

Kitchen, Other Equipment in New Hospital

MEALS FOR PATIENTS WILL BE PREPARED IN KITCHEN IN BUILDING BASEMENT

In every hospital, there is much more than the patient or visitor actually sees. There is the kitchen where food is prepared for patients, water distillers because hospitals require large amounts of distilled water, machines to keep equipment sterile. There are facilities for heating, laundering equipment, and many hidden pipes and ducts.

In the new hospital there also is a chapel, conference rooms, a cafeteria and a snack bar and gift shop. The latter is just inside the main entrance.

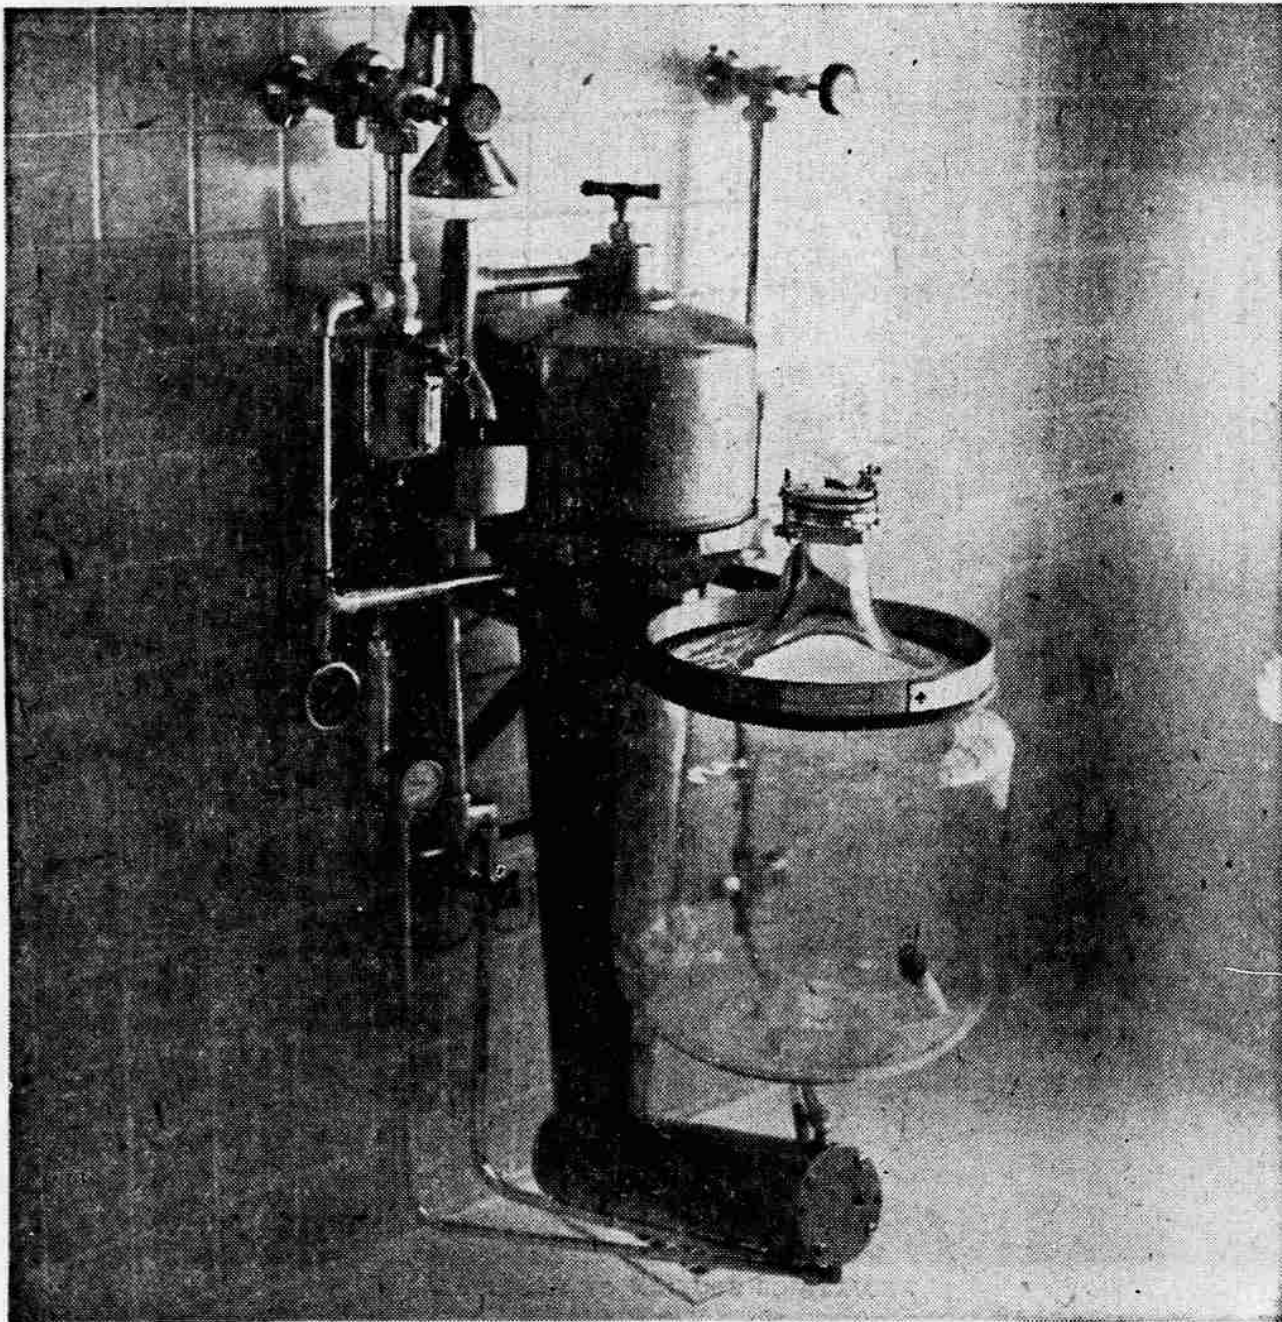

Among construction features which visitors tomorrow and Sunday will notice is the conductive tile floors in the operating and delivery rooms so there will be no static electricity. Rubber tile was used in the corridors, vinyl tile elsewhere.

The heating system is hot water convector radiation, with outdoor thermometers anticipating temperature changes in advance and regulating the flow of hot water in four zones.

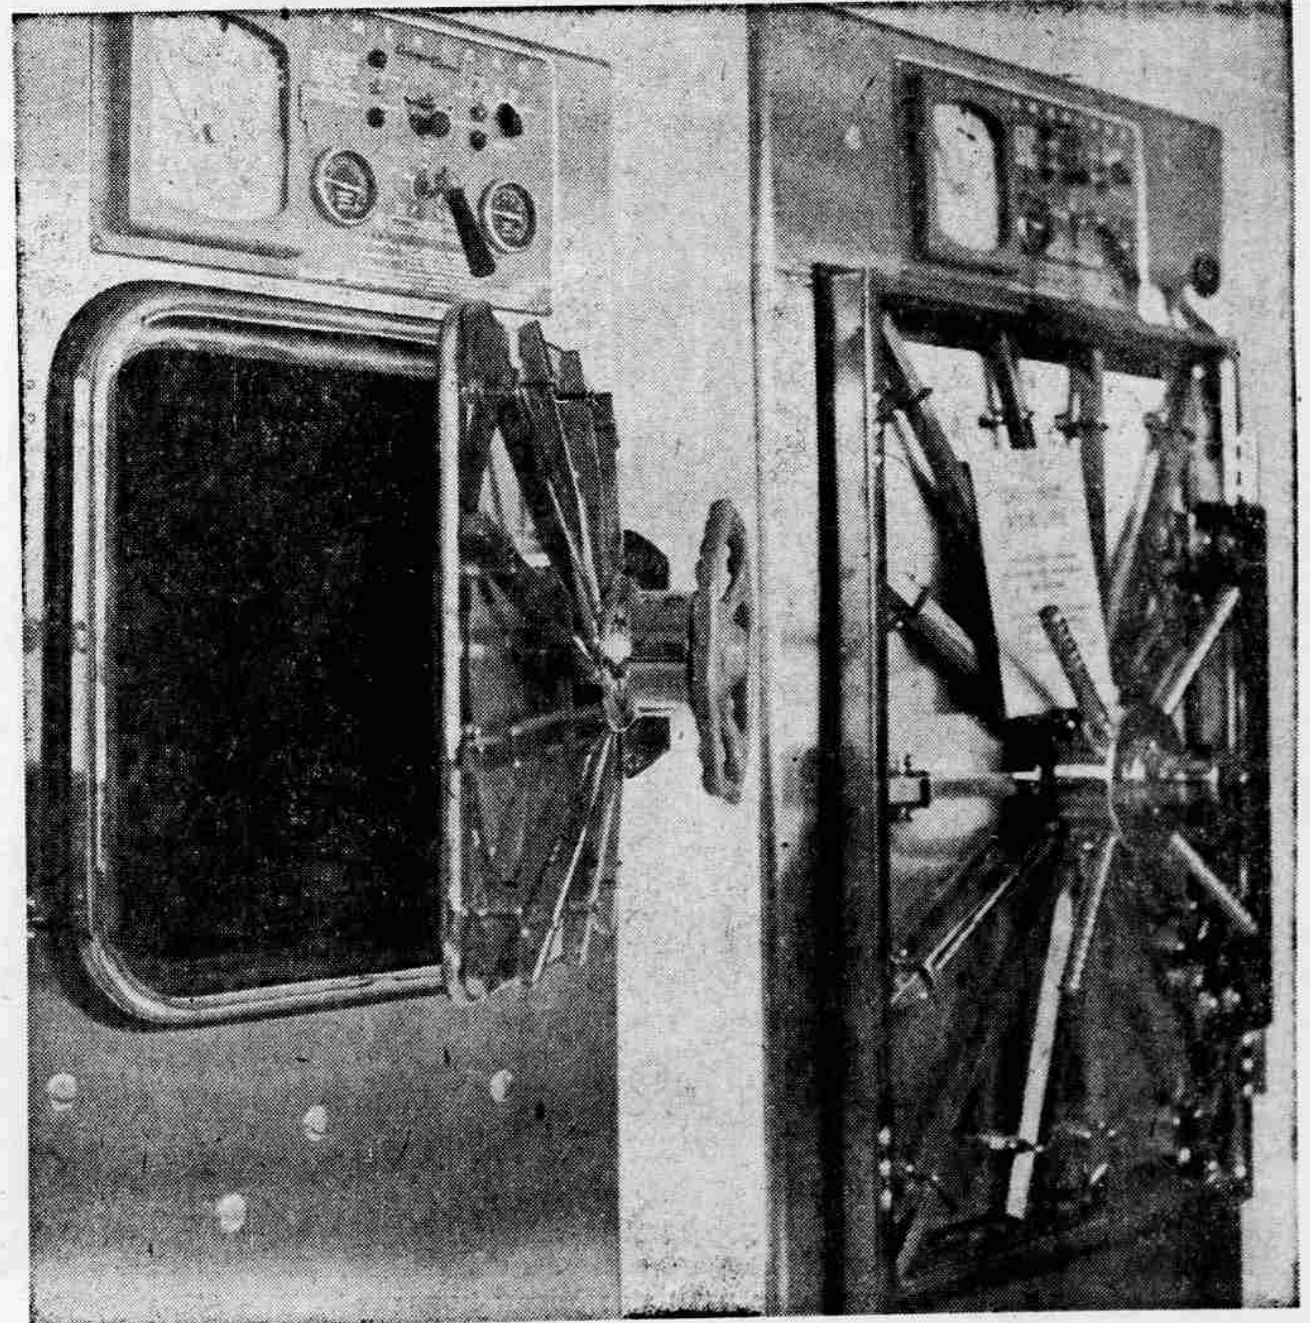

There are special locker and lounging rooms for all hospital personnel, including the lay-help, practical and graduate nurses and the medical staff.

Patient rooms contain clothes closet, toilet, wash bowl, baths in three rooms, showers in five rooms, night light, high light, low light, oxygen, suction, power outlet, and private telephone, if desired. They also include television and radio antennae, and a two-way call system to nurses.

Many of the pictures in this section were taken by Carl Landis, Medford photographer, Brainerd's, and staff members of the Mail Tribune. Engravings were made by Medford Engraving.
