

Baptist Women Hold Luncheon In Local Church

Women's Fellowship of First Baptist church of Medford was host to about 95 women from the Shasta-Cascade Association of Conservative Baptists at a noon luncheon February 11 in the church annex. Present were members of the Open Door Baptist church, Grants Pass, Berean Baptist of White City and First Baptist of Ashland.

Following the luncheon, missionaries here to attend the round robin mission conference spoke on the work in their particular fields, emphasizing the work of the women missionaries.

First speaker for the afternoon was the Rev. Gary Poppings, who is an appointee to the Philippine islands. There he will teach in an interdenominational school of high school age children of missionaries. Mrs. Poppings, who before her marriage was Norma Jean Beggs, received her early schooling in Medford and her family were members of First Baptist church. The family now lives in Eugene.

Miss Marjorie Osgood, Ashland, and Harold Setzer, Prospect, play the leads in tonight's production of "Cinderella" at Southern Oregon college. Miss Osgood is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. N. Osgood, Ashland, and Mr. Setzer is a son of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Setzer, Prospect. The drama, spring offering of Southern Oregon college, has two complete casts for six productions. It opened last night at the college, with Miss Pat Leek and Richard Swinney, both Medford, playing the leads. The Players will present "Cinderella" twice more in Ashland, February 15 and 22 at 10:30 a.m., for Ashland school children and twice in Medford at the Craterian theater on Tuesday afternoon, February 18. The children's performances in both cities are under the sponsorship of American Association of University Women.

Male Model's Life Provides Quick, Large Bank Balance

By GAY PAULEY
United Press Correspondent

New York — The life of the male model hardly matches that of the girl for glamour. But it's a quick way to a hefty bank balance.

"All right, so the men don't get taken to lunch at the Stork Club or their names in the gossip columns," said a spokesman for Burke McGuire, one of the four or five agencies in Manhattan booking male as well as female models.

"But their assignments are steady, the pay gets better every year, and their work life span can be long, if they want to stay in it."

Joel Rice, manager at McGuire, said women still outnumber the men, about three to one, and out-earn them. But the fellows, since World War II, have been moving in.

Major reason: Advertising suddenly is aware a man appeals to a woman, and the lady customer is mighty apt to listen when he delivers a pitch about say a refrigerator.

A top-flight male model will earn $35 to $40 an hour, compared with the $50 to $75 some photographic and high fashion females haul down.

But the girls have more overhead, in clothes, hair-do and makeup. And the public agencies said, are apt to tire of the female model sooner, because she is so well publicized.

"The girls also work full time," said Cye Perkins, former model and now assistant manager for the Hartford Agency. "For a lot of men, modeling is a sideline... sort of a balance for their other interests. One of our top models sells insurance; another owns a nightclub; one is a photographer."

Typical of the men using modeling as a means to an end is Lionel Wiggam, one of Hartford's leading talents and a "regular" for years in newspaper advertisements for a men's clothing chain.

Just A Pastime
Wiggam wants to devote full time someday to playwriting. From Princeton, class of '43, he headed directly to Hollywood where he did screen plays for Warner Brothers and Universal-International. One of his movie hits was "Smash-up," starring Susan Hayward. And, he's written numerous poems and stories, published in leading magazines, including "The New Yorker."

Now, he's so well established as a model he works at it two and one-half days a week in winter; only one day a week in summer. The rest of the time he devotes to writing.

"The greatest danger in modeling: That a man is seduced by all the dough he can make, and doesn't pursue his prime ambition," said Wiggam.

"Know Your County" Topic For Voters' League Session

Medford League of Women Voters will hold a general meeting Saturday, February 22 at 12:30 p.m. in the form of a luncheon at the Rogue Valley Country club. Following the luncheon there will be a panel discussion on the subject "Know Your County."

Panel members will be Mrs. Frank Bash, Mrs. Stanley Zapell, Mrs. Edward C. Kelly and Mrs. Kenneth Denman.

Mrs. Frank Bash served as chairman of the Republican Central committee for four years, has been a member of the executive board of the State Republican Central committee as well as chairman of the fourth Congressional District committee.

Mrs. Zapell served as publicity director of the Jackson County Democratic party in the last election. Mrs. Kelly, general chairman of the Roosevelt memorial dinner for the past two years, is a past county chairman of the Democratic party and at one time acted as campaign manager for Congresswoman Nan Wood Honeyman, Portland.

Mrs. Denman served as secretary of the Jackson County Republican Central committee for six years, and is vice-chairman now.

In their discussion they will acquaint league members with the work of the two major political parties at the county level.

Reservations for the luncheon can be made by calling Mrs. J. W. Barnard, Spring 2-9294. Mrs. Irving Thomas, voter's service chairman, cordially invites all league members and anyone interested in the discussion to attend.

The "Know Your County" committee has invited a league member, Mrs. Bereth

Spanish Soprano To Give Concert

Pilar Lorengar, Spanish soprano, will give a concert in Medford Friday, February 21, under the auspices of Jackson County Civic Music association.

Miss Lorengar, a native of Zaragoza, made her debut at Oran in Algeria in 1951. In 1955 she appeared at the Aix-en-Provence festival and was given rave reviews by Paris and international critics, it is reported.

After her New York debut the New York Times critic wrote, "A girl with the gifts of beauty and song" and the New York Herald Tribune critic said, "The young Spanish soprano looks well enough to have a stage career even if she couldn't sing, and sings cal one without her good well enough to have a musi-looks."

Y Plans Class In Swimming

Gordon Williams, YMCA physical director, announces that beginning swim class for women will open Tuesday, February 18, at 3:30 p.m. This class will be held Tuesday and Thursday evenings at that time for six weeks. The class will consist of 12 lessons.

Since Medford is the heart of an area with many streams and lakes, and because summer is approaching, YMCA officials feel the need for swimming classes for all those women who don't know how to swim, but do participate in water activities and sports in the summer time.

August Farfan will be the instructor. A fee will be charged for the class.

By combining clinical experience, research, and homespun practicality, we hope to assist you to help yourself to happiness.

Readers are invited to present their problems. "I Feel So Hurt!"
"I've just found out there's another woman," cries Sandra. "Bill was overseas for five months—I came across a letter from a girl, and when I asked him, he admitted an affair. We've always had a good marriage, at least I thought so. Bill is terribly broken up and says the girl doesn't mean a thing to him. He tells me again and again how sorry he is. But I JUST CANNOT UNDERSTAND how he could do such a thing. I feel so terribly hurt, no matter how he explains it. What can we do to save our marriage?"

Infidelity always hurts. This is a natural reaction, especially in a relationship which has not experienced many outside "jolts." Perhaps the most important thing to remember is that there is little to be gained in living in the past. What has been, has been. For those who are willing to accept this fact and go forward with good intent, time is a great healer of wounds.

Bill's attitude of regret and his recognition of his mistake shows that he wants to salvage his marriage. In a new environment, without customary or conventional restraints, many people do things which they would not do at home, in normal circumstances. This was amply demonstrated in the last war.

Behavior patterns are a result of training, social pressure, and inner drive; any or all of these may be eclipsed in strange or unusual situations or surroundings, given sufficient pressure. But a temporary lapse does not indicate that the individual has changed or lost his moral values, especially if he is conscious of his off-beat pattern, as was Bill.

Bill wants to save his marriage. He does not want to hurt Sandra. Sandra can help him in his resolution by attempting to understand why and how the situation arose, and by accepting his promise for the future. Both should try to talk more freely about their desires, goals, and plans for the future. Both should look forward, not back. Bill can do much toward making Sandra feel secure and desirable, beloved, if you will. Sandra can make Bill feel attractive, stimulating both as a man and as a partner. She can try to make the home a pleasant place to stay, one in which both of them can find peace and love.

If Bill and Sandra cannot gain this equilibrium together (and many cannot), then they should seek the guidance of a counselor who will aid them in evaluating the past and planning for the future—together.
