Board of Control Approves Farm Superintendent

Salem — The State Board of Control has accepted a report of its farm utilization committee to hire a superintendent for all farm operations at the state institutions.

The state now has farm operations at Fairview, the penitentiary annex and Cottage Farm here; MacLaren school for boys at Woodburn; Eastern Oregon State hospital at Pendleton; and proposed operations at the intermediate penal institution here and Damash state hospital near Portland.

The farm operations provide food for state institutions and the new manager would standardize and coordinate farm practices, eliminating duplication and working out farm policy with institution heads and the Board of Control.

The committee found farm cost records and procedures inadequate and recommended a simple farm cost accounting system for each institution.

The group advised the Board of Control to sell the Williams and Hart property of 400 acres because it was too far from the state prison.

Also to be sold was the 192-acre colony farm in Polk county, the 920-acre Reith ranch at Eastern Oregon State hospital and the MacLaren dairy herd.

State institutions now operate about 5,000 acres of farm land.

Total return from selling farm property is estimated at from $300,000 to $340,000.

Gov. Robert D. Holmes estimated the farm streamlining program would save the state thousands of dollars a year.
