

Toll in California Gun Battle Climbs To 4 as Boy Dies

Dana Point, Calif. — Fourteen-year-old Allyn Seyfert who helped his father and younger brother fight it out with sheriff's deputies died Tuesday night bringing the total of dead in the gun battle to four.

Allyn's father, Charles, a 39-year-old Arizona carpenter, his 10-year-old brother, Tommy, and Sheriff's Deputy Robert Schultz were killed in an outburst of gunfire Monday night on a quiet, residential street here.

The deputy's partner, Edward G. Johnson, was critically wounded in the exchange but was reported "much improved" and in "good condition" after an emergency operation.

Trip Interrupted

The shooting interrupted Seyfert's trip to the "promised land" in a yellow, dilapidated bus from the family's home in Tucson, Ariz.

The gunfight was touched off when Seyfert's wife, Arlene Seyfert, 34, fled from the bus and reported to sheriff's deputies that her husband had planned to harm her and her four-year-old daughter, Roberta.

When the deputies stopped the bus, Seyfert came out holding a .22 caliber pistol but dropped it on order. His sons took up the fight in turn and were cut down.

It was reported at first that Johnson killed Seyfert and the youngest boy. Later, an autopsy established the two had been shot with a .22, indicating the father had killed Tommy and shot himself.

Mrs. Seyfert described her husband as a religious fanatic who turned to reading revelations and stories about atom and hydrogen bombs three years ago.

Expected to be Saved
She said he packed the family into the bus to take them to the "promised land" where his family and 144,000 others would be saved. He carried $1,600 in the bus.

The distraught mother said the boys were trained to strict obedience of their father and adored him. She said he had ordered them to shoot if anyone stopped the bus.

Seyfert died on the steps of the bus, sprawled back onto the steps. His son, Tommy, lay at his feet when officers arrived in answer to Johnson's distress call.

Destroyer Yarnall In Port for Repairs

San Diego — The destroyer Yarnall was back in port for repairs today after being hit by a torpedo dummy fired in practice by the submarine Bugarra.

No one was injured when the dummy banged into the side of the destroyer, but the direct hit caused leaks which sent the ship limping back to port.

Torpedo dummies are supposed to pass under ships in practice.

Pilots Tell of Near-Collision

Washington — Two airline pilots advised the Airline Pilots Association Safety Committee today that they nearly collided while trying to avoid six Air Force jets 50 miles southwest of Las Vegas Monday.

They said the incident occurred at 2:07 p.m. (p.s.t.), a few hours after a United DC7 and an Air Force jet fighter collided in the same area, killing 49.

One plane was an American Airlines DC7; the other a Continental Airlines plane of unidentified type.

The pilots reported that six F100s, the same type that collided with the United plane, flew between them at 20,000 to 21,000 feet. They said they nearly collided with each other, trying to avoid the military planes.

The incident followed a previous report by another American Airlines pilot that three Air Force jets performed aerial acrobatics near his plane in the same area last Monday.

Good Business Is Seen by Tourist Industry in State

Portland — "Get ready for four years of Good Business" is the challenge of the tourist industry today, agreed directors of the Oregon Motor Court association, who concluded a two-day Spring board meeting in Portland.

Harry Cummings, Portland, state president of the motel, trailer park and resort organization, summarized the business outlook for Oregon's tourist trade as excellent. He pointed to the heavy promotion being done for major Pacific Northwest events, beginning with British Columbia's centennial celebration this year.

Brings Tourists
"Advertising by our Canadian neighbors will bring many tourists through Oregon this year," Cummings said. "Oregon's own centennial in 1959, followed by the projected World's Fair in Seattle for 1960 and 1961, and Idaho's centennial in 1961, indicates powerful advertising coupled with appealing reasons to visit the Pacific Northwest for the next four years."

Directors of OMCA, gathering in Portland from all parts of the state, took a look at the rapidly developing program of highway construction in Oregon. By unanimous vote, they proposed that additional funds needed to match federal funds available for highway improvements be raised partly from sources stimulated by the state's growing tourist trade.

The industry group endorsed an increase in the gasoline tax of one cent a gallon, which would place a share of the added costs upon the out-of-state users of Oregon's roads, but it opposed an increase in automobile license fees, which would come entirely out of the pockets of Oregon residents.

Abduction-Death Of Baby Studied

Kingsville, Tex. — Sheriff Jim Scarborough said today officers were trying to tie up the loose ends in the investigation of the abduction-death of 5-week-old Sandra Ann Carrick, who was found in bushes about 100 yards from her crib Tuesday.

The sheriff declined to elaborate. He said no arrests had been made.

The mother, Mrs. Margaret Carrick, said she was hanging clothes in the backyard when she discovered the baby was missing from her crib and started looking for her.

Cartoonist of Year Selected

New York — The National Cartoonists Society Tuesday night named Hal Foster, originator of the comic strip "Prince Valiant," as Cartoonist of the Year.

Foster, whose strip is distributed by the King Features Syndicate, accepted the group's Reuben statuette at the annual awards dinner at the Waldorf Astoria hotel. The presentation was made by Rube Goldberg, for whom the statuette was named.

Silver plaques were awarded to 10 other cartoonists. Frank King, who draws "Gasoline Alley" for the Chicago Tribune and the New York Daily News Syndicate, tied for the highest honors in the cartoon strip category.

Willard Mullin, of the New York World-Telegram and Sun, a Scripps-Howard newspaper, received a plaque as the year's best sports cartoonist. First place in editorial cartooning was tied between Herbert L. Block (Herblock) of the Washington Post and Times Herald and Bill Crawford of the Newark (N.J.) News.

Other winners included Walt Disney, for animation; Russell Patterson, for advertising; John Gallagher, for gags; Jimmy Hatlo, for panels; and Wallace Wood, for comic books.

Warsaw — Polish Premier Jozef Cyrankiewicz today ordered the profits from state-run lotteries diverted to aid victims of floods in eastern Poland. The lotteries, which take 50 per cent of the money wagered, are the country's most profitable enterprises.

Washington Governor Urges Tax Reduction

Washington — Gov. Albert D. Rosellini of Washington called for tax reduction as part of an eight-point program to combat the recession. Personal income taxes and excise levies on items consumers buy should be reduced to stimulate buying, the Democratic governor told the House Banking Committee.

Rosellini was the eighth governor to appear before the committee which is seeking ways of coping with unemployment. The state executives have given varying prescriptions for halting the business slump.

Among First
Rosellini said his state was among the first to be hit by the economic downturn which is now "spread across the nation." Among Washington industries hurt by the recession, he cited lumber, aircraft, aluminum and copper, paper and processed foods and machinery.

In addition to cutting taxes, Rosellini said Congress should improve unemployment compensation laws, provide help in financing small and middle-size businesses, increase federal aid to schools, expand military facilities, stimulate construction of low-cost housing, step up work on irrigation and reclamation projects and provide direct grants to help states and local communities to establish new industries.

Moving House Snaps Telephone Cable

Vancouver, Wash. — About 2,500 telephones were out of order at Mill Plain, an area east of here, Tuesday night after a house being moved along a street broke a telephone cable containing 1,800 telephone wires.

The accident severed 20 spans of steel cable, the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company said.

A crew of repairmen was assigned to the damage, and the company said service probably wouldn't be back to normal before noon today.

Yamhill Raids Net 11 for Gambling

McMinnville — City, county and state law enforcement agencies raided eight Yamhill county establishments Tuesday night and took 11 persons into custody on charges of conducting alleged gambling devices.

The raids were made in McMinnville, Newberg and Carlton. Sixteen law enforcement officers took part in the raids and confiscated eight pinball machines and three horseshoe machines.

District Attorney James Craig said the raids were the result of reported cash payoffs received by 14 undercover officers last weekend. Those taken into custody posted $100 bail each.

New Hampshire was one of the early colonies that derived wealth from its natural resources rather than from its use of the soil.
