KKK Wizard, Follower Face Charges of Riot

Lumberton, N. C. — A Klu Klux Klan wizard and a follower who took part in a Klan rally that was routed by Indian gunfire face trial on charges of inciting a riot. Wizard James W. Cole, a part-time minister of Marion, S. C., and James Garland Martin, Draper, N. C., were indicted by a Robeson County Grand Jury Monday. They were accused of sparking the riot that occurred Saturday night at Maxton, N. C., when Klansmen gathered to burn a cross in an effort to discourage mingling of Indians and Whites. The Indians broke up the meeting with gunfire.

Asked To Post Bond

Sheriff Malcolm McLeod said he had asked Cole by telephone to appear here today to post bond of $1,000. He said Cole planned to confer first with a lawyer, but he expected Cole to show up. Cole said it was the Indians, not he, who violated the law, and he threatened to file suit against McLeod on charges of failing to protect the Klansmen's "constitutional rights."

Civil War Threatened Over Guatemala Election

Guatemala City — Supporters of rightist Gen. Miguel Ydigoras Fuentes, who won Sunday's presidential election, warned today that if their man is not inaugurated it will mean civil war. Ydigoras won the election by a margin of more than 40,000 votes, but because he did not poll a clear majority of the total vote, the final decision rests with a congress dominated by supporters of the government candidate, Jose L. Cruz Salazar.

Civil War Threatened Over Guatemala Election

able," said leaders of Ydigoras' PRN party. "The October street riots (which forced cancellation of that month's election) are nothing to what will happen if Ydigoras is de-frauded again." Ydigoras himself made no threats, saying only that "it is up to the people who voted for me" to choose a course of action. On the basis of nearly complete returns, the choice congress will have to make lies between Ydigoras and leftist candidate Mario Mendez Montenegro, who nosed Cruz out of second place.
