

RUSSIA ASKED TO END FEAR OF ATTACK

Bar Members Prefer Judge Kelly, Main

Heavy majorities of attorneys in the first judicial district favor Edward C. Kelly and James M. Main for circuit judges, a secret preferential poll conducted by the Oregon State Bar association showed today.

Kelly, who is seeking to succeed himself as circuit court judge, Position No. 3, received 73 votes, and Walter D. Nunley, Medford attorney who is seeking the position, received 8 votes.

Main, present district court judge, received 58 votes for circuit court, Position No. 1, in the poll, while Manville M. Heisel, Medford attorney who has since withdrawn from the race, received 22. Robert D. Dames, Medford attorney, received 5 votes.

Bashaw Favored
Medford City Attorney E. R. Bashaw got 52 votes in the preferential poll for district court judge, and Robert G. Danielson, Ashland, who has since withdrawn, received 6 votes.

Attorneys throughout the state were eligible to vote in the poll on the two contested supreme court positions.

George Rossmann, Salem, who is seeking Position No. 7, received 1,523 votes, and Jason Lee, Salem, who also is candidate for position No. 7, received 182. For Supreme Court position No. 3, Gordon

Neuberger Bill on Termination OK'd

Washington — The Senate Interior Affairs Committee today unanimously approved for passage the Klamath reservation termination bill introduced by Sen. Richard L. Neuberger (D-Ore.).

The bill includes an amendment offered by Neuberger, with approval of the administration, to write a $90 million ceiling into purchase funds authorized by legislation.

Neuberger said following the committee meeting that "unanimous passage of this bill for purchase of Klamath tribal resources by either private industry or the U.S. government is a triumph for effective bipartisan action."

Neuberger said bipartisan action has been "absolutely essential" in the best interests of the Klamath Indians and the entire regional economy of the Pacific Northwest.

The measure would offer tribal assets first to private industry with the government buying the remainder.

Sewer Committee To Meet Tonight

A meeting of the Grandview-Kenwood sewer district committee will be held in the Medford city council chambers at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

Residents living on Springbrook rd., between Delta Waters rd. and Buckshot Hill rd., are urged to attend the meeting, according to City Manager Robert Duff. He said plans for construction of a main along the Springbrook rd. section will be discussed.

Duff added that plans for the sewer are "fairly well along."

Centennial Commission's Hardest Job Is To Sell Residents on Celebration

The hardest job of the Oregon Centennial commission is to sell the residents of Oregon on their own state, according to Chairman Anthony Brandenthaler, Baker, who spoke to the Roundtable group of the Jackson County Chamber of Commerce Monday noon.

He said the job of selling the centennial to other nations and residents of other states was not as hard as the selling job required by Oregon residents. He said the event is planned to be "state-wide," although the major attraction, an exposition and trade fair, will be held in Portland.

Too Large
He said the Stanford Research Institute made a survey of the state and said a "world's fair" would be too large to be commercially possible, and a commemorative series of events would not produce the lasting economic boost to Oregon which a trade and exposition fair would.

Sloan, Astoria, received 1,083 votes; Boyd R. Overhulse, Madras, 329; and Samuel M. Bowe, Grants Pass, got 290 votes.

Lawyers living in the judicial district of candidates for whom their preference was expressed were eligible, and in district court contests, only lawyers living in the county of the candidate were eligible.

A total of 2,200 ballots were mailed, and there were 1,764 valid ballots.

Manville Heisel Withdraws from Judgeship Race

Manville M. Heisel, Medford attorney and candidate for Jackson county circuit judge, today confirmed reports that he is withdrawing his candidacy.

Since he filed for the non-partisan position a number of business matters have come up which make it necessary that he leave the political campaign, Heisel explained.

His withdrawal leaves Robert Dames, Medford attorney, and District Court Judge James Main as contenders for position No. 1 of the first judicial district.

Heisel stated emphatically that he is not throwing his support to either of the other two candidates.

Heisel's name still will appear on the ballot, since it is too late for him to withdraw "officially," but if he were by chance nominated, despite his withdrawal, he could refuse the nomination.

GM To Terminate UAW Pact May 29

Detroit — General Motors today notified the United Auto Workers it wishes to terminate its present contract May 29 when the contract expires.

The nation's biggest auto company took the unusual step in an apparent effort to block the union's strategy in carrying bargaining through the summer on a day to day basis without signing a new contract.

General Motors and Ford Monday turned down the union's deal for a three-month contract extension, and countered with proposals to extend the present contracts for another two years.

Just before the companies rejected the temporary union extension offer, UAW Vice President Leonard Woodcock had told newsmen that "It's all right with us if they don't take our offer. We can rock and roll through the summer with this thing if that's what they want."

Thornton Rules on Delegation of Power

Salem — The Legislature can not delegate to the Board of Control the power to discontinue or abolish state institutions located outside Marion county by a special vote of the people, Attorney General Robert Y. Thornton said today.

Commissioner Thomas Vaughan of Portland is in charge of historical, research, design, decorations and nationality groups. He urged members of the Roundtable to write out-of-state friends and tell them about the activities planned for the centennial year.

Floyd Maxwell, managing director of the Portland fair, said the event would be the first of its kind west of Chicago. He said the fair would cover 65 acres with additional land to be rented for parking.

Reserve Space
Twenty-two counties have reserved space for the trade fair, he said. He expected several additional counties to take part. A display of atoms-for-peace also will be at the fair, this being some of the equipment now on display at the Brussels World fair.

Other things planned for the fair are a complete lumber boom town, an Indian village and a Lewis and Clark village, he added.

The commission held a regular meeting here in the morning.

Commissioner Bruce Bishop of Portland reported to the group of the many problems of the Portland municipal participation in the centennial year. Bishop is in charge of labor, science, engineering, health, welfare and for the Portland municipal participation.

Commissioner Jack Lively of Springfield is in charge of the state planning, counties, military, civil service and fraternal groups. He said a great deal of the state and county planning is being handled by Ted Hallock, state coordinator.

Vanguard Fails To Orbit

Third Stage of Navy's Rocket Fails To Ignite

Another Launching Soon Being Planned

Washington — The Navy today blamed a faulty wire for the failure of its Vanguard satellite to go into orbit Monday night after reaching a 300-mile altitude.

Cape Canaveral, Fla. — The Navy flung its Vanguard into space Monday night, but the rocket's third stage failed to ignite and crashed back into the ocean still clasp the hoped-for third U. S. satellite.

The Navy is now pushing plans for launching another Vanguard in less than a month carrying a similar 20-inch artificial moon.

"We will go right at it," said John P. Hagen, Vanguard Project director for the Naval Research Laboratory in Washington. He admitted, however, that the unsuccessful flight "was a great disappointment."

All Started Well
Spokesmen said preliminary data received during the Vanguard's flight indicated all went well for about 10 minutes—until the crucial instant some 300 miles above ground when the solid fuel third stage was scheduled to ignite and kick free of the second stage.

What went amiss would not be known until data received here and at the Air Force's downrange tracking stations was sorted through by technicians of the Naval Research Lab and the Martin company, prime contractor for the Vanguard.

Plunged Into Sea
The third stage evidently never separated from the second stage and plunged like a ballistic missile into the Atlantic some 1,500 miles southeast of the launching site, dooming the "chirping" sound of the satellite's radio voice to the silence of the sea.

The second stage was scheduled to land about where it did, but not with the third stage still attached.

The Defense Department said there was no chance of recovering the rocket's remains.

Gold Hill Youth Places in Contest

David Mack, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Mack, Gold Hill, and a senior at Crater High School, Central Point, placed second in the Future Farmers of America regional public speaking contest in Helena, Mont., last night, according to word received here.

Mack represented Oregon at the contest, which included contestants from 11 western states.

He is president of the Crater chapter of FFA, and was accompanied to Helena by George Gillman, treasurer of the Crater chapter.

Crane Will Seek Custody of Cheryl

Hollywood — Stephen Crane will try to win full custody of Cheryl Crane, 14, who was made a ward of Juvenile Court and placed in her grandmother's temporary custody after the teen-ager killed the boyfriend of her mother, actress Lana Turner.

Crane's press representative said today that Crane would appeal the ruling of last Thursday which sent Cheryl to live for the next two months with Mrs. Mildred Turner pending further disposition of the case.

"He feels he should appeal on grounds that she was made a ward of the court," the representative said. "He's ready, willing and able to exercise full parental needs. He does not feel she should be a court ward."

"Crane isn't mad at Lana or Mrs. Turner. He just feels that this is the right thing to do."

No Charges Slated in Beating of G. Pass Boy

Salem — No charge will be filed concerning the beating of 17-year-old Charles White, Grants Pass, at MacLaren school for boys, Marion County District Attorney Hatie Bretzel said today.

The decision came after a meeting with school officials to study the incident which involved three other MacLaren boys.

The injured boy received kidney surgery last week at a Salem hospital and will return to school in a few days.

Barbara Burns' Marriage Disclosed

Los Angeles — Barbara Burns, 20, daughter of the late comedian Bob (Bazooka) Burns, has wed David J. Mack, 24, film technician accused of supplying her with heroin.

Marriage of the couple was revealed Monday in Superior Court when the red-haired Miss Burns appeared to show cause why she should not testify against Mack.

MEDFORD MALL TRIBUNE

53rd Year Price 10 Cents MEDFORD, OREGON, TUESDAY, APRIL 29, 1958 No. 33

Senator Morse to Speak at Jaycee Awards Luncheon

700 Delegates Are Expected in Medford

Sen. Wayne Morse is expected to speak briefly at a special awards luncheon Saturday noon, which will be a highlight of the 1958 Oregon State Junior Chamber of Commerce convention here Friday, Saturday and Sunday, according to John Gustafson, convention chairman.

The luncheon will be held at 12:15 p.m. in the Elks' club basement. The state winner of the "Speak Up, Jaycee" contest will speak also. The luncheon will feature broiled chicken by the Oregon Broiler's association.

Registration for the approximately 700 delegates and their wives expected here will start Friday afternoon at the Medford hotel, convention headquarters.

Committee meetings will begin early Friday evening to be followed by a Friday night mixer and dance at the former Acme Hardware building at 3 West Sixth st. A buffet dinner will be served at 7:15 p.m. and continue throughout the evening. The Tunesmiths will provide dance music starting at 10 p.m.

Informal Breakfast
Saturday morning an informal breakfast will be served at the Medford hotel and will be followed by business sessions at the Holly theater.

Welcoming the delegates Saturday morning will be Mayor John Snider, Police Chief Charles Champlin and Medford Jaycee President Gardner.

While here he was entertained at the home of Mrs. J. W. Barnard, 47 Renault ave., discussed his campaign while visiting the Medford downtown area and visited friends here.

Wallace said he is basing his campaign on a constructive platform: to reduce taxes by drastic economy in spending the taxpayers' money.

Wallace said he plans, if nominated and elected, to revalue and analyze the budgets submitted by the various state government departments. Through competent administration he said he hopes to eliminate waste and duplication.

Representative Citizens
A committee of representative citizens would be used to assist in the government study, he added.

Wallace said he is campaigning for the best teachers at the best salaries and elimination of the frills on the modern school buildings.

Wallace has served as Democratic representative from Multnomah county in 1935, 1943, 1945 and 1947.

He has run for governor on the Democratic ticket twice before, once against Earl Snell in the general election of 1942, and in the general election of 1948 against Douglas McKay.

Pleven's Decision Undergoes Threat

Paris — Socialists and right wing Independents threatened today to wreck former Premier Rene Pleven's decision to try to form a new government.

Pleven agreed formally Monday night to make an attempt to put together a coalition cabinet and end France's two-week-old government crisis.

To succeed in the attempt, he must have the support of both the Independents and the Socialists. The Independents control more than 100 votes in the 596-seat National Assembly and the Socialists 96.

The Socialists meet Friday to decide what to do, which means Pleven probably will not know until the end of the week just how much chance he stands.

Big Threes To Reject Demands by Russia

Washington — The Western Big Three plan speedy rejection of Russia's demand that Poland and Czechoslovakia be included in all summit negotiations in Moscow, diplomatic sources said today.

OTI Instructors Believed Victims Of Asphyxiation

Klamath Falls — Three instructors at Oregon Technical Institute who had been reported missing on a week end fishing trip were found dead today, apparently of asphyxiation, state police reported.

A state patrolman radioed his headquarters here that the bodies were found in a vehicle near the Little Deschutes river about 75 or 100 miles northwest of Klamath Falls.

Coroner Dispatched
A deputy coroner from Klamath Falls was sent to the scene.

The instructors, John C. Roman, 47; George A. Harper Jr., 40; and Roy Perky, 49, left here on a week end fishing trip at the opening of the season in a bus they had converted into a camping vehicle. The bodies were found in the bus at the foot of Odell Butte, off Highway 58, police said. They apparently died Saturday night.

Families Alarmed
The trio had been expected to return Sunday night. No immediate concern was felt but their families and friends became alarmed late Monday and a widespread search started today. Four planes from here had taken off to help in the hunt.

The three were instructors in the auto technology department at OTI.

Roman had gone to Oregon Tech from Astoria. Harper was a former Portland gunsmith and Perky formerly lived in Eugene.

Mrs. Kunkel Named To City Committee

Mrs. Owen A. Kunkel, 28 Highland dr., has been appointed to the city's subcommittee on recreation, according to Mayor John Snider.

The committee is part of the overall committee on parks and recreation, which is studying these subjects and which will make recommendations to the city council.

The subcommittee is meeting at noon today in Hawthorne park for further consideration of proposed recreational programs.

Pleven's Decision Undergoes Threat

"Well, Men, What'll We Refrain From Doing Now?"

Bids Called for Experiment Station

Bids will be opened May 19 in the county court office for construction of an office, laboratory, refrigeration and ripening rooms for fruit, storage and equipment, and caretaker's home at the new Southern Oregon Experiment station on the old Hanley property near Jacksonville, according to Superintendent Harold White.

If the low bid is acceptable, he said, construction will start immediately.

Meanwhile the farm has been seeded except for transplanting tomato plants and corn for the fertilizer experiments. White said that 25 acres will be levelled by the end of the week. A portion of this will be planted to fruit. The entire property totals 81 and 4/10 acres.

Other Work
Other work expected to be completed by the end of the week includes installation of pumps to be connected with the sump pump to provide irrigation water. Irrigation ditches for the horticulture experiment area are expected to be finished today. Sprinkler irrigation will be used on the area used for experiments in agronomy (growing of grain and similar plants).

White said horticulture will occupy five to six acres of the land and the balance will be used for agronomy. As work progresses, horticulture will have additional plantings and

'Booster' Banquet Will Open Buy Now Campaign

John I. Sell, Eugene, assistant vice president of the First National Bank of Portland, will speak at a "booster" banquet at 7 o'clock tonight at the Rogue Valley Country club to launch the 10-day campaign to "Keep Medford's Economy Rolling—You Auto Buy Now."

The campaign, spearheaded by the Medford Automobile Dealers association and supported by other community groups, is designed to stimulate consumer buying.

Entertainment Planned
About 200 business leaders are expected to attend the dinner, according to Hugh Coleman and Darrell Miller, co-chairmen of the campaign. Also on tonight's program is musical entertainment by the Medford High school orchestra, a special "automotive world" dance number and other events.

The parade is planned to bring attention to values offered by new car dealers in connection with the campaign.

Washington — The United States called upon the Soviet Union today to remove fear of massive surprise attack by agreeing to a zone of inspection in the Arctic.

But both in Moscow and on the floor of the Security Council, Russia renewed its demands that the U. S. halt its H-bomb alert missions. In Moscow, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko said either the U. S. must halt such flights or bear "grave responsibilities" for possible consequences.

Arctic Inspection Said Safeguard Against Invasion

Gromyko Renews Demand on Flights

United Nations, N. Y. — The United States called upon the Soviet Union today to remove fear of massive surprise attack by agreeing to a zone of inspection in the Arctic.

But both in Moscow and on the floor of the Security Council, Russia renewed its demands that the U. S. halt its H-bomb alert missions. In Moscow, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko said either the U. S. must halt such flights or bear "grave responsibilities" for possible consequences.

Russia Charged That U. S. Proposal Was a Diversionary Move
Russia charged that the U. S. proposal was a diversionary move to detract attention from H-bomber flights while seeking to spy on Soviet territory.

A Soviet resolution, placed before a UN council meeting which is overwhelmingly in favor of the U. S. plan, demanded that the questions of safeguard be placed before a summit meeting.

U. S. Bomber Flights
U. S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, introducing a resolution calling for a northern inspection zone, told the Security Council its session "could mark the turn in the road for which humanity has been looking."

The Soviet charge and the American safeguard proposal arose chiefly from a dispatch by United Press President Frank E. Bartholomew describing alert missions of U. S. Strategic Air Command bombers and the "fail safe" system which prevented the bombers from proceeding on false missions.

In Moscow, Gromyko said it would be "quite natural" under present circumstances for the Soviet Union to send its own H-bombers flying toward the U. S.

The U. S. proposal would place under international inspection Alaska, the Aleutians, Russia's Kamchatka Peninsula and the Kurile Islands, and all territory from the Arctic Circle to the North Pole.

Referring to Gromyko's statement of last week, which referred directly to the Bartholomew dispatch Lodge told the council:

Question of Geography
"If Mr. Gromyko's statement represents a sincere concern — no matter how groundless — surely the Soviet Union will agree that the establishment of an acceptable system of inspection would be desirable."

"Geography makes it apparent that inspection in the Arctic area can be at least the first line of approach to the problem of surprise attack. We are loath to believe that the Soviet government wants to deny its people the kind of safeguards which would make surprise attack virtually impossible."

Porter Says Nuclear Tests To Start Friday

Washington — Rep. Charles O. Porter (D-Ore.) says the spring-summer series of U. S. nuclear tests will begin Friday at the Eniwetok Proving Grounds.

The Atomic Energy Commission has refused to reveal when the first shot will be fired.
