Valley Forge Audience Gets Surprise From Hoover Talk

Valley Forge, Pa. — Former President Herbert Hoover surprised an audience Saturday by delivering a speech in which he warned that the nation was in "an hour of unusual stress and trial," then confessed it was the same speech he had made 27 years ago.

Hoover, here to receive the highest award in the ninth annual Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge Awards program, said in the speech that the United States was "beset with difficulties and confusions." But he said the crisis was only a "passing trial," from which the nation would emerge stronger in the future.

Then, at the "conclusion of his prepared text, he admitted he had made the same speech, "with slight elimination of less pertinent paragraphs," on when the world "was in the depths of the greatest depression in our history."

That depression, he said, was "an interlude from the mistakes in the peace following of destruction from the First World War." Likewise, he said, "we now inherit the mistakes of the peace and the aftermath of destruction from the Second World War."

Predicts Rally

"Our people are today again confused and some are discouraged," Hoover said. "But we rallied to a period of greatness after the depression of the 1930's as we will again today."

Hoover, called "Elder and Exemplar of Free Men," received $5,000 and the special George Washington Honor Medal for "his wisdom and devoted service to the Republic of the United States."

Recipients of four special freedom leadership awards were the Rev. Frederick Brown Harris Chaplain of the U. S. Senate; Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of Selective Service; Gen. Curtis E. Lemay, Air Force Vice Chief of Staff, and Charles Stewart Mott, businessman.

NATIONAL CHILD EVANGELISM WEEK

"There are over 18 million unchurched children in our nation," states the National Child Evangelism Fellowship, sponsors of Child Evangelism Week. Last year nearly one million of these children were reached through approximately 15,000 volunteer workers . . . mostly housewives, in weekday home Bible clubs. Many more volunteers are needed if this host of children are to be won for Christ.

The Child Evangelism Fellowship invites your cooperation in this challenging task. If you are interested in helping to reach the children in your neighborhood by teaching a Good News Club, being a hostess, a helper or a prayer partner, or by sponsoring a Good News Club, contact your local Child Evangelism Fellowship, 617 Pine street, Medford.

Child Evangelism Fellowship is an interdenominational, non-sectarian organization, seeking to reach the unchurched children of our nation through the establishment of Bible classes in neighborhood homes.
