Great Decisions Program Set
Radio and television programs dealing with the eight topics for Great Decisions 1958 have been scheduled for local stations, according to Harold Jaffrey, Great Decisions chairman.

A panel discussion of this week's topic, "Can We Deal With Russia?", will be held Saturday, Feb. 8, from 5 to 5:30 p.m. on KBES-TV, with Dr. Clifford Miller, Southern Oregon college, in charge. Radio stations KYJC and KMED also will present weekly programs, Jaffrey said. More than 150 persons are taking part in the foreign policy study program so far, he estimated, with other groups being formed this week. The Great Decisions program, in its fourth year in Oregon, encourages the formation of home discussion groups using fact sheets prepared for the eight week study. They are available at the Medford public library for a nominal cost of $1 for the series.

Officer Candidate Vacancies Available
Vacancies for the Marine officer candidate course at Quantico, Va., are still available, according to M/Sgt. Elzy Kees Jr., local Marine recruiter. The course starts March 24. Qualified college students are eligible to apply for the 10-week course, he said. Upon completion a graduate will be commissioned as a Marine second lieutenant in the ground or air divisions, he explained. Interested applicants should contact Sgt. Kees in room 200 of the Medford post office building.

Oils, Rails Lead Stock List Lower

New York—Oils and rails led the stock market lower today.

Individual losses ran past two points, with most major groups off on the day. The rails ran into trouble after St. Louis-San Francisco omitted its dividend. That road was off more than two points at its low. Kansas City Southern, which holds some

St. Louis-San Francisco stock, lost more than one. Most of the rails were weak. The oils reflected a weakening price structure in this country and threats to the industry's historic 9-50 profit sharing agreement in foreign countries.

Portland Bus Fare Increase Voted
Portland—Portland's bus crisis was over today, at least for the time being. The Portland city council, which Commissioner Ormond R. Bean changing his mind, voted unanimously late Thursday to grant Rose City Transit Company a fare boost. Thus a threat by RCT to halt city bus service Feb. 28 ended.

Fares will go from 20 cents to 25 cents a ride, or two rides for 45 cents. The increase probably will go into effect at 2 a.m. Sunday. Bean's vote approving the emergency ordinance came after he twice had refused to go along with other councilmen on the measure. He said a call from the wife of a bus driver, who said her husband would be out of work, helped him make his decision. The woman said they had five children and it would not be easy to find another job.

But Bean said he still believed the wrong path was taken. "There are going to be a great many disappointed people over my surrender because they felt, as I do, that something should be done, but I can not do it alone."

The city council recently granted RCT a fare increase, but then rescinded it after Public Utility Commissioner Howard Morgan said the PUC had a right of review of any fare increase. Morgan said Thursday night he would not take action to upset the latest council decision.

Paul Robeson Returns To Stage; Opinions Same

Oakland, Calif. — Paul Robeson returns to the concert stage here Sunday after a 10-year absence during which the Negro basso fought in the political arena in support of pro-Communist causes.

Robeson will be featured in a concert in honor of Negro History Week at the Oakland Auditorium Theater. It is one of the few times in recent years that he has been permitted to sing a concert in a municipal auditorium.

But Robeson, 6 feet, 3 1/2 inches and 255 pounds, defiantly insisted that "my political opinions are still as they were."

The 59-year-old onetime All-America football player and Phi Beta Kappa has been an ardent admirer of Russia and other Communist countries since the middle 30s when he enrolled his son, Paul Jr., in a Moscow school. Still Favors Socialism

"I'm very proud of my politics, of having fought in the interests of labor, the Negro and peace," Robeson said. "I believe very deeply that socialism is the answer to poverty."

So far there has been little to indicate that Robeson's appearance will touch off anything like the riots of August and September, 1949, when he addressed meetings in Peekskill, N.Y.

A threat to picket the theater if Robeson sings was issued by Sam K. Cook Jr., who identified himself as national director of the Western Nationalist Crusade. He said the organization has 100,000 members and adherents in the United States and Canada.

Cook complained to Oakland City Manager Wayne Thompson Thursday that Robeson should not be allowed to sing in the city-owned auditorium.

Hawaii's Mount Waialeale is probably the world's rainiest spot. Waialeale's annual rainfall averages 489 inches. In a recent year, 624 inches poured down. Only 20 inches a year fall on Waimea, a coastal town just 15 miles away.

Multnomah Sewer System Proposed

Portland — Multnomah county commissioners disclosed plans Thursday for a $27 million tri-county sewerage system.

Spokesmen said the Tri-County Authority, which includes Multnomah, Clackamas and Washington counties, had agreed on a master plan calling for establishment of interceptor and trunk sewers and a major sewage treatment plant based on the drainage basin of the area.

First step of construction would be the Fanno Creek interceptor and Cambridge Village trunk sewers. This would be a line from Cambridge Village in the south-west Portland hills to an area just south of Beaverton. At the west end of the Fanno Creek Interceptor, there would be a treatment plant to connect with the proposed West Slope trunk sewers.

MAINE TO BOSTON
Sweden, Me. — One of the finest stands of red pine in Maine is destined to shore up buildings in Boston's harbor. Alexander Eon and his five sons started cutting the wood stands, specially suited for use as pilings, and they expected to ship 1,000 pines from the tract here for use in Boston.
