Grauman's Theater Closes Ending Glamourous Chapter

By VERNON SCOTT United Press Hollywood Wire

Hollywood — Grauman's Chinese theater, a film town landmark for the past 36 years, shuttered its doors this week, bringing to an end a zany, glamour-packed chapter of Hollywood history.

The rocco movie palace will undergo a "face lift" and renovation in the next two months to become the first theater in the world to exhibit a new film technique modestly tabbed Cinemiracle, thus heralding still another era.

A brace of ornate pagodas will be toppled from either side of the stage, down will come the fancy columns—even the seats will be yanked.

But out in the forecourt the footprints in cement will remain, indelibly recalling Hollywood's roaring '20s.

Some 130 stars have imprinted their profiles, hands, feet and even six-guns in the cement. The tradition goes back to 1927 when the late Sid Grauman escorted Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks and Norma Talmadge to see construction of his theater.

When they stepped from a block long limousine Miss Talmadge accidentally walked through the wet cement on the curb. Grauman had her sign her name, then insisted that Miss Pickford and Fairbanks follow suit.

Down through the years the Chinese has klieg-lighted hundreds of glittering premieres. It popped into the news last year during the Confidential trial when it was alleged Maureen O'Hara was found necking in the last row.

Grand Opening Recalled — At its grand opening, May 18, 1927, Cecil B. DeMille's "King of Kings" was premiered on a 16x19-foot screen.

When the Chinese reopens in April a monstrous 100x40 foot screen will give audiences a new dimension in motion pictures.

Making its world premiere will be "Windjammer," an adventure epic in the new three-camera, three-projector Cinemiracle process. It's a combination of 3-D and widescreen that gives viewers the feeling they are a part of the action taking place on the screen.

The man behind the new development is Elmer C. Rhoden, president of National Theaters.

Rhoden directs remodeling Under his direction the old Chinese is being remodeled into an ultramodern theater. "We will lose about 450 seats," he said, "but the new chairs will be six inches deeper and much more comfortable. The theater will have a special 50-seat area in the balcony for special parties."

Under the new plan the Chinese will show only Cinemiracle pictures, killing off the old glamour days of premiers for star-studded epics from the studios.

"We expect our pictures to run a year or more at the Chinese," Rhoden concluded. "By the end of that time another Cinemiracle film will be ready to be exhibited. We believe it is a new kind of entertainment with a grand old theater leading the way to better pictures."

Reports reaching Western capitals indicate Marshal Tito's health is none too good these days. The Yugoslav leader is said to be suffering from rheumatism and a slipping disc. Reports say he is spending more and more time at his Brioni retreat with his heated swimming pool. Although his health is not seriously impaired, it has started speculation on a possible successor.

Political insiders say Undersecretary of State Christian A. Herter Jr., former GOP governor of Massachusetts, was approached "informally" recently on the possibility of opposing Democratic Sen. John F. Kennedy in the November elections. Herter's answer generally was (1) he's happy in his present job and (2) enjoys a non-political status.

Mid-east observers think one of the first results of the Egyptian-Syrian merger will be demands from other Middle-east countries for greatly increased aid from the United States. Such demands may come from King Saud of Saudi Arabia, King Feisal of Iraq, King Hussein of Jordan and President Camille Chamoun of Lebanon. Each could lose his job if pan-Arabism spreads. Pan-Arabism has a powerful appeal to a new class of educated Arabs throughout the Middle East.

Queen Mother Now In New Zealand

Auckland, N.Z.—British Queen Mother Elizabeth flew in from the Fiji islands during the week end to begin her first visit to the lands "down under" in more than 30 years.

Gov. Gen. Lord Cobham, Prime Minister Walter Nash and a crowd of about 3,000 New Zealanders greeted the Dowager Queen at the airport. Other thousands lined the street to cheer her as she rode to government house.

The Dowager Queen paid her last visit to New Zealand in 1927, when she was the Duchess of York.

Editor's note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual report. The Family Council does not give advice; it merely reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counselors.

Jacqueline S.—Dora thinks her reputation was ruined when she was born.

Dora M.—My parents are hypocrites.

Jacqueline S.—I am a girl of 17 and have a best friend of my own age who has a terrible problem.

Dora is really a nice girl, but she goes too far in petting and kissing with her dates. When I told her this was wrong, she said it can't make any difference because her reputation was ruined when she was born. She said she has learned that she was born only seven months after her parents were married.

I told her that nobody will ever find out about this, but she could get into trouble because of what she is doing. She is sure, however, that everyone in our community knows about it and that no nice boy will marry her.

Dora M.—My parents always said they were married a year before I was born and celebrate their anniversary on a date which corresponds to this story. But one day a few years ago I was looking for something among my mother's papers and found this marriage license with a different date on it.

Ever since that time I have had no respect for my parents. They are hypocrites because they are always preaching about doing right, but they don't do right themselves. They always talk about other people drinking too much, but they have often come home tight after a party.

If I ever get into serious trouble, it will really be because of my parents. They are worse than anyone else in spite of all they preach.

The Council—Dora has a serious problem indeed, but it is not the one she thinks.

It is also possible that Dora was a premature child and, to spare her and herself an embarrassment, the parents decided to celebrate their wedding anniversary on a different date. In any case, Dora should try to understand the facts before condemning her parents. Even if these parents were married after their child was on the way, Dora should give them credit for rectifying their error, maintaining their marriage and preaching righteous conduct to her.

Dora's general attitude, however, suggests that she feels she is bad and unworthy of nice friends and decent relationships. She tries to put the blame on her parents and this means that she is free of responsibility for creating her own good life. We agree with Jacqueline that she is headed for serious trouble. She needs lots of help from her parents and should tell them everything on her mind.

Girls like Jacqueline, who receive family confidences from their friends, should refuse to become embroiled in the problem. They should tell their friends to talk it over with their own parents.
