Society Donates Books on Roses To Local Library

Five books on roses, their history and culture, donated by the Medford Rose Society, have been added to the Medford Public Library.

The "Encyclopedia of Roses and Rose Culture," edited by Harcourt P. Champneys and Carl Withner, is an all-inclusive handbook for rose growers—amateur and advanced—with special features that include a month-by-month schedule for rose care, comprehensive lists of hundreds of varieties, and a complete glossary of modern roses.

"The Guide to Roses," by Bertram Park, vice-president of the British National Rose society and editor of "The Rose Annual" gives complete descriptions of over 1,350 varieties, with many illustrations in color. There are chapters on the history of the rose, its cultivation and exhibition, and its use in medicine. Richard Thomson and Helen Van Pelt Wilson, two gardeners who grow roses for pleasure, have written "Roses for Pleasure," a book filled with facts and enthusiasm about the world's most popular flower. Mrs. Wilson is also the author of "Climbing Roses," another book donated by the society.

In "The Plant Doctor," by Cynthia Westcott, detailed and definite instructions are given the flower growers for combating all of the common garden enemies. This book is on the required reading list for the flower show schools of the National Council of State Garden clubs.

The library is still awaiting delivery on a sixth book donation, "Old Shrub Roses," by Thomas. Mrs. Carl Norris is chairman of the society's book selection committee.
