Britain Sends More Troops Into Aden

London — (AP) — Britain rushed more troops into Aden Tuesday to try to head off an Aden-Yemen border war that could lead to new conflict between Britain and Egypt.

British concern over the Yemen's recurrent feud with the British colony and protectorate of Aden arose last month when Yemen joined President Gamal Abdel Nasser's United Arab Republic last March 8.

Reports of Russian arms pouring into Yemen and an Egyptian-backed plot to incite Aden tribesmen against Britain alarmed British officials.

COMPOSER DIES

Paris — (AP) — Spanish composer Manuel Infante died suddenly on Monday. He had been rushed to a hospital here the previous day after suffering a heart attack.

REBELS TRAIN IN EGYPT

The Medical Roundup

by Walter Alvarez

Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic
Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation

Electroshock Treatments

Many people ask about electroshock treatments. I can recommend them highly in cases of hereditary depression in which the person, without obvious reason gets blue, discouraged, utterly miserable and perhaps unable to do anything. Often in such cases half a dozen shocks will cause the person to come right out of his melancholia. In the old days the shocks were so violent that bones were broken, but now the current is lighter, and it is turned on only for a part of a second, and hence I no longer hear of broken bones. The current takes away consciousness so instantly that there should be no pain, but because many persons are so fearful of the procedure, many psychiatrists give, first, a little injection of sodium pentothal, which instantly puts the patient to sleep and removes all anxiety. After a series of shocks, there may be some loss of memory, but this should come back.

Dr. Alvarez

Some of my psychiatric friends doubt the wisdom of going on and giving 20 or 30 shocks when five show no sign of working a cure. As they say, when the shocks don't work, they begin to wonder if they have the right type of case for that form of treatment. For instance, the last time I saw a man who was no better for 25 shocks, I learned from the family that he had never been depressed. What he had had were three little strokes that had left him slowed-up, utterly miserable and unable to work. The other patient I saw recently who hadn't been helped by many shock treatments proved to have an unrecognized epilepsy that had made him slowed-up and had made him look as if he was depressed. In both of these cases my friend, the psychiatrist, regretted the failure in diagnosis but, as he said, he was doing the best he could, terribly over-worked and short-handed.

Dr. Alvarez hopes his readers will understand that it would be impossible for him to answer requests for information or to attempt to diagnose by mail.
