BY OSCAR FRALEY
New York —(UPI)— John Sholto Douglas, the eighth Marquis of Queensberry, must be reeling in his spectral ring-side seat today as result of a one-two punch tossed by Fritzie Zivic and Willie (the Beard) Gilzenberg.

The Marquis was the fight buff who helped rewrite the rules of the ring back in 1867.

Before that time, prize fighters employed tactics which made alley fighting seem like a Newport tea.

The Marquis sustained his first rabbit punch last week when Zivic, deploring the fact that he was recognized as "only" the second dirtiest fighter of all time, used another ghost to pen a declaration that the gloved gladiator of today has to fight far outside the rules to be a winner.

Willie Agrees

The coup de grace now is administered by Willie the Beard, so known because of a perpetual six o'clock shadow, nobody being able to get so unshaven by five. Willie supports Zivic's contention in a letter of advice to Vince Martinez, who engages Virgil Akins at St. Louis next week for the vacant welterweight championship.

"What Zivic said is absolutely the truth," the Beard alleges in a letter which he thoughtfully made public. "So don't forget there hasn't been a disqualification in a championship fight since Jack Sharkey lost to Max Schmeling on a foul in 1930."

Willie the Bard, almost as much as Zivic, should qualify as an expert in the matter of boxing outside the boundary lines. Gilzenberg once directed the fistic destiny of Twoton Tony Galento and it may be said without fear of libel, the man who was built like a barrel cared little for the niceties of life in or out of the ring.

Willie Managed Cochrane
Another inhabitant of the Gilzenberg stable was a red-haired brother of a boy named Freddie Red Cochrane.

Thus it comes as no surprise when Gilzenberg informs Martinez that Cochrane won this same welterweight championship from, of all people, Zivic, in a "strictly planned and calculated dirty fight."

"One of Zivic's favorite foul tricks was to circle an opponent's neck with his left arm, pull him in close and hit him low with a right uppercut," Gilzenberg relates. "Our strategy was to bump heads with Fritzie whenever he tried that trick."

In round two, that night in 1941 at a Newark ball park, their heads came together like a couple of billiard balls," Willie adds.

Fritzie, proud of his hard head, began to lose the fight right then. But in the fourth round we wrapped it up. I sent Cochrane out with instructions to hit Zivic deliberately below the belt.

"I'll never forget Zivic—admittedly the dirtiest fighter of his era—complaining to the referee," Willie the Beard chuckles over his electric typewriter.

It was "strategy," relates Gilzenberg, which won the title for Cochrane. And he suggests that Martinez take the lesson to heart.

The Marquis must be hanging on those astral ropes.

Plant Closure Set By Kaiser Aluminum

Tacoma —(UPI)— The Tacoma Reduction plant will be closed June 1, Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical corporation officials announced Monday.

It had been announced originally that the plant would be inactivated May 1, but the company has been able to continue operations on a temporary basis since that date. However, inventories and market conditions do not warrant further continued operation, company officials said.

Stripper Earns Way Through College; To Talk Religion as Valedictorian

Phoenix —(UPI)— Barbara J. Shanks, the "stripper" who wants to be a philosopher, has been chosen valedictorian for the Phoenix college graduation class.

Brown-haired, blue-eyed Miss Shanks, whose figure was good enough to earn her as much as $350 a week as a dancer in Chicago and other eastern points, plans to "reality tell 'em something" in her June 4 speech.

"I'm going to talk on 'the new religious attitude,'" she said. "I will talk about student dissatisfaction toward society. I will point out that they created society."

The beauty, 32, came to Phoenix two years ago to fulfill her ambition of studying philosophy. And then teach it.

"I've wanted to be a philosopher since I was 15," she said. "I used to work as a cafe waitress. And I got tired of looking at hungry people."

She turned down membership in the junior college's honorary scholastic society because she had neither time nor the $5 membership fee. She's an "A" student.

Cholera Epidemic Hits Bangkok

Bangkok, Thailand —(UPI)— A cholera epidemic has hit Bangkok, the government announced today.

Dr. Sawat Daengsawang, director general of the health department, said 50 persons had been admitted to hospitals and 10 had died in the last three days.

The health department said there was adequate vaccine on hand to check the spread of the disease.

Bout Won By Moore

San Francisco — UPI— Archie Moore, fighting mainly as if he had one hand tied behind him, used punishing left jabs Monday night to knock out a dull 10-round decision over bloody Charlie Norkus before a dissatisfied crowd of about 3,500.

Moore, who used Norkus as a sparring partner for about half the time and punching bag for the other, weighed 196 to the New Yorker's 193. Archie's weight was 21 pounds over the limit of the light heavyweight class which he rules.

Norkus showed plenty of courage, but Moore had too many guns for the ex-Marine who took a solid beating about the face while constantly booping in and trying to get over on good punches. Norkus bled from the nose and tired badly from the seventh round on.

Judge Frankie Carter saw it for Moore 100-86, judge Eddie James 100-85 and referee Jack Downey 100-89. On the UPI card it was 100-92.

DEPORTATION DELAYED

Jerusalem —(UPI)—The Israeli high court has ordered an indefinite delay in the deportation of William Jacobs, 34, who is wanted in the United States as a fugitive from prison. The court called on the police Monday to show cause why Jacobs' deportation should not be annulled or delayed until he can get permission to enter another country. Jacobs, who arrived here about a year ago with a Moroccan passport identifying him as David Bensitreet, is being held in Ramle prison.
