

ILLINOIS VALLEY Give Citizenship Awards

By HELEN BOTTEL
Cave Junction—Bill Young, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Young of Kerby, and Marie Adams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Adams, also of Kerby, are winners of the Stem Citizenship award at Illinois Valley High school.

The award, made each year by C. Guy Stem, jeweler, is based on class conduct, cooperation, willingness, and all around good citizenship. Bill will receive a Hamilton wrist watch, while Marie is to have an Elgin wrist watch.

Awards will be presented at the Awards Assembly at the school May 27.

Winner of last year's Stem award was Micky Swift, now of Redding.

John White, president of Chemical Metallurgical Enterprises, Salt Lake City, arrived in Cave Junction Monday to look over property connected with nickel mining in this area. He is connected with nickel mining in this area. He is connected with Nickel Corporation of America, the company which conducted exploration work in the Illinois Valley last year.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Curnow of Rough and Ready flats are moving to Ashland after 37 years in the Illinois valley. Curnow, who has worked as a logger and miner during most of his stay here, plans to retire soon at his new home. He is a member of the Veterans of World War I and both have been active in Parent-Teacher association work while their children and their grandchildren were attending school.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Brading of Cave Junction, who recently sold the local Dairy Queen to Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Bowers, have purchased the Big Dipper in Grants Pass, and moved to their new location Saturday. They have taken a home on Seventh st. near their business establishment.

Patrick Love of O'Brien celebrated his 11th birthday Sunday with a party for several of his friends.

His mother and grandmother, Mrs. Bill Love and Mrs. Hubert Love, served cake and ice cream during the afternoon, and later Pat's father took the children to the show at Cave Junction.

A Mothers' Day tea was combined with the annual preschool round-up Monday afternoon at O'Brien school.

Mrs. Carol Bullard's first and second graders presented a play, "The Donkey's Band," with children in animals' heads playing the part of the four who routed the robbers in the well-known fairy tale.

Third and fourth grade students, under the direction of Mrs. Eileen Orton, depicted the work in their social studies class with a playlet which emphasized world brotherhood.

Tentative plans for a Grange dance were made at the Illinois Valley Grange potluck dinner meeting Thursday. Hugh Foster was named dance chairman, and the date was set for May 31.

The next Home Economics club meeting is scheduled for May 12 at the home of Ruth Wendt in Grants Pass. A potluck luncheon is planned.

School Safety Patrol Credited With Reduction in Death Toll

By LOUIS CASSELS
Washington — You see them every day, rain or shine. They stand on the street corners near a school, their arms outstretched to hold back pedestrian traffic.

You can tell by their Sam Browne belts and the proud look on their faces that they are members of the school Safety Patrol.

Perhaps you have thought while driving through an intersection one of them was guarding that it's a pretty good idea. But you may be surprised to learn just how good an idea it really is.

Since the school Safety Patrols were organized, the traffic death rate among youngsters 5 to 14 years old has been cut in half. During the same period, the traffic age group has nearly doubled.

The first Safety Patrol was organized in Chicago in 1922 by the late Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor Club. He persuaded the American Automobile Association to make it a nationwide project. Today there are patrols in 15,000 American communities.

Hand Picked Youngsters
The 670,000 boys and girls who serve on them are picked by school authorities for leadership and responsibility. It's an honor to be chosen.

Patrol members are taught that they must never try to stop cars or direct vehicle traffic in any way. Their job is to stand on the sidewalk, one step back from the curb, and watch for a "long, safe gap" in the traffic. When there is a gap, they signal to their schoolmates that it's now safe to cross the street.

Most safety patrolmen are elementary and junior high school students. But there are some high schoolers, too.

Some patrolmen serve on school buses. When a bus stops to take on or discharge passengers, the patrolman gets out, looks both ways to make sure that all traffic has halted as required by law, and then beckons to the children to cross the street.

Example is First Duty
Patrol members are told repeatedly that their first duty is to "set an example" of safety for other children. This means they are not supposed to "play hero" by dashing into the street to retrieve a child who has ignored the don't-walk signal. Any child taking unnecessary risks with his own safety, in order to pose as a hero, is liable to prompt dismissal from patrol duty.

Sometimes, however, circumstances thrust a safety patrolman into a situation where the simple, clear-headed performance of duty constitutes genuine heroism.

Last Oct. 16, Patrolman Bobby Jones, 18, of Arena, Wisc., was standing in front of a school bus, shepherding five small children who had just climbed out. Bobby saw a speeding car hurtling to five children, shoved them into a ditch, and piled in on top of them — just as the car crashed into the parked bus.

Big Parade in Washington
During the past year, four other patrol members have saved lives in similar ways. They are Sue Marie Gilchrist, 13, of Toledo, Ohio; Effie Passas, 12, Lancaster, Pa.; Raymond Czech, 14, Little Falls, Minn.; and Clarence Linz, Jr., 11, North Little Rock, Ark.

Along with Bobby Jones, they will go to the Pentagon Building Friday afternoon to receive gold life-saving medals from Gen. Nathan F. Twining, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Saturday morning they will join 31,000 other Safety Patrol members from 20 states in a parade down Constitution ave. It will be a dilly of a parade, with 70 bands, 80 safety floats, drum majorettes, drill teams, and a lot of government big shots in the reviewing stand.

The parade is held every year. It ties up traffic in downtown Washington for about eight hours, and some residents frankly regard it as a great nuisance.

But many others, like FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, think that the traffic jam is a small price to pay for this annual reminder that there are still a great many non-delinquent kids in America.

GOLD HILL Family Back From Trip
By MRS. CLYDE KELL
Gold Hill — Mr. and Mrs. Leonard McMahan and sons, Steve, Douglas, and Jeff, returned to their home on Sardine creek May 2 following a three week's vacation. They visited relatives in California, Texas, Illinois, Iowa, and South Dakota. Among the sight-seeing highlights of the trip was a tour of Disneyland while in California.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Nunn returned recently to their home on Highway 99, north, from a two week's vacation in California where they visited friends and relatives at Redondo Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Hartley planned to leave last week for their home in Sand Point, Idaho. The Hartleys have resided in Gold Hill since last October.

Harry Newnham has been visiting in Bandon where he is a houseguest of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Wyatt and children. The Wyatts are former residents of Gold Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gray of Portland visited in Gold Hill May 3 with her father, Charles Kell, and other relatives.

Idaho Falls Policemen Charged With Burglary
Idaho Falls, Idaho — Investigation continued into a series of burglaries, allegedly perpetrated by seven members of Idaho Falls Police department and two other men.

Six police officers, including a police lieutenant, and two other men, were being held in jail in lieu of bail on first-degree burglary charges. A seventh policeman was free on $100 bond on a petty larceny charge.

Trustees Named To Pear Bureau
Trustees and alternates to the Oregon-Washington-California Pear bureau were named at a recent meeting of the Medford Pear Shippers association.

Named as trustees were David Holmes, Floyd Baker, James Finegan, Howell Murphy and Don Root. Their alternates are Joe Naumes, Raymond Reter, Harold Holmes, Dave Lowry and Lynn Newberry. All of the trustees and alternates served last year.

Every pear-producing district in the three-state area is represented by trustees on the Oregon-Washington-California Pear bureau. They serve as the governing body of the research and promotion organization, one of the most active and successful trade groups in the fruit industry.

Recent visitors at the Jim Hogue and Dave White homes in Kerby were Mr. and Mrs. Wes Downs, former residents of the valley, now of Coos Bay.

A Grants Pass man, Philip T. Hyde, has purchased the former Hanseth place in Kerby, and will move his family to the valley soon.

Mrs. Albert Scott returned last week from Tulare, Calif., where she and her son, Andy, went to visit Mrs. Scott's sister, Mrs. Myrtle Huff. Andy stayed at Tulare, where he is working in an orange grove.

Al Hobart of Takilma had as guests last week his sister, Georgia Tooker, his brother, J. H. Hobart and a friend from Los Angeles. Mrs. Tooker is a nurse in a Los Angeles hospital.

Visiting Dr. and Mrs. C. G. Stem last week were Mr. and Mrs. Francis Vert of Placerville, Calif. Dr. Stem is Mrs. Vert's brother.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Brading of Cave Junction, who recently sold the local Dairy Queen to Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Bowers, have purchased the Big Dipper in Grants Pass, and moved to their new location Saturday. They have taken a home on Seventh st. near their business establishment.

Dear Annabelle...

To Each Her Own

By Nulade Annie

DEAR ANNABELLE: I read your column every week and I like the advice you give to people writing in. I imagine you're the envy of every hen in these parts. Frankly, I flip my comb every time I see your picture. You've never indicated whether or not you have an attachment, but if not here's one rooster who'd like to know you better. I have a little nest all staked out. How about it, chicken?—ROGER ROOSTER.

DEAR ROGE: I'm flattered by your offer and I bet you're lots of fun, but I'm afraid I'll have to decline. Thanks loads anyway. You see I'm a dedicated chicken. If you get what I mean. Romance for me is producing farm-fresh NULADE eggs for people who insist on the very finest quality in the eggs they buy. If I could crow like you, Roge, I'd crow for local farm-fresh NULADE eggs. As they say, to each his own, or her own as the case may be.
