

Quigg Sees a Lot on Big Ship; Talks With Abdicating World Citizen No. 1

By DOC QUIGG

United Press Correspondent
New York—If you just stick around aboard a big incoming luxury liner long enough, as the press is privileged to do, strange bits of intelligence leap at you in the hours of docking.

The other day I went to the S. S. Constitution to greet that fine figure of a former queen, Soraya of Iran, who was uncrowned and divorced because she hadn't produced an heir to the throne.

And I wound up yak-yak-

king with one Sol Gareth Davis, commonly known as Gary, who says that after 10 hectic years, he is voluntarily abdicating as World Citizen No. 1 and — with $1.10 in his pocket — coming home to roost, if he can get his citizenship back.

Danced With Italian

Between the ex-queen and Gary Davis, there was an informative interlude with a member of the ship's company who disclosed that Soraya had danced, aboard, with a tall Italian nobleman. "He left the ship at Algeiras" and that Soraya's brother had learned from three shipmates the American game of shooting dice. "He played it all the time, but he never did pronounce the name right. He kept calling it 'scrap's'."

The abdicating world citizen crusader, Davis, pointed out that it would be just one decade, come May 25, since he began crusading. He said that if he can get back his citizenship, which he renounced, "I intend to be a respectable American citizen."

He returned home under an immigrant visa from Naples. But he pointed out that his visa application states he is a resident of New York. He said that although he is classified as a resident alien, it is hard to immigrate into a place in which you are already listed as a resident.

Jailed Often

Davis estimates that in his 10 years as a world citizen he did time in "a dozen or so prisons and ship's brig's." He said he has no regrets whatsoever: "My renunciation was in no way an act of disloyalty. America is part of the world. In the space age, we're all world citizens."

However, he said that "my one-man crusade is over."

Standing a little to one side at this point was a distinguished looking elderly gentleman with flowing white hair who looked disturbingly familiar. In his hand he held a statement from "the world citizens of the U. S." welcoming Davis home. Then I saw "his name, among 12 others, at the bottom: Dr. Hsiley Boone, clergyman."

I had not recognized him because I had never seen him dressed. When I knew him, he was indeed a clergyman but also was leader of the American nudist movement. Now he's switched causes. As I say, you see a lot on a big ship.

SP Rate Protest Fight Scheduled

San Francisco—Members of the week-old California Forest Products Shippers Association prepared today to open their campaign against a proposed Southern Pacific rate decrease which they claimed would flood California with Oregon lumber.

The association's first step was to hire a lawyer. Then it planned to open a drive to raise funds from all California lumber products manufacturers for the protest fight, to be carried to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The group was organized in Redding last week. London—The London Anti-Vice Council said today it is going out of business for lack of support and will give its funds to the Sunshine Home for Blind Babies. Formed three years ago, the council has tried to combat prostitution in the city by rehabilitating the girls concerned. The council said that during the past year it had received donations of $59.43—roughly the equivalent of a prostitute's earnings in one evening.
