The passing of Art Tatum a year ago left a deep void in jazz, but Verve has come along with three fine albums which feature the great piano work of this

IT'S DANCE TIME: There's good news for dancers who like to cut a rug in their own home. "Let's Go Dancing," with Ted Steele and his band, is Bethlehem's contribution; Mom and Pop will like "Dream Time" featuring Wayne King on Decca; "Let's Dance with the Three Suns" is RCA's toe-tapper for all ages; and Perez Prado's "Mambo Happy," on Camden, should please the Latin lovers.

COVERING THE CLASSICS: RCA-Victor has released a two-record album titled "The Best of Caruso," which should be heard by all classicists. Reproduction of numbers sung and recorded as early as 1904 is excellent. Antonio Vivaldi's "L'Es-tro Armonico," a three-record Vanguard package featuring Mario Rossio conducting the Chamber Orchestra of the Vienna State Opera, is a must for all collectors. "Music for Strings," Capitol's latest Leopold Stokowski recording, maintains the quality and pace set by this noted maestro in his previous outings. For an hour of excellent Haydn, whirl Mercury's "Symphony No. 100 in G 'Military' and Symphony No. 101 in D Major" as played by the London Symphony Orchestra under the baton of Antal Dorati.

jazz giant. Included are "The Art Tatum-Buddy DeFranco Quartet," "Makin' Whoopee," and "The Art Tatum-Ben Webster Quartet." You'll probably want to add all three to your collection of jazzomania. "Jazz Ultimate" is a Capitol entry featuring Bobby Hackett and Jack Teagarden, while RCA brings us "Any Old Time" featuring Artie Shaw and his band as recorded in the late '30s and '40s.
