The Medical Roundup

by Walter Alvarez

My Thanks Go To Many Kind Persons

Dr. Alvarez

Every day my secretaries pick out of my huge mail perhaps a dozen letters that they hope I will find time to read and answer. It distresses me to be able to read and answer so few of the hundreds of letters that come in, but there just aren't enough hours in the day, and I am a very busy man with several exacting jobs. Also, so often I am traveling and lecturing that, in many a month, I am out of my office more days than I am in.

Many of the letters that come to me cannot be answered, because I cannot guess, or I shouldn't guess, what the person has. He may say he has catarrh, or asthma, or a cough, or diarrhea, but how can I guess what the word he uses means? Often he says, "I have two doctors but they don't tell me anything. So, you tell me what I have and which doctor's advice should I take." This is highly complimentary, but surely I must not start guessing about the fellow's troubles.

Every week, at least one puzzled woman writes saying, "I have a fibroid on my womb. One doctor tells me to be operated on right away; another says, 'Wait and see,' and another says, 'Forget it.' Now, you tell me what to do." Without having the woman examine by an able and conservative gynecologist I must not start guessing at what she should do.

Every day a half-dozen people write demanding that, by return mail, I tell them everything about arteriosclerosis, or asthma or allergy or colitis. To do a good job at that, I would have to take perhaps two weeks off.

Fearful for Son

A sad, unhappy woman writes that she is an epileptic. Her son has never had a fit but she has always feared he would some day have one. Now, he is planning to marry a girl who is a bunch of nerves and has a feeble-minded brother. Should she (the mother) do everything she can now to break up the love affair? Also, what will be the dangers for her son's children if he marries this girl? Obviously, I cannot answer her questions without knowing much more about her family and the girl's family. Perhaps the mother has a non-familial type of epilepsy and the girl's brother's mental retardation is due to an encephalitis. I would want to know what the electroencephalograms of the mother, the son and the girl look like.

I could go on for a week showing first how utterly impossible it is for me to read through the big pile of mail that comes in every day; and second, that if I could read it how impossible it would be to give a really adequate answer to most of the questions. Some of the writers list as many as ten questions, all of them hard to answer. It distresses me greatly not to be able to attend to most of these letters, but I can answer only some two dozen a day. I could answer many more if more people knew how to be brief and also how to come quickly to the point. To show what I mean: Many a time a secretary will say, "Here is a ten-page letter in which a sad woman tells you all about the trouble she is having with a delinquent son." My question immediately is, "Just what does she want me to do about it?" Oftentimes the secretary has to answer: I don't exactly know; I fear she was just unburdening her troubled heart."

Letters Give Comfort

Many and many a time I have wanted to thank all of you good kindly people who have written me so appreciative, so kind, and so encouraging. They warm my heart and cheer me on my way. It is so good to know that to many of you I have been able to give comfort and help. For instance, here is a letter from a woman on a lonely ranch who, a year ago, wrote asking me where in her state she could find an expert neurologist who might help her epileptic son. Now she says her son's spells are well controlled; he is able to go to school, and she is so grateful for my having put her in good hands.

Here is another letter that makes me happy. It is from a woman in her thirties who says, "Because of a fibroid tumor a local surgeon thought I ought to have a hysterectomy, but I still so hoped to have a child. Your column on fibroids so strengthened the hands of my good, kindly family doctor that he encouraged me to wait, and now I have the son I so longed for."

I am always glad to receive helpful and constructive suggestions for the column; and I always try sooner or later to write something about the diseases you people ask about. There are thousands of you who have written such wonderful letters I greatly wish I could meet you and talk to you and come to know you well. To all of you go my heartfelt thanks.

Dr. Alvarez hopes his readers will understand that it would be impossible for him to answer requests for information or to attempt to diagnosis by mail.

Bus Line Set For Festival

Ashland—A special bus line will operate for visitors to the 1958 Oregon Shakespearean festival in Ashland, festival officials said today.

The line is scheduled to operate between various pickup points in Medford and the theater entrance in Ashland, they explained.

Routed on a regular nightly schedule, the new transportation service will be launched to coincide with the event's expanded 1958 season opening July 28 with a performance of "Much Ado About Nothing." Also slated for performance are "King Lear," "The Merchant of Venice," and "Troilus and Cressida." The quartet of plays will rotate night through Sept. 4.

"Because operations of regularly scheduled bus lines in the past have not coincided with Ashland performance times, festival officials are authorizing the charter conveyances to end the problem, thus sparing theater's patrons from awkward waits before and after the evening's entertainment," a spokesman said.

Until an accurate seagoing clock, or chronometer, was perfected in England in 1735, navigators had no reliable way of determining longitude. On voyages beyond sight of land, ships customarily sailed north or south until they reached the latitude of their destination, then east or west.

Chuck's Poultry Club

A discussion on the 4-H summer school scheduled for Corvallis in June was held at the April 3 meeting of Chuck's Poultry club. Meeting place was the home of Bob Kuest.

On April 8, the club took a field trip to Hart's hatchery. There members inspected hatchery facilities and learned where the birds go after being hatched.

Next regular meeting will be held tonight at the home of President Doris Inman.
