Trujillo Back In Army School

Hollywood — Dominican playboy—General Rafael Trujillo Jr. packed up his epaulettes Tuesday night and went back to Army school leaving Kim Novak aglow with his praise and lavish gifts.

The blonde actress refused to speculate on the possibility of marriage to the 29-year-old Trujillo, whose Hollywood spending spree rivaled that of the movie greats before income taxes.

Trujillo publicly declared his love for Miss Novak on a television program and said he plans to return to Hollywood after he completes his military studies at the U. S. Army General Staff School at Ft. Leavenworth, Kans. Answering Trujillo's public declaration of love, Kim cooed that she "liked General Trujillo from the first moment we met."

"At this time there is nothing I can add except my gratitude for the many nice things he has said about me," said Miss Novak.

Both Parties Comforted By Last Election Vote

By A. ROBERT SMITH Mail Tribune Correspondent

Washington — In assessing the results of the Oregon primary election, members of the state's congressional delegation, Democrat and Republican alike, found considerable comfort in the way the voters cast their ballots.

No one was more pleased than Rep. Walter Norblad (R) who was receiving congratulations from all sides this week for his thumping victory over challenger Philip S. Hitchcock.

Not only did it mean the delegation's lone Republican survived a tough primary battle, which was Norblad's personal reason for comfort, but the result eliminated a possible future challenger for one of Oregon's Senate seats now held by Democrats. This was probably most comforting to Sen. Richard L. Neuberger who will be up for reelection in 1960.

Norblad, too, could make a bid for the Senate, or even for governor at some future time, but having passed up many past opportunities to challenge incumbents in these offices he is not regarded here as a probable threat.

Moreover, the Democrats think Norblad will be easier for Attorney General Robert Y. Thornton to defeat in the general election for the 1st district congressional seat, than had Hitchcock won the nomination. They followed a practice in recent weeks of not giving Norblad a hard time so as not to embarrass him in the primary.

But in the face of his walloping victory over Hitchcock, some Democrats are not so sure he will be an easy mark for Thornton. They thought Norblad would win, but not by such a wide margin. Whether Thornton can take him depends on whether there is a strong Democratic tide in November, they think.

Many offices can be decided on the basis of a tide that seems to be running for one party or the other, the governorship not excluded.

Six Students Die In Denver Crash

Denver — One of the worst traffic accidents in Denver history took the lives of six high school students Tuesday.

The six, all between 16 and 18, were killed when their 1958 automobile smashed into a steel pole on the Valley highway in north Denver at 90 miles per hour.

Five were killed instantly. The sixth died several hours later in Denver General hospital.

Police estimated the car was traveling 90 miles per hour when it swerved to the gravel should at a curve and skidded into the heavy steel directional sign pole.

The victims were Al Gerald Fleck, 18, Marvin Richard Newberry, 17, Harry L. Hayes, 16, James Doyle Roberts, 19, and Nairias Younger, 18, all of Derby, Colo.; and Urban Joseph Jacque, 16, of Henderson, Colo. All except Younger were killed instantly.

Fort Clatsop Memorial Asked

Washington — Dedication of a Fort Clatsop national memorial during Oregon Centennial year has been asked by Sen. Richard L. Neuberger of the Fort Clatsop bill in the House.

The senator said he had asked National Park Service Director Conrad Wirth to accelerate construction of facilities at the site in time for next year's centennial observance. Neuberger suggested that the interior department include funds for the memorial in a supplement appropriations request.

Under the terms of the bill, he said, establishment of the memorial can be affected when not less than 100 acres adjoining the site have been acquired by the Federal government either by purchase or donation.

party or the other, the governorship not excluded.

The resounding victory of Mark Hatfield in the three-way Republican race for the governorship nomination guarantees a red hot campaign between this young GOP challenger and Gov. Robert D. Holmes. Several theories seem to have evolved here from this prospect.

One is that a Holmes-Hatfield contest will enliven the general election more than would a Holmes-Neuberger race have captured the interest of the sort of voter who is apt to stay at home in off-year elections. If this improves the voter turnout, it should help the chances of two freshman Democrats, Reps. Charles O. Porter and Al Ullman, who won by narrow margins in 1956 during the elections which were made spectacular by the Morse-McKay race and the presidential contest.

Another theory held here is that Hatfield will benefit in the general election from a tendency on the part of Oregon voters to support vigorous, youthful candidates, which will make it tough for Holmes to hold the governorship. But the same voting tendency will strengthen Porter and Ullman, who've had a term in Washington in which to make a name for themselves, and that they, along with Rep. Edith Green in Portland may tend to strengthen the entire Democratic ticket to the advantage of Gov. Holmes.

Mrs. Green, who won by some 55,000 votes in her last reelection race, is figured as the strongest candidate in the Democratic lineup in the most heavily populated district in the state. A strong Holmes supporter, she may lend strength to the governor.

The outcome of the governorship contest may, of course, determine much in future Senate contests for the seats now held by Morse and Neuberger.

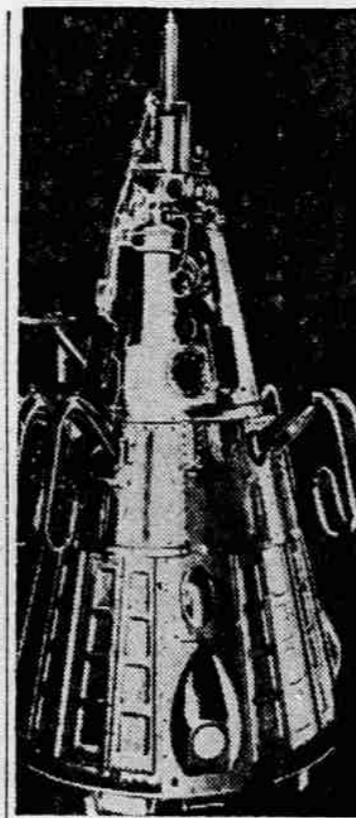

Will Holmes, if he wins, go for Neuberger's seat in 1960 midway through his four-year term? Will Hatfield, if he wins, go against Morse in 1960?

No one loves to speculate more than politicians, and these are questions they are asking already.

Fort Clatsop Set As U. S. Monument

Washington — The House Monday passed without a dissenting vote a bill to establish Fort Clatsop, near Astoria, as a national monument.

The measure passed the Senate earlier and now goes to President Eisenhower.

Young Minds Being Lost By Neglect, PTA Told

Omaha, Neb. — Three federal officials will tell the National Congress of Parents and Teachers today how the Department of Health, Education and Welfare combats the problems stemming from changing situations.

Nearly 3,500 delegates to the 62nd annual convention were on hand to hear remarks prepared for delivery at a symposium during the morning session.

Wayne O. Reed, deputy commissioner of education, warned that "thousands of America's best young minds are being lost through neglect."

The Nebraskan told of a federal proposition to underwrite testing and scholarship programs to stop this "tragic loss."

Surgeon General LeRoy E. Burney said technological changes have "brought new health problems" such as water and air pollution and industrial accidents. "If we do not increase our medical education facilities, we will not have enough doctors in 1970," he said.

George P. Larrick, commissioner of food and drugs, said new miracle drugs and insecticides create new problems. Larrick advocated "more consumer education" to dispel quackery in medicine and nutrition.
