

"Careers That Count" Theme Of National Hospital Week

Recognition of National Hospital week in the public schools of Jackson county has been arranged by Mrs. Otto Frohnmayer and Mrs. Glen Bessopette, working in cooperation with Elliott Becken, assistant superintendent of schools in Medford. "Careers That Count" has been continued as the theme of the week this year, from May 11 to 17, because of the great importance of recruiting additional health career personnel, according to Mrs. Frohnmayer.

Hospitals are continually seeking people to fill the many existing positions open, she adds. More than 200 different job classifications are found within the large hospitals, according to the American Hospital Association which annually sponsors National Hospital week.

Lily Ponds Gives Tips On Packing

By GAY PAULEY
United Press Women's Editor
New York — Around Manhattan: Taking a trip? Take a packing tip from Lily Ponds, the pint sized prima donna whose concert tours take her an average of 60,000 miles each season. Keep luggage to a minimum and wear slacks on a long haul.

Miss Ponds' regular tour has just ended, and she's preparing for a summer vacation in her native France. Her concert tour took her cross country a couple of times, and added to this mileage were trips to Europe and from her New York apartment to her other home in Palm Springs, Calif.
