

Textile Expands, Contracts If Wearer Changes Weight

By GAY PAULEY
United Press Correspondent
New York — Around Manhattan: Adding on pounds usually means letting out the seams. But no longer, if the prediction of Charles Weiner, a textile official, comes true.

Weiner said that dresses which will expand, or contract, with the changes in weight are in the test stage and may be available before the end of the year.

Weiner is merchandise manager for a Philadelphia company, Textured Yarn, which makes a synthetic called Ty-cora. Made into dresses which look like a lightweight wool jersey, the yarns are heat set so that the contours remain, even though the figure underneath has shifted. Yarn elasticity is built in.

A company stylist, Alina Triner, is one of the guinea pigs for the test dresses. "I'm perfect because my weight is always changing," she said. "In the last two months I've gone from a size 8 to a size 10 ... from 114 pounds to 125."

The dress expanded with her, she said. Now she's anxious to find how it will contract.

Said Miss Triner: "I've gone on a diet."

Just about everybody who is anybody in New York society and the entertainment world turned out for this year's "March of Dimes" fashion show in the Waldorf Astoria hotel ballroom. Models for the event, sponsored by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, included Shirley Booth, Dody Goodman, Julie Harris, Doretta Morrow, Teresa Wright and Thelma Ritter.

But it was the finale that left a lot of the guests breathless.

A blonde beauty, dressed in a form-clinging champagne colored dinner dress, appeared on stage, escorting Lindy and Sandy Solomon, six-year-old twins of Warner Robins, Ga., who are this year's polio fund poster children.

Almost to a man, and woman, some 2,000 guests gasped, and then stood up for a better look. Peter Ustinov, the author and actor who was emcee for the finale, delivered the superfluous line of the day. "This," he said, "is Marilyn Monroe."

Hospital School To Receive Fund From Group Here

A report of a recent state board meeting was given at the January meeting of Alpha Lambda chapter, Epsilon Sigma Alpha International sorority.

Mrs. Lyman Smith reported on the board meeting, held in Portland. Mrs. Smith is president of the Southern Oregon District council, and represented the Ashland, Crescent City, Grants Pass and Medford chapters that comprise the council.

Alpha Lambda chapter will send over $200 to the Children's Hospital school, Eugene. The school is the state-wide philanthropic project of Oregon ESA chapters. February of each year is "donation month," and individual chapters contribute to the school proceeds from various money-making projects held during the preceding year.

The door-to-door sale of Brown and Haley Dollar mints by chapter members last fall made it possible for Alpha Lambda to send the largest donation in chapter history.

The annual mailing of "Easter Seals" for Jackson county and the sale of "Easter Lilies," in conjunction with the Oregon Society for Crippled Children and Adults, Inc., are among the future activities of the chapter.

Mrs. Willie Fischer presented the Educational program for the evening. Her topic was "Table Manners."

January 28 six members of Alpha Lambda attended a meeting of Alpha Kappa chapter, Ashland. The members were Mrs. Jackie Adams, Mrs. Robert Klumph, Mrs. Tom Makris, Mrs. Howard Phillips, Mrs. Robert Shangle and Mrs. Lyman Smith.

Mrs. Vernon Rush, Alpha Kappa member, attended the state board meeting in the capacity of a workshop chairman for the April state convention. Mrs. Rush and Mrs. Smith gave a report on the meeting to the Ashland chapter.

New Mums For 1958 Announced

The first All-American chrysanthemum selections have been announced by the selections committee, headed by Carl O. Sjulin, president, Hamburg, Iowa. A team of 17 judges selected the four winning varieties after three years of scoring and rating new seedling varieties from all over America, the committee states.

The four winners are Showpiece, a royal rose-colored decorative chrysanthemum, Emperor, crown gold decorative, Burning Bronze and Ruby King.

Showpiece is described as a giant garden variety which produces massive four and five-inch blossoms with long, graceful petals faintly incurving at the center. The color is described as a rich, sparkling rose with silvery mist high lights on petal reverses and centers. The flowers are produced on strong two to two and one-half foot stems by late September.

Burning Bronze is said to be a vigorous two and one-half foot bush producing ample two and one-half inch blossoms of mahogany bronze over a lively scarlet base.

Emperor passes through stages of color from bright bronze with orange tints into rich yellow, the committee states. It is described as a compact grower of medium height and generous spread with flat flowers good for arrangements.

Ruby King was described by some of the judges as the "best red cushion I have seen." It is a compact mounded plant growing 12 to 15 inches tall with wide spread and produced many 1 to 2-inch blossoms from late September through October or until freezing weather. The buds tolerate frost. The color is described as a flame red with gold on the reverse side of the petals.

The plants were tested at 15 trial grounds in as many different locations in the United States and three additional trial spots are being added this year, the committee states.

Help Yourself To Happiness

This column is one of a series on marriage and family problems which appears weekly in this paper. It presents problems of everyday living and attempts to bring you the most expert opinion in this area. By combining clinical experience, research, and homespun practicality, we hope to assist you to help yourself to happiness.

Readers are invited to present their problems. All queries will receive individual attention and should be accompanied by a stamped self-addressed envelope directed to Mary Harris Seifert, M.A., Department of Education, The American Institute of Family Relations, 5287 Sunset Boulevard, Los Angeles 27, California.

How To Be a Good Daughter-in-Law

In-laws are not as bad as they are popularly supposed to be, says Dr. Paul Popenoe, general director of the American Institute of Family Relations in Los Angeles. Indeed, with effort and consideration there is a more than even chance that you'll establish a warm friendship and a mutually satisfactory, if not profitable, relationship.

How can you be a good daughter-in-law?

1. Make friends with your in-laws before you marry. Don't expect to step into a niche of ready made affection and acceptance. Strive to win good will—don't demand it, tailor-made.
2. Live apart from your relatives if you possibly can. Remember that privacy, even the privacy of a separate room, may mean the difference between tension and ease of companionship. If, however, you must "double up," make the best of the situation.
3. Call your in-laws names of affection, such as "Mother and Dad." They will appreciate this implied acceptance of family ties and relationships.
4. Learn all you can about marriage before you marry. Be prepared, as you would for any other job, and be ready to share your responsibilities and work.
5. Beware of interfaith marriage—consider its problems carefully before entering upon it.
6. Select a husband who has at least as much education as you have. The difficulties involved in a marriage of mixed social or cultural background are sometimes acute.

7. Marry a man whose parents are happy. Happiness in social relationships tends to repeat itself. Choose a mate who has lived in a home where harmony and happiness predominated.
