Causes Leading To Delinquency Studied by PTA

Eagle Point—Contributing factors to juvenile delinquency are the lack of a planned program between parent and child, negligence in communication between them, and dissension in the home, according to Lawrence Tweedy, boys counselor for the Jackson County Juvenile department. Other contributing factors found among local cases, included the access to and the universal use of the automobile by youth, both parents working and habitually overtired, and the lack of supervision at home.

Mr. Tweedy was guest speaker at the January meeting of the Eagle Point Elementary Parent-Teacher association, and went over the entire procedure from the time of apprehension of a juvenile, step by step, through to the court hearing and decision. He explained that the juveniles were much more cooperative in the present detention home, and told of the important part the Jackson County PTA units played in securing the county home.

The sixth grades of Mrs. Ray Barrow and David Harrison presented a skit on safety. The students prepared and directed the skit themselves.

A round table discussion on report cards had been scheduled, but due to the lateness of the hour, it was postponed and planned for the February meeting.

Mrs. Selby's first grade room won the count for the highest number of parents present at the meeting. The fifth grade students of Mrs. Pomeroy, Mrs. Hill and Mrs. McKee made the name tags; Richard Anderson led the flag salute; and refreshments were served by mothers of students in the fifth grade.

For the wedding trip to the Oregon coast the bride chose for her traveling attire a red silk dress with gray coat and black and red accessories. The newlyweds are making their home in Medford.

The bride is a graduate of Medford High school and is employed as a clerk-stenographer by the United States Forest Service at the Rogue River National Forest office here. Mr. Sprague attended Medford schools and is employed by Medford Veneer and Plywood corporation.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding included the Rev. and Mrs. George Gray, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Cross, Mrs. John Hill and daughter, DeLila, all Cave Junction, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sprague, Hills, Calif.
