

Killer Tornado in Southeast; Plains Get Snow, Strong Winds

By UNITED PRESS
A line of thunderstorms and a killer tornado lashed the Southeast Tuesday, and a new storm, described as one of the spring's worst, rumbled out of the Rockies into the Plains.

The western storm began pushing eastward Tuesday night, dumping four inches of snow at Sheridan, Wyo., and lashing other sections with strong winds and thunderstorms.

Weathermen issued warnings to stockmen and travelers today of snow, rain and high northerly winds in portions of South Dakota, Nebraska and Kansas.

Rain continued in the East during the night in the wake of Tuesday's squall line that sent three and possibly four tornadoes slamming into South Carolina.

Twister Kills Boy
A 5-year-old boy, Willie Edward Cater, was killed when a twister near Summerton, S.C., crushed his family's concrete cinder block home. The victim's sister was injured seriously.

Other twisters were reported at Kingsree, and in a rural area in Orangeburg, S.C., and a possible tornado was reported near Sumter, S.C. No serious damage was reported in the other twisters.

Rain ranged from North Carolina into New England, with locally heavy storms soaking Washington and Baltimore, Md., with more than one-half inch of water.

Wind up to 50 miles an hour whipped up towering dust clouds in the Southern and Central Plains. Considerable blowing dust was reported from the Southern Plains into Western Texas, and in portions of Nebraska and Kansas.

Mudballs in Sky
Omaha, Neb., was hit by a combination of rain and blowing dust Tuesday night and a pilot said he saw mudballs about 10,000 feet over Goodland, Kan., due to rain mixed with dust.

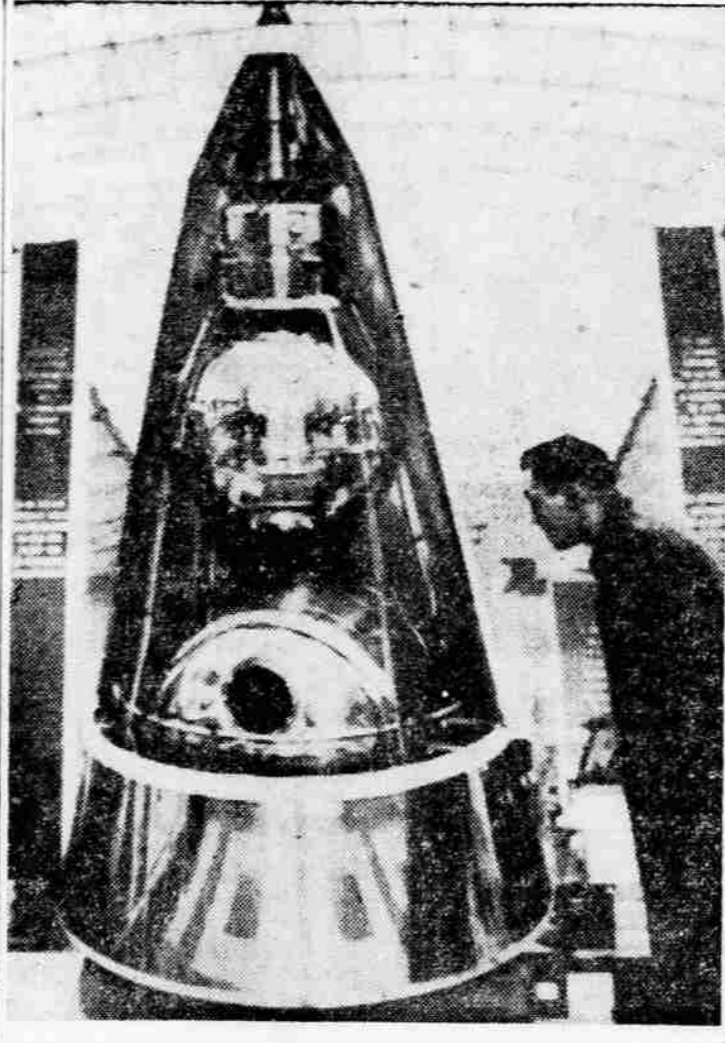

In Colorado, heavy snow obscured the Rocky Mountains in the vicinity of Denver.

The northerly winds sent the mercury tumbling to the 30s from the northern Rockies to the northern Great Lakes overnight. Weathermen said the cold could be damaging to stockmen in the midst of calving and lambing operations on the plains.

Showers in Northwest
Scattered thunderstorms occurred in advance of the storm from the Central Plains to Missouri. Showers also were reported in the Pacific Northwest and in the northern Great Lakes and Upper Ohio Valley.

Forecasters said colder weather was expected to over-spread most of the Plains today with showers in the southern portions spreading eastward across the Mississippi Valley and into parts of the Ohio Valley and Great Lakes by night.

Generally fair weather was seen for most of the Middle and South Atlantic Coast states with some rain likely in the North Atlantic region.

Woodburn Slaying Due Grand Jury

Woodburn—A 14-year-old neighbor boy has admitted firing a shot which killed 15-year-old John Edward Manning at his farm home near here Monday night.

Police said Edward "Rick" Ferschweiler told them the shooting was accidental. He tearfully admitted his .22 caliber rifle went off when he changed hands with the hammer cocked.

The lad, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Ferschweiler, was not being held as State Police and Marion county sheriff's deputies completed their investigation.

District Attorney Hattie Bratzel said in Salem that she would present the matter to a grand jury Thursday afternoon or Friday morning to determine if charges should be filed.

Manning's horrified parents returned from a Parent-Teachers' Association meeting about 11:15 p.m. Monday to find their adopted son sprawled in the front yard with a bullet through his body. He had been outside doing farm chores when they left at 7:30 p.m.

The shooting occurred at St. Louis, a small community about one mile north of here, as the boy's sister, Mary Ann, 12, and Virgil Klingner, a cousin of Mrs. Manning, sat inside viewing television.

Two Arrested in Connection With Theft of Bonds

New York—Federal authorities were closing the gaps today in a story of international intrigue stemming from the largest bond robbery in North American history.

The FBI arrested two men Tuesday in connection with the tracking of part of the $1,789,400 in negotiable bonds stolen Jan. 25 from La Societe Nationale de Fiducie in Montreal.

Edward Lorie, owner of the Trojan Paper Mills, Inc., of New York, was arrested in Miami with $36,000 worth of the bonds in his possession, the FBI said.

Police Alerted
John D. Greco, owner of the Puritan Paper and Pulp Co., Inc., also of New York, was arrested here on charges of transporting more than $5,000 worth of the Canadian bonds from New York to Miami.

A world-wide police alert has been out since the robbery. Police in Montreal recovered $73,000 worth of the bonds in an apartment raid April 9.

The Montreal raid also uncovered a cache of heroin worth $1 million on the retail market. This led police to believe the robbery was tied in with operation of an international narcotics ring.

Another batch of the bonds turned up in Switzerland recently in the possession of a man identified only as Grazini. He told police after his arrest he had received the securities as payment from a gambling casino in Havana, Cuba.

Skilled Thieves
The FBI began its investigation when "information was obtained" that some of the stolen bonds were being offered in the United States.
