San Antonio, Tex.—Lt. Col. George R. Steinkamp, head of the Space Medicine Department of the School of Aviation Medicine, on the slow response to an alarm bell by the sleeping airmen simulating a flight to the moon in a cramped and airtight space chamber:

"This is not unusual, but perfectly normal. It probably shows that he is beginning to get a bit more relaxed."

Washington—Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.), on the possibility that the Senate will hold its own investigation of federal regulatory agencies, in addition to the one now underway in the House:

"There already is evidence that some officials of 'independent' agencies have not discharged their trusts in conformity with the high ethical standards the public has a right to expect."

Savannah, Ga.—Mayor W. L. Mingledorff, on the little concern shown by Savannah residents about the Navy search for a part of a nuclear weapon jettisoned by a B-47 bomber one week ago off Savannah Beach, after a collision with a fighter:

"These atomic bombs come in many pieces, and they aren't dangerous until they actually are assembled."

Jackson, Tenn.—Don McSween, Tennessee employment security commissioner, on his state's growing unemployment problem:

"Tennessee is involved in an exciting race between the stork and job opportunities, and for the moment the stork is winning."

Burlington, Vt.—Mrs. Doreen Wilson, member of the Burlington school board, on its failure to close the schools Wednesday—Lincoln's birthday:

"Normally, all legal holidays are observed. But this one just slipped up on us."

NEW ROCKET PLANE—Douglas Aircraft Company engineer Kermit van Every has released details of a design study launched in 1953 for this manned aircraft. Designated the Navy's D-558-III, this rocket-powered space plane was designed to fly 6000 miles per hour, and 140 miles above the surface of the earth. The project was later dropped for lack of funds.

Library Week Plans Laid by Committee

The Jackson county committee for National Library Week, March 15 to 22, met yesterday to discuss plans for local observance of the event.

Members of the committee, named by ex-Gov. Charles A. Sprague, Salem editor and chairman of the statewide committee, include the Rev. Thomas McCamant, of the Congregational church, chairman, and Mrs. Una B. Inch, Mrs. Ward Hammond, Mrs. Dunbar Carpenter, Hal Gardner and Frank J. Van Dyke. Meeting with the group in an advisory capacity were Miss Helen Webster, Medford librarian, and Eric Allen Jr., president of the library's board of trustees and a member of the state Library Week committee.

Tentative Plans
Tentative plans to seek co-operation of service groups in holding an open house in the library that week were laid. It is planned to have guided tours of the library, and local authors will be invited to participate.

Cooperation of public officials, both of Medford and the county, will be sought in making the week a success, and newspapers, radio and television will be asked to assist in publicizing the library and the service it offers to residents of the county.

Supplies of fact sheets telling of the library are to be prepared, the chamber of commerce will be invited to join in the observance through its Greeters and Education committees, and the schools of the county will also be asked to participate.

Additional plans will be made between now and the middle of March, committee members said.
