Montana Democrat Would Put Nation's Capital in Eastern Montana Prairie

Washington — Sen. James E. Murray said today if they don't stop messing around with Washington's natural beauty, he's for moving the nation's capital out west. The venerable Montana Democrat added that, naturally, if the seat of government is evacuated it should be relocated in his state. Murray is chairman of the Senate Interior Committee, which among other things has to rule on construction of new parkways in the District of Columbia. The senator, who has been in Congress since 1934, got to brooding over the freeways he feels have "ruined the magnificent trees and palisades" along the Potomac. He expressed alarm over proposals for still more roads. Bill Considered "For some time I have considered a bill to move the capital out west, where the climate would be much better and the grandeur of the Rocky Mountains might revive in the minds of governing groups some of the spiritual and social values of the founders of the republic," he said. "If Washington can no longer handle traffic without paving parks and playgrounds, than I shall offer a bill to move the capital to Montana amid the Rockies." Murray said his threatened bill also would provide that the capital be set up in the sparse Eastern Montana prairies where "roadbuilders can pave acres of flat land with a minimum of tree removal and bulldozing." Taking advantage of the fact that most Republicans are out of town this week making Lincoln Day speeches, the senator suggested what

Chains Necessary For Austin Travel

Salem — Seven inches of new snow made chains a must for travel to Austin, the State Highway Department reported today. Motorists were advised to carry chains at Government Camp with 5 inches of new snow; Warm Springs junction, 1 inch; Santiam pass, 6 inches; and Willamette pass, 10 inches. Icy spots were reported in roadways at Siskiyou, Ochoco summit, Klamath Falls, Quartz mountain, Lakeview, Seneca and Burns. On the east side of Santiam pass chains were required from Suttle lake

Baldock Freeway Death Toll Cut

Salem — Oregon highway officials today proclaimed a sharp reduction in auto accidents between Portland and Salem since completion of the high-speed Baldock freeway.

F. B. Crandall, traffic engineer for the State Highway Commission, revealed that the freeway had an accident rate of a mere .65 per 100 million miles traveled. The rate on the slower Portland to Salem route had been 2.25 between Salem and Oregon City and 3.83 between Salem and Albany. Eleven persons have been killed on the Baldock freeway since it was opened in 1954. The old Highway 99E had a death rate that jumped from 3.55 in 1953 to 9.58 last year. Speed limit on the new freeway is 70 m.p.h.

Texan Denies Effort To Influence Martin By Promoting Dinner

Washington — Oil man Roy H. Cullen said today that oil officials who honored House Republican leader Joseph W. Martin Jr. at a controversial fund-raising dinner did so because he is "fighting for free enterprise"—not to influence his support of the natural gas bill. Cullen, of Houston, Tex., is one of the nation's wealthiest men.

In a letter to the Washington Post and Times Herald, Cullen said neither he nor most of the oil men who attended the Martin dinner would gain much "money-wise by the outcome of the gas bill" in Congress. Couldn't Be Swayed Furthermore, he said, he did "not believe that the average oil man is idiotic enough to believe that Joe Martin could be swayed by money . . ."

The dinner Cullen referred to was held in Houston and raised $100,000 for the Republican party. Martin was the honor guest and feature speaker.

In promoting the dinner, H. J. (Jack) Porter, Texas GOP national committeeman and oil man, sent out a letter hailing Martin as a friend of Texas oil and gas interests.

Up to Martin It said Martin had "mustered two-thirds of the Republican votes in the house each time the gas bill passed" and that "it will be up to Joe Martin" to do the same "in order to pass the gas bill this year."

The bill, which would free independent natural gas producers from federal controls, has passed Congress twice but been twice vetoed—once by former President Truman and once by President Eisenhower.

In the furor that resulted from Porter's letter, the Republican National Committee, with Eisenhower's approval, refused to accept any of the proceeds from the Houston dinner.

Former Speaker Seeks Judgeship

Newport, Ore. — John H. Hall, former governor of Oregon, announced today that he will seek election to the circuit judgeship in the district comprising Benton, Linn and Lincoln counties. Hall is now a resident of Newport in Lincoln county.

If elected, Hall would become the first official in the 99-year history of Oregon to have served in all three branches of the state government—executive, legislative and judicial.

Hall, a former speaker of the state House of Representatives, succeeded to the governor's office after the death of Gov. Earl Snell, Senate President Marshall Cornett, and Secretary of State Robert S. Farrell Jr. in a 1947 plane crash.

KIDS' ROCKET EXPLODES

could be done with Washington if the capital went west. Could Be Museum He said the city could be preserved as a "national museum where students could study the early history of our nation as well as prehistoric things like the mastodon bones at the Smithsonian Institute and Republican economic policies." Because of the heavy Lincoln week traveling Republicans were difficult to find for comment on Murray's ideas. But Sen. Wallace F. Bennett (R-Utah) said "If we go to the trouble of moving the capital out west it would be a mistake to settle for anything less than the very best location—which is, of course, Utah." Rep. William S. Matliard (R-Calif.) said "the recent weather in Washington has been cold enough to prompt some to suggest moving the capital elsewhere—preferably to San Francisco," he said.

Murray said his threatened bill also would provide that the capital be set up in the sparse Eastern Montana prairies where "roadbuilders can pave acres of flat land with a minimum of tree removal and bulldozing."

Taking advantage of the fact that most Republicans are out of town this week making Lincoln Day speeches, the senator suggested what

New York Maps School Program

New York — State and city officials joined today to put speedily into operation a four-point "crash program" designed to end violence in the schools.

The plan, announced Wednesday night after a conference of Gov. Averell Harriman and Mayor Robert F. Wagner and education officials, calls for: —Establishment within 30 days of four additional special schools for 600 to 800 school-age hoodlums and other problem children.

—A State Education Department study, beginning Friday, of the city's needs for other special classes and provision of additional state money if necessary.

—Development in cooperation with labor unions of a combination work-and-study setup for some students under which they would have part-time jobs. But Harriman said there would be no change in present child labor or compulsory education laws.

—Immediate search for space for an additional 200 to 250 delinquents in custodial institutions, through expenditure of more state funds if necessary.

Staff investigators for the special Senate subcommittee on juvenile delinquency meanwhile arranged for further interviews with school officials, teachers, parents, police and students to determine whether federal aid is needed by the city in combating classroom terrorism.

Farm Loan Group To Share Dividend

The Southern Oregon National Farm Loan association is sharing a $2,525.80 dividend with its 188 farmer and rancher stockholders in Jackson and Josephine counties, F. E. Bowman, secretary-treasurer, announced this week.

The $2,525.80 dividend is part of a $313,392 dividend paid by the Federal Land Bank of Spokane to 65 northwest national farm loan associations which own all of its capital stock. On Nov. 30, 1957, the bank's capital stood at $7,834,815, of which $63,145 was owned by the Southern Oregon association.

Bowman said that since 1944 the Spokane bank has paid out more than $3,500,000 in dividends which represent savings it has been able to effect over and above its operating expenses and needed reserves. Being a cooperative, these savings have been shared with its borrowers through their local national farm loan association.

Greenwood, Miss. — A school bus collided with a fire truck at an intersection Wednesday slightly injuring 10 children and two adults. Police said the bus entered the blind intersection on a green traffic signal and rammed the speeding fire engine in the side.
