Juvenile Delinquency Topic For Gold Hill PTA Session

Gold Hill—A panel discussion on juvenile delinquency followed the business session and installation of officers at the last meeting of the Gold Hill Parent-Teacher Association in the Hanby gymnasium May 2.

Mrs. Floyd Taylor, president of the unit for the past two years, presided. The invocation was given by the Rev. Howard Walton.

Mrs. Charles Rosecrans, leader of the newly organized Brownie troop, and 12 Brownie Scouts led the flag salute. Girl Scouts in the Gold Hill are sponsored by the local PTA.

The Harmonettes choral group, under the direction of Mrs. Norman Gail, school music teacher, provided several songs including Negro spirituals and whistling numbers. Alvin Paulsen was soloist and Bob Turner announced for the group. Mrs. Walter Doherty, school pianist, accompanied the chorus at the piano.

Gilbert Mack, principal of Patrick and Hanby schools, installed the new officers. Installed were H. D. Force, president; Mrs. Ogden Kellogg, vice-president; Mrs. Edwin Wilson, secretary; and Mrs. Jerry Herrington, treasurer. Corsages of spring flowers were presented to the women taking office, and a boutonniere to Mr. Force, by Mrs. Von Buskirk. The corsages were made by mothers and the leaders of the Brownies. Members were reminded to rededicate themselves on the objects of PTA.

Mr. Mack thanked parents for their support of the local unit during the past year.

Mr. Force reported on the state PTA convention held in Bend. He said that at the convention delegates were urged to do everything in their power to overcome the propaganda of Russia's advance over us. "We shouldn't blame our public schools," he said.

The new president named committee chairmen for the next year. They are Mrs. Leonard McMahan, ways and means; Mrs. Paul Molloy, hospitality; Mrs. Ogden Kellogg, membership; Mrs. Clyde Kell, publicity; and Mrs. Von Buskirk, program.

Mrs. Edsel White, retiring hospitality chairman, stated that the room count was awarded to Mrs. Vera Steele's fourth grade room.

Mrs. Walter Doherty, retiring program chairman, introduced the guest panelists, Charles Champlin Jr., Medford chief of police; Lawrence Tweedy, counselor in the Jackson County Juvenile department; Dewey Wilson, a Medford attorney; and the Rev. Howard Walton, pastor of the Gold Hill Community Methodist church. Gilbert Mack was moderator for the program.

The panel members stressed that the majority of youth are not bad, but that the good teenagers are spoken of less frequently. The speaker's point was that the responsibility rests with parents, who should support law enforcement agencies when necessary. They pointed out the importance of a good home.

Functions of the Jackson County Juvenile department were explained, and it was said that a complete investigation of the environment of juveniles, brought to the department, is always made. Every effort is made to keep the juveniles in their own community, it was said.

The value of the church in the prevention of juvenile delinquency was stressed.

There is a great need in this area for more industrial training in the public school system, it was said. Panel speakers declared that many young people leaving school at 16 might remain if more vocational training was available.

Parents were urged to take problem children to the Child Guidance clinic in order to prevent delinquency.

Refreshments were served by parents of children in the first grade. Hostesses were Mrs. Jesse Fleener, Mrs. Ray Neilson and Mrs. Bill Davis.

The centerpiece was of spring flowers.
