

SERIOUS ANSWER — This candid study of a serious President Eisenhower was taken during a news conference in Washington, D. C., at which time he branded as a "dole," a Democratic-sponsored plan for benefits for unemployed workers, and he also threw cold water on any thought of a summit meeting limited to himself and Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

Gill Sees Move For Sales Tax

Pendleton — State Sen. Warren Gill, seeking the Republican nomination for governor, declared here Wednesday that within three or four months after he is elected governor property taxes in Oregon will drop and the state will get a sales tax. He said such a result would be inevitable because his election would disclose the sentiment of the electorate and would free the legislature of its timidity regarding a sales tax.

Gill scored the tax views of Secretary of State Mark Hatfield, another GOP candidate for the gubernatorial nomination.

"I can understand why Hatfield doesn't want to reduce property taxes," Gill said. "It's because Hatfield doesn't own any property."

He said the most effective aid that could be given to Oregon farmers would be a sales tax accompanied by a 50 per cent reduction in property taxes. He insisted that a sales tax in Oregon is inevitable, even if he is not elected governor.

"There is no other place to go in Oregon but to a sales tax," he said.

Bill Would Curb Supreme Court Power

Washington — The Senate Judiciary Committee has approved, 10 to 5, a controversial bill to restrict or override Supreme Court decisions on security risks cases.

The vote came on a watered down version of a bill by Sen. William E. Jenner (R-Ind.) which would have entirely abolished the high tribunal's jurisdiction in five fields.
