By MRS. H. H. CHAPMAN

Hornbrook — Word was received here last week of the death in Oakland, Calif., of two former residents of Hornbrook.

Mrs. Dolly Niles died Saturday, May 3, and Mrs. Charlie Whitten just a few days previously.

Mrs. Niles is survived by her husband, Steve, and one son Lawrence, of the San Francisco Bay area. Niles was employed here by the Southern Pacific railroad, and the family left here in the early 1920 when the main line of the railroad was rerouted via Klamath Falls. At that time, they moved to Los Angeles, and lived there until he retired, when they moved to Oakland.

Mrs. Niles' death came unexpectedly. They had planned to attend Mrs. Whitten's funeral with still another former resident of Hornbrook, Miss Margaret O'Neill of Oakland, sister of Mrs. Mollie Cole.

The Whittens formerly lived on what is now the Bloomingcamp ranch. They were operators of the old Hornbrook hotel. Mr. Whitten preceded his wife in death several years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hagen of Seattle, Wash., spent the week end of May 3 with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bear. The Hagens were en route home after attending ceremonies in Lubbock, Texas, in which they saw their son, First Lieutenant Ronnie Hagen, receive his wings as a pilot in the Air Force. Lieut. Hagen remained here for a longer visit with Leonard and Ermin Bear.

A first grandson was welcomed into the Ardon Burns family circle last week when a son was born at Siskiyou General hospital on May 6 to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Burns of Yreka. The baby, who has been named Gary Ardon, has a 2-year-old sister. The elder Burns now have three granddaughters and one grandson.

Mrs. L. F. Madison entertained a group of friends at a birthday party May 9 honoring her husband. Guests were their daughter, Mrs. Doris Novaczky, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cardoza and children, Mr. and Mrs. Al Spearin and children, Leonard Bear, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bear.

Hornbrook grammar school baseball teams played Hiltz at Hiltz Friday. Both local teams won, the boys by a score of 6 to 5, and the girls with a score of 10 to 6.

India Resident Visits Talent Project, Library

A visitor in the Rogue valley last week was Raghunat N. Chawla of New Delhi, India.

Chawla, who is deputy director of the Central Water and Power commission in the Ministry of irrigation and power of the government of India, spent a few days with Wayne Johnson, resident engineer on the Talent project, examining the project in the office of the bureau of reclamation and in the field, exploring the reservoir area, the tunnels and the delivery canal.

Although the visitor was disappointed that the recent strike prevented him from seeing any actual construction in process, he has found his stay in this area pleasant and interesting, he told James A. Callan, construction engineer of the bureau of reclamation.

He described the Rogue valley as "enchanting" and expressed delight in its natural beauty and in its orchards.

Chawla also made an interested visit to the Medford Public library, headquarters of the Jackson County library. He was taken through all its departments with an explanation of library organization and processes, and expressed particular interest in the fact that residents of even the smallest communities may draw upon the resources of the central library.

From Medford he went to Redding to study the Trinity River project near Wheeler, and to other California projects. He will spend another nine months in the United States observing American methods in these fields.
