Crater High School

By Judi Davis

Although she may not actually be able to circle the earth once every hour, Miss Sputnik did pay Crater High School a visit May 6.

The occasion was the annual Mother's Tea put on by the Girls' League. Although Miss Sputnik (Terry Turner) may have had trouble getting off the ground in her striking costume, she had no trouble in getting a large round of applause from the audience.

The costume was made of silver lame and rhinestone studded plastic, and sported a bejeweled umbrella frame that may have served to send "messages into outer space."

Miss Sputnik announced the theme of the show, "Around The World," as she made her way down the runway. All the clothes for the style show came from Parker Wood's "Leon's," and "Leon's Tots to Teens," as did the costume. Modeling the clothes were Sandra Guss, Pat Peffley, Donna Burnett, Sandra Ghelardi, Julie Ashton, Dianna Cummings, Sharon Thompson and Terry Turner. The girls represented the four classes at Crater.

Also adding much interest to the show were the women and children models. They were Mrs. Don Miller, Marcie and Greg; Mrs. Al Setness; Mrs. Ron Lamb and Mrs. Warren Holbrook and Nancy and Ronnie. Mrs. Miller, Mrs. Lamb and Mrs. Holbrook are faculty member's wives.

More than 600 people attended the Tea, at which the commentary was done by Judi Davis. All of the girls in the school were able to participate in some way in the show, but those girls heading up committees were Joan Morris, Helen Hood, Betty Wilson, Alice Thompson, Joan Dobrot, Myrna Pfister, and Arvelia Prom.

Entertainment was provided by the chorus, Sylvia Yell, Theresa Cline, and Lea Padgett.

Crossing a quaint wooden bridge brought one into a lovely setting of an "Oriental Garden" the theme of the Junior-Senior Prom. Decorating the gym for the Prom, the juniors used a pond in the center of the dance floor, and cherry blossom trees all around it. Off to one side was the Pagoda in which Queen Sandra Guss and her court of Kay Askwith, Jokey Cameron, and Sue Blake were seated. A grass hut served as the refreshment center, and fans decorated the tables, while lanterns were suspended from the ceiling.

A good crowd of juniors and seniors and their dates attended, as did a large number of faculty members and honored guests. After the Prom, there was a swimming party and an early morning breakfast.

Radio Station KWIN in Ashland was the scene of an unusual extra-curricular activity for the Speech classes at Crater last Saturday. Mr. Lacy's speech students worked for weeks planning the event, and put forth a lot of time and effort to have the event oc-

Gibraltar—In flying here from Granada we saw Mulhacen from our airliner.

It is the highest mountain in Spain, towering up 11,420 feet, but somehow or other it isn't as impressive looking as the Rock of Gibraltar. Though that at its highest point, O'Hara's Tower, is only 1,408 feet, it completely dominates the sea and land surrounding it.

Thousands of you who read this have seen Gibraltar while serving with our armed forces. Many of you have been to this less than two-square-mile

British Crown Colony, linked to the mainland by a sandy isthmus. But only on this, my second visit, did I see the evidence of how gigantic rock has sea-sawed up and down through thousands of years.

Some 700 feet up its sides are ledges that have been scooped out by waves. If all the polar icecaps melted, the ocean wouldn't be 700 feet higher. Consequently, it is known the Rock was once 700 lower than now.

Furthermore, higher up and lower down there are other evidences of a sea-saw effect that must have resulted in creating a landbridge across the Straits to Africa.

Evidence of the land bridge is found not only in the vegetation and animal life of southern Spain, much of which must have crossed via land, without the aid of men or birds, but also it is found in the caves of the Rock.

Four Habitation Periods Gibraltar is studded with them. New ones are still found. In one discovered in 1944 there are evidences of four periods of human habitation, the latest in Roman times. And most revealing among the remains in that cave and others are the bones and teeth of such animals as elephants, rhinoceros, hyena and bear. How the elephant and rhino remains got there could only be because of kills made by primeval man when the Mediterranean was a landlocked sea.

I didn't see any of the famous Barbary apes that live on the Rock, but they are still there, and there's no reason why they shouldn't stay indefinitely. They can go where man can't—which is most of the surface—and the Rock is alive with vegetation. Over 400 indigenous varieties of plants and ferns grow there, and many fruit trees have seeded from the garrison's gardens.

Townsend Renamed Post Commander

Keegan Townsend was re-elected commander of the Medford American Legion Post at a recent meeting.

Eric A. Allen and Melvin C. McElhiney were elected first and second vice commanders. Joe R. Hosick was reelected adjutant; Merle Jarmin, finance officer; and Hugh McKenzie, chaplain. Others elected were Patrick Kilby, M. E. Fisher and Eugene Orr for the three members of the executive committee.

Allen, McElhiney, Fisher and Orr were elected to be delegates to the annual convention this year. Bob O'Neal was appointed as sergeant-at-arms.

Draft of Suggested Subdivision Bill To Be Presented

A draft of a proposed county subdivision ordinance will be presented to the county planning commission at its meeting June 11 for study and discussion. County Planning Technician Jack Eaton told the commission Wednesday night.

The draft will consist of 14 to 16 pages plus four or five pages of various forms to be used by subdividers. Eaton said he had modeled sections of the draft after parts of the subdivision ordinances of Lane and Clackamas counties. Realtors and various subdividers also were consulted, Eaton said.

Ed Bolt, member of the planning commission, suggested that the proposed ordinance be well advertised and some sort of public relations program be set up. He also suggested that drafts of the proposed ordinance be placed in the hands of various organizations for their study and comments. Commission members agreed that plenty of notice would be given and a public hearing held before its adoption.

Regarding development of a joint city-county recreation area in the Camp White district, it was reported that Mayor John Snider will ask the county court to allow the county engineer to make an estimate on dam construction.

CLIBURN LEAVES RUSSIA

Moscow—Van Cliburn, the tall, young pianist from Kilgore, Tex., is en route back to the United States via Copenhagen. He gave his last Russian concert before an overflow audience at the Moscow Conservatory Wednesday night. Hundreds had to be turned away from the doors. The performance was televised and broadcast.

Construction of a proposed dam on Whetstone creek would establish a new lake on city property between Kirtland rd., Pacific highway and Table Rock rd., it was explained. Lakes owned by the state game commission in that area also would be enlarged and included in the project. The chain of adjacent lakes on property owned by Charles Hoover and sons also would be used for the recreation project.

Eaton said the county court was to have written owners of property by the Cameron bridge on the Applegate river regarding its purchase for a recreation site. He said he has not yet received a reply.

Ed Strother, planning commission member, said both he and County Judge Rodney Keating liked a piece of property in the Shady Cove area for a recreation site. The property faces Indian creek on the north side and Highway 62 on the east side, Strother said.

Water Available
The property includes 16 acres, but the owner probably would not sell all of it, Strother added. Both water and electricity are obtainable, he said.

The proper procedure for making the recreation site study was discussed. Commission member Loyd Selby said he was afraid the group might neglect proper procedure and not take projects assigned in proper order by proceeding too rapidly.

Members agreed that letters should be received from
