The council voted to close the city dump for dumping garbage or refuse from outside the city effective Feb. 3. Fahye, of Pat's Sanitary Service, was present and signed the acceptance of the garbage collection franchise as set forth in the ordinance.

Fahye said he would begin soon to contact people in the city concerning the garbage pickup. City officials said the first pickup under the franchise will be on Wednesday, March 5, and will be once each week. Fees will be either $1.50 or $1.25 per month depending upon whether garbage pickup will be from the residents' premises, or from the street or alley. A garbage pickup will be one 30 gallon can. Excessive amounts of garbage would mean some extra charges.

Fahye expressed the hope that the residents of Gold Hill will be helpful in getting the new garbage pickup plan working. The Hollywood Scene By HAZEL JOHNSON United Press Writer

Hollywood — A tiny scar between the eyebrows is the sole physical mark left to remind actor Eric Fleming of five delicate plastic surgery operations which kept him from grotesque facial disfigurement.

And Hollywood's acknowledgment of the surgeon's skill came 15 years later when Fleming was chosen to play the romantic lead opposite glamour gal Zsa Zsa Gabor in Allied Artists' recently-completed movie, "Queen of the Universe." All of which means you should be able to tag "and he acted happily ever after" on the end of the near fairy tale of a movie star who once came close to losing the very quality needed for most romantic parts — a handsome face.

No Prince Charming
However, Fleming never could have qualified, countenances, in the Prince Charming class in the first place. "That 200-pound steel block that slipped didn't smash in the face of a good looking youth," the 31-year-old bachelor explained. "When it happened I was an ugly kid, 17 years old, who was conspicuous with a tremendously large nose."

Fleming's nose wasn't the only thing that bothered him. He was plagued by club feet as a child, and for years had his teeth encased in braces. "The last thing I was worried about after that block slipped was my appearance," he said. "I was used to being ugly. But I was afraid I might lose an eye. And I certainly had no idea I'd end up looking like this."

"Like this" means rugged handsome features atop a six-foot three-inch 200-pound frame. Fleming started toward his financial goal by working as a hod-carrier when he was 13½. The actor had made his own way since he was 9 and had run away from his construction worker father after a beating.

Reconstruction of his facial features was necessary after a heavy bar he was attempting to balance above his head slipped and narrowly missed killing him.

Plans were made to hold a food sale at Gail's Gold Hill market on Saturday, April 5. The next meeting of the unit will be held March 4 at the home of Mrs. Delos Walker. Mrs. Tom Gray and Miss Elizabeth McCalliard will assist as co-hostesses.

A basketball game is scheduled Thursday, Feb. 13, at 3:45 p.m. at the Hanby school gymnasium between the varsity and junior varsity teams of Poenix and Hanby schools.
