BASKETBALL SATURDAY COLLEGE GAMES

Table listing various college basketball games including Cornell, Syracuse, Boston College, etc.

Medford Has Lead Until the closing quarter Medford had led much of the way. The Tornado at a stage of the third chukker appeared on its way to a convincing triumph. Two right side push shots from an angle by Don Peek and a jump pusher by Bibbee Lane opened up an eight point bulge for Medford at 31 to 23. But Jack Tobiasson dunked a rebounder and Leo Daniels hit from the side and Ashland went into the concluding eight minutes lagging only 27 to 31.

Scott Peterson hit a long jumper for Ashland as the final panel began. Tobiasson got a gift toss. Then he put in a rebound fielder and was fouled by Lowell Dean. He made the free counter and Ashland was on top 33 to 31. Tom Hamlin pumped in two foul throws for Medford to tie the fracas. Dean fouled Albert Hartwell and became the first of three Medfordites to leave the contest for too many personals. Hartwell made good on two free tries with 4 1/2 minutes to play for a 35 to 33 Ashland edge but Jerry Anderson came back with a jumper for Medford to deadlock the game again.

Hartwell swished three of four free chances on two infractions tooted against Anderson and the Grizzlies held 38 to 35 margin with 2 minutes 19 seconds left on the clock. Anderson cut it to 38 to go but Peterson missed the shot.

Goal Nullified — Peek fouled out with 1:45 to go but Peterson missed the shot. He was awarded. With 1:33 left Lane got a free try on Hartwell's personal but the heave was short of the hoop and Ashland got the ball out of bounds. Anderson swiped the ball in midcourt and boomed in for a shot. He missed and Hamlin, rebounding, put the ball through the net. The goal was nullified because a foul had been blown on Peterson against Anderson on the play. Jerry's free attempt, too, fell short of the hoop.

MEDFORD TRIBUNE SPORTS

Bruins, Bears Reign In Coast Conference

By GENE BRYANT United Press Sports Writer California and UCLA reigned supreme in the Pacific Coast conference basketball race today but a little man from Idaho and a bigger one from Seattle shared the spotlight as possibly the two best players on the coast this season.

The remarkable Elgin Baylor—at 6-7, only a medium-sized big man—dumped in 32 points Sunday afternoon to lead Seattle university to a 90-69 victory over Gonzaga at Spokane.

Baylor — averaging 30.7 points per game — will lead the Chieftains against Gonzaga and 7-3 Jean Lefebvre again tonight.

The little man—University of Idaho's Gary Simmons—has not been as spectacular as Baylor but still managed to score 50 points in two games with Washington State over the week end.

In the PCC title chase, there is every indication today that a real dog fight is in the making. Five teams are still in the running. Cal and UCLA are tied for the top spot with 5-1 records, followed by Idaho, 4-2, Oregon State 2-1, and Southern California 4-3.

Oregon State's Beavers—in the driver's seat until Saturday's 61-51 upset loss to the Bears—now find themselves well below the Bears and Bruins percentage-wise. The Staters will try to regain their winning form when they take on Stanford at Palo Alto tonight in the only PCC tile on dock.

Southern California also finds itself no longer in the strong position it held a week ago. The Trojans dropped two contests to the Bruins over the week end.

Minnesota battled back from a half-time deficit to beat Detroit, 118-111, and Syracuse downed the New York Knicks, 112-108.

Hedrick Winner In Mat Tussle
