

Seven American Newsmen Held in Cuba Released

Havana, Cuba—A group of seven American newsmen held for entering restricted territory without proper authorization have been released from custody in Santiago de Cuba, it was disclosed today.

They were Harold Lidin of the United Press, Homer Biggar of the New York Times, and Robert Taber of the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Others Released
Three others were released at 9:30 a.m. (e.s.t.) today. They were Ward Cannel of NEA, Ray Brennan of the Chicago Sun-Times, and Alan Jarison of KRAM-KSHO-TV, Las Vegas, Nev.

A seventh newsman, Bob Silva of WKCT Miami, Fla., also was reported released. Brennan said they were not mistreated.

Negotiations for release of the newsmen were conducted in Havana between U.S. Ambassador Earl E. Smith and Cuban Prime Minister and Minister of State Gonzalo Guell.

In Military Zone
The Cuban government maintained that the newsmen were in a military zone during a state of emergency without proper authorization. Santiago de Cuba is the capital of Oriente Province where rebel leader Fidel Castro is carrying on the heaviest part of his campaign against the government of President Fulgencio Batista.

Batista's government announced earlier loyal troops in eastern Cuba have turned back rebel thrusts at both Santiago and Baire inflicting "sizeable" casualties on the insurgents.

Airliner Believed Down in Jungle
Quito, Ecuador—An Ecuadorian airliner, 25 hours overdue on a flight here from the big Pacific port of Guayaquil, is believed to have crashed in the Santo Domingo jungle.

The fate of the 28 passengers of the two-engine DC3 was unknown. So far as was known, there were no foreigners aboard the plane.

The latest report of the plane, when it had covered about three-quarters of the distance scheduled for its flight, was that it had been crippled by engine trouble. The pilot reported he was trying to land.

Justice Department To Reconsider Case Against Costello

Washington—The Justice department said today it is studying its denaturalization case against gambler Frank Costello with a possible view of renewing it in New York Federal District court.

The Supreme court Monday abruptly ordered dismissal of proceedings to take away the citizenship of the Sicilian-born Costello, 66. The brief order said the government had made a procedural misstep in Judge Edmund L. Palmieri's Federal court.

Denaturalization is usually a prelude to deportation. Parallel Orders
The High court issued parallel orders in two other appeals from New York filed by Gaetano Lucchese, of Italian birth, and James J. Matles, a native of Romania. Matles is director of organization for the left-wing United Electrical Workers (Ind.).

The government said Costello concealed his failure to pay state and federal income taxes, his 1915 conviction for carrying a concealed weapon, his activities as a bootlegger and other matters.

In all three cases the court found the government had failed to file "an affidavit of good cause" along with its original complaint. The requirement to file such an affidavit—a kind of bill of particulars—was nailed down by the Supreme court in a 1956 decision interpreting the 1952 McCarran - Walter Immigration act.

Uphaus Appeal Due
In another action the court agreed to examine the appeal of Willard Uphaus, who has been challenging New Hampshire's anti-subversive law. Uphaus is executive director of World Fellowship Inc., which operates a summer camp at Albany, N.H.

Counties To Get Vehicle Money

Salem—Receipts by the Department of Motor Vehicles will result in distribution of more than $2 million to the 36 Oregon counties about April 15, the Department announced today.

The counties will receive their regular 19 per cent of the state highway fund, which is built up for quarterly distribution largely through fuels taxes and vehicle registration fees and through weight-mile fees paid to the public utilities commissioner.

Doria Floating Effort Studied

Trenton, N.J.—A salvage firm was studying plans today to raise the sunken Italian liner Andrea Doria from the Atlantic bottom by a boot-strap operation, then inch the hulk to shallow water.

The ship lies 225 feet down off Nantucket Island where it was sunk in a collision with the Swedish liner Stockholm on July 25, 1956. Fifty-two lives were lost.

The AAA salvage firm hopes to be able to raise the 29,000-ton liner in the 60 days of summer weather during July and August.

Huge rubber tubes would be lowered and attached to the ship. When the tubes were filled with air the ship would be righted.

Then seventy 700-foot cables would be slipped under the liner and made fast to two ore ships on the surface on either side.

The ore vessel holds would be flooded, lowering the surface ships by about 15 feet. The cables would be taken up and the ore ships pumped out, lifting the Doria from the bottom. Tugs would then pull the whole apparatus into shallower water.

Portland Man Held For Attempted Assault

Portland—A young man was held today in connection with an attempted assault on an 18-year-old Lewis and Clark college coed Monday night.

Police said four men students at the college apprehended the would-be attacker as he struggled with the girl outside his car on the college campus. Being held was Harry Clark Gunderson, 24.
