

Dick Travis, Lloyd Pope Climb In Holiday Handicap Golf Mix

Dick Travis and Lloyd Pope rose from fourth to second place in Rogue Valley Country club holiday golf handicap standing during the past week and are within two points of the leaders.

49ers Tell Exhib. Games

San Francisco — The San Francisco 49ers today announced they would play four pre-season games at Kezar Stadium next August and September, opening against the New York Giants on Aug. 17.

The other exhibitions are against the Chicago Cardinals, Aug. 31; Cleveland Browns, Sept. 7; and the Philadelphia Eagles, Sept. 21.

Beavers Hire Terry DeBay As Assistant

Corvallis — Terry DeBay, former player at UCLA, Monday was named as an assistant football coach at Oregon State.

DeBay replaces Clay Stapleton who has accepted the head coaching job at Iowa State.

Coach Tommy Prothro said DeBay, who served one year as an assistant here before entering the Air Force, would report as soon as he is released from the service.

Gunman Gets $480 At Portland Bank

Portland — A tall, husky gunman walked into the Hawthorne branch of the First National Bank here shortly before 1 p.m. Monday, handed a teller a threatening note, and escaped with $480.

The bandit gave teller Barbara Austin a note which read, "There is a gun in this bag and it is pointed right at you. Give me your $5, 10s, and 50s. Comply and you will not be harmed."

When she gave him the money he stuffed it in his overcoat pocket and walked from the bank.

The teller said the gunman was six feet one-inch tall, weighed more than 200 pounds, had blond hair and blue eyes and looked about 40 or 50. He wore a full length orange and brown checked overcoat.

The holdup was the 10th bank robbery in the Portland area since January, 1957.

Hoopsters Stay Undefeated in Saturday Loop

They defeated Ken Knapp and Robert Brown 8 up to bring their total to 23 for 10 matches.

Leaders Ed Hall and Frank Allen broke even in their 11th match to keep their tabulation of 25.

Ken Teeter and Everett McGraw took a big step upward with a 7 up win over Ed Nichols and Jack Edwick. They have a plus 8 total for six matches.

Russ Heysell and Ed Gordon with a four-point win over Clayton Lewis and Jim Sheldon replaced those two in fifth position. Lewis and Sheldon fell to seventh.

Because of last week's bad weather, final day for completing 12 matches in the tourney has been moved up to March 9.

Hoopsters fortified their unmarred lead in the Medford high Saturday recreation basketball league morning division by stomping the Toads 27 to 12 last week end.

The Redskins strengthened grasp of second place with a 46 to 24 verdict over the Studs. Commies stripped the Snipes 22 to 18 in the other morning rivalry.

The Dunkers managed to hang on to second spot in the afternoon league with a 19 to 18 nod over the Bushwackers. Mau Maus had an equally tough time hanging on to third place. They tipped the Bony Five 21 to 20.

Games on Saturday, Feb. 8, will be Studs versus Hoopers at 9 a.m., Redskins versus Snipes at 10 a.m., Toads versus Commies at 11 a.m., Bushwackers versus Bony Five at 1 p.m. and Mau-Maus versus Chariots at 2 p.m.

Portland Bakery Restored by Union

Portland — The Multnomah County Labor Council, in a move to keep faith with ousted Teamster union locals, Monday night restored the Marx Home Delivery Baker to its unfair-to-labor listings.

The bakery had been removed from the list only a week ago but the council reversed that action by a nearly unanimous vote Monday night after learning that Teamster Bakery Drivers local 499 still considers the bakery unfair.

Council delegates indicated the vote would help to close the ranks of Portland and organized labor between the AFL-CIO and the Teamsters who were ousted from the council by orders on the international level. One council member said "you cannot win a strike in Portland without the help of the teamsters."

Giant Missiles Silent, Then Roar Like Thunder in Climb

Cape Canaveral, Fla. — One of Uncle Sam's great missiles blasting up from Cape Canaveral is awesome in its silence at first, then roars like thunder as it climbs majestically into the sky.

It's hard to say just which metal bird makes the most noise, but with the wind just right to carry the rumble the takeoff surge of a 100-ton intercontinental Atlas might bounce you out of bed.

To a birdwatcher four or five miles away, a missile makes not a sound at first. Flame belches from its tail and a great cloud of steam and smoke billows beneath it.

Then, still silently, the bird begins to rise slowly, seemingly supported fantastically by only the orange cone of flame streaming behind. Tremendous Power

But a hint of the crashing power of the engine which thrust it upward comes with the first shattering roar that drifts over the water and down the beach. Windows rattle and the earth trembles with the long hollow staccato of the roaring missile. It may have been the vantage point on the Cape barely a mile from the launching pad—or perhaps the knowledge of the many hopes riding up with the bird—but the thunder of the Army's satellite-carrying Jupiter-C Friday night seemed to defy recollection of a noisier missile.

Newsman and photographers were looking straight up in the jet nozzle of the big Jupiter-C as soon as it rose a few hundred feet from the ground. The noise came faster, since they were closer, and drowned out the excited voices screaming into telephones and microphones.

No Pipsqueaks

There seem to be no pipsqueaks among the missiles. The takeoff of the Snark pilotless bomber last week brought residents running to their doors just at daybreak. But most were too late to see the streaking missile, which zooms up quickly and at a low angle.

The ground-to-air Bomarc and the Lockheed X-17 test rockets roar up so fast that few of them are seen. By the time their noise reaches public beaches, the missiles are well out of sight. Only a vapor trail high in the sky marks their course.

But the noisiest of the missiles are the big ones such as the Atlas and the intermediate range Jupiters and Thors. The Jupiter is all the more spectacular because it usually is fired at night, and lights up the sky for miles with the orange glow of its jet.

What the 5,000-mile range Titan will sound like when it flies for the first time, no one knows. But odds are it will come close to dwarfing the roar of most other missiles.

Weasels are of considerable economic importance in the farmlands where they occur. Authorities estimate they kill millions of mice and rats each year.

Idaho Power Gets Baker County Land

Portland — Federal District Judge William East Monday granted Idaho Power Company immediate possession of 128 acres of Baker county land due to be flooded by Brownlee dam on the Snake river.

Owners of the land did not contest the power firm's claim to the land but said they would exercise their right to a Federal Court jury determination of a fair reimbursement. The land was owned by Mr. and Mrs. George Mapes of Baker; Mrs. Nadine Johnson of Portland; and Joseph Crow of Walla Walla.

James Bruce, assistant secretary of Idaho Power, asserted the land was mostly sagebrush and worth about $3600. He discontinued some owner claims of valuable mineral deposits.

The Vermont Development commission says the average tourist party visiting Vermont consists of 3.2 people and spends 8.3 days in the state for an average of $259.79.
