Magazine Article Tells Life Story Of Billy Graham

Billy Graham's life story is told in a two-part series that begins in the February issue of Holiday magazine.

How the famed evangelist himself was converted at a revival meeting at the age of sixteen and later preached his first sermon to a group of prison inmates is revealed in the article, written by Noel Houston.

Graham's climb to fame began during his crusade in Los Angeles in 1949 after the Hearst papers gave him his first wide publicity, Houston says.

By 1954 his fame had spread abroad and British religious leaders invited him to come over. Though the press there greeted the idea with skepticism, Graham later won enthusiastic acclaim with his simple message of salvation.

He later preached to millions on the Continent.
