel like a real old woman when she tells me how awful it is that I should have to work so hard. The work is hard, true, but I can take it. If I didn't work hard I'd brood around the house.

The work isn't what I care about anyway. It's the disrespect. Can't people realize that they shouldn't just make demands on an older person—send her running this way and that and never a please or thank you? Young women come in and demand service in the program. Each home room will be striving for a 100 per cent student participation.

New Aga Khan Has Lot of Territory; Official Installation Due Jan. 23

Karachi, Pakistan—As spiritual leader of the 20 million-strong Moslem Ismaili sect, the new Aga Khan has a lot of territory to cover.

The new Aga's faithful followers range from Nairobi in Africa to Chitral near the Russo-Chinese border, and from Singapore to Buenos Aires.

Prince Karim, a 21-year-old Harvard undergraduate, will be officially installed in Karachi as Aga Khan IV next Thursday, Jan. 23, although he assumed the title in a token ceremony last summer.

As such, he is regarded by the Ismailis, a Moslem sect particularly strong in Africa, India and Pakistan, as the 49th lineal descendant of Hazrat Ali, the son-in-law of the prophet Mohammed.

Ismailis from such widely diverse places as Argentina and Goa are expected to attend the lavish ceremony.

Many Will Attend They will be joined by their fellow believers from Pakistan, Iran, Iraq, Bahrain, Kuwait, Malaya, Singapore, Ceylon, India, Burma, Lebanon, Syria, England, France, Belgium, Africa and probably Brazil.

So big is the expected turnout that the committee making the arrangements is building a camp to accommodate 25,000 persons who will be unable to find hotel space.

Although the new Aga possesses the same following, it is doubtful if he will be able to capture the headlines and fill the wide footsteps of his globe-trotting grandfather.

He was the Aga Khan for 70 of his 78 years, and before his death last summer, he was a successful diplomat, a past president of the League of Nations, a businessman and a multi-millionaire breeder and racer of thoroughbred horses.

The late Aga spoke English, French, Arabic and Persian. He helped dissuade the Moslems throughout the world from joining Turkey in a holy war against the British in 1914. He traveled around the world, was a friend of the British royalty and married a former Miss France.

HOW TO DEAL WITH YOUR TENSIONS

The quest for peace of mind—or for good mental health, which is another name for it—is universal. We have to work to achieve it. Following is one of a few simple, ready-to-hand actions which may help you.

ESCAPE FOR A WHILE

Sometimes, when things go wrong, it helps to escape from the painful problem for a while: to lose yourself in a movie or a book or a game, or a brief trip for a change of scene. Making yourself "stand there and suffer" is a form of self-punishment, not a way to solve a problem. It is perfectly realistic
