Portland — Sen. Richard L. Neuberger says Oregon has gained a reputation in Congress as the "tin cup state."

Neuberger, who said he has been threatened with political reprisal from some members of his own party because of his recent voting record, told a news conference at his home Sunday that Oregon's demands for many federal projects had earned the state the "tin cup" moniker.

The Oregon Democrat said he has helped get Republican support for projects beneficial to Oregon because they realized "I don't always have the tin cup out," and favor only federal spending.

Neuberger said Democrats had criticized him for not being liberal. "You can be liberal and you can be responsible," he said. "I don't think I've become a reactionary."

Family Council

Freda F. — I am in love with an older man.

Mr. L. F. — They look ridiculous together.

Freda F. — I am a young woman of 24. I have always been fairly popular and have had several offers of marriage.

Not long ago I met a widower of 40. He has two children of 13 and 15. I met him in connection with business and he didn't think of asking me out until I made a pretext to have dinner with him.

He wants to marry me, but is worried about the difference in our ages. I feel now that I can never love anyone else, but my parents are making the most tremendous uproar and have even made threats against this man.

My wife and I have been in a state of near collapse over this. Freda has had so many good opportunities for marriage. Why should she choose a man who looks old enough to be her father?

Our daughter is still a youngster. She knows nothing about life. Surely, she'll want a family. This man looks as though he just wants to be free to enjoy himself. They look ridiculous together.

Rolls Royce Makes Into Double Bed; Highlights International Auto Show

By DOC QUIGG
New York — I've seen a lot of things in New York's great showcase Coliseum, but I never expected to be introduced to an $18,000 Rolls-Royce that makes up into a double bed.

This is absolutely on the level. The thing has seats that fold in both directions. Single beds, double bed, lounging chairs. You fold the back seats forward and the whole back section becomes an extension of the luggage compartment—space for 15 suitcases.

Its glass partition between front and back seats is detachable, in case you want to get chummy with the chauffeur. This Rolls is also the most expensive built-in writing table, electric razor, picnic table, espresso coffee maker with butane gas stove, sewing kit, mineral water cabinet, and scores of other necessities.

As you may have guessed, the International Automobile show is in full throttle at the Coliseum this week. On the first floor alone, you are greeted by the great names of Skoda, Simca, Vespa, Malco, Volkswagen, Citroen, Mercedes-Benz, Studebaker, and Packard.

There are tiny buglike cars from foreign climes; big four-eyed blunderbusses from America; cars blooming with gardens of gadgetry and chrome; cars with a sack-dress look.

There is a Citroen (the pride of France) with a joni-green body and a sort of leopard upholstery and a front end that looks remarkably like a bullfrog—bulging eyes and a wide, shovel snout and mouth. A spare tire fits under the point of the snout.

Hard by the Citroen show is its subsidiary make, Panhard.

SEX EDUCATION ASKED ENGLISH LORD DIES

Cardiff, Wales — The Education Welfare Officers of the National association has called for increased emphasis on sex education in schools and for qualified experts, school medical officers or graduate biology teachers to do the teachings.

Market Rasen, England — Lord Monson, 51, of the Manor house, South Carlton, Lincolnshire, collapsed at the steeplechase races here Monday. His wife, the former Bettie Northrup Powell of Syracuse, N. Y. was with him.

He has taken the standard five-passenger, $13,550 Rolls and added "adaptations" that bring his Countryman model to $17,716, f.o.b. New York. He has used every bit of space available in them, holding flasks, glasses, wash basins, soap, towel, first-aid kit, ice-cube thermo, camera, field glasses, and lots more.

Because adult mosquitoes have become immune to material used in the county smoke machine it will be impractical to use it in the future, according to Walter I. Sutherland.

This leaves the elimination of breeding places as the only practical solution of the local problem, he said.

As there are cattle and other livestock running in most of the wet land it is impossible to use any of the larvacides in the hatching areas as there is always a possibility that the stock will drink enough of the treated water to cause illness. Another deterrent to the spraying of hatching areas is that in many instances the water runs into creeks and eventually into the Rogue river, and practically all the usable insecticides are poisonous to fish. Also, the cost of such a program would be prohibitive.

Most of the breeding places could be eliminated by the proper use of irrigation water and the drainage of terminal sloughs.

Anyone having such a problem should contact Sutherland at the office of the Jackson County Health department, the County Agent's office, or the Bureau of Reclamation. All of these organizations have expressed a willingness to help farmers correct improper water usages.
