By BENNETT CERF

WHO ARE the richest men in America today? Fortune Magazine revealed that the very richest was a J.P. all right, but not J. P. Morgan. No, it was an oil tycoon; name, J. P. Getty. Then, in the order named, come H. L. Hunt of Texas, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Arthur Vining Davis, and a quartet of Mellons. A couple of million dollars more or less behind the front-runners are Sid Richardson, Howard Hughes, Joe Kennedy, Daniel Ludwig, Alfred Sloan, Jr., Mrs. Frederick Guest, and a slew of Duponts. Women, it has been said, are gradually acquiring the wealth of the nation, but in this top echelon there's only one. Better look again a decade hence!

Heartfelt couplet by Hilaire Belloc:
 "I'm tired of Love. I'm still more tired of Rhyme.
 But Money gives me pleasure all the time."

Lumber Workers Receive Benefits

Salem — One out of three unemployment compensation checks issued in Oregon during the last nine months went to a worker whose last job was in the lumber or wood products industry.

The State Unemployment Compensation Commission reported that idled lumber and wood products workers have received 320,589 benefit checks since July 1, 1957. This is 33.4 per cent of the 959,219 checks issued to workers from all industrial groups since then.

Lumber workers received $11,913,502 in benefits during the period.

The sum is nearly $3,500,000 higher than last year at this time for lumber workers, but represents a smaller percentage of the total benefits paid.

Unemployed construction workers received the second highest amount of unemployment compensation this benefit year with their 134,970 checks totaling $5,026,603, nearly twice as much as last year.
