LONDON — (UPI) — Weary magistrate Seymour Collins asked yesterday: "Why is it that people always seem to have no money, no job, no anything, but they always manage to get drunk?"

Danielson Asks For Certificate Of Nomination

The district attorney's request for the attorney general's opinion was officially sent this week.

Reeder's opinion, in part, said: "The chronological facts concerning this race with Mr. Danielson's purported ineligibility by withdrawal are these: Mr. Danielson moved from Newport to Ashland during February of 1958, after that time he filed for district judge of Jackson county.

"On the first of April he moved to Klamath Falls to accept a position of deputy district attorney of Klamath county. Danielson wrote a letter to the secretary of state, election division, regarding his withdrawal from the voter pamphlet.

"The letter is dated March 14, 1958. In that letter he states, 'I make this request to withdraw for the reason that after the first day of April, 1958, I will be ineligible to run for the District judge for Jackson county by reason of moving from the county.'

"He closed out his accounts with the bank... He subsequently made a substantial down payment on a home in Klamath county. He had not been a land owner in Jackson county. His family moved to Klamath county shortly after this purchase, sometime during the end of April. His wife announced in a front page story in the Medford Mail Tribune on March 30...

Reeder explained also that on May 1 the Klamath Falls district attorney resigned, with his successor asking for Danielson's resignation on May 5. Danielson has since been associated in the practice of law in Klamath Falls.

Two other factors of importance, according to the opinion, are the "lengthy slogan" following Danielson's name on the ballot and the lack of a slogan following Bashaw's.

The three distinct parts of the problem, Reeder wrote, are: "1) Has Danielson been nominated? 2) If he has not due to his ineligibility, has Bashaw been nominated as being the next candidate in line? 3) If neither has been nominated has there in fact been any nomination at all?"

Citing Oregon law and court decisions, the opinion says that "it would seem that no other conclusion can be drawn except that (the Danielson) has changed residence..."

Answering the second "more complex" phase of the problem, Reeder uses other decisions to substantiate his belief that "Danielson had withdrawn and the votes given to him should be declared null and void."

The district attorney added that "in view of our opinion that the votes cast... are void, we do not see the need to pursue the third phase of the question."

"Prompt attention" was requested of the attorney general by Deputy District Attorney Gerald Scannell Jr., who prepared the opinion for Reeder.

Stocks Rise to Best Levels During Year

New York — (UPI) — Stocks today rose to around their best levels of 1958 on increased volume.

All sections of the market joined the rise, helped by a build-up of favorable business items, including improved auto sales, gains for the farm implement makers, high consumer spending, a week to week rise in car loadings, construction gains, and favorable predictions on the aircraft industry.

Aircrafts ruled strong. Republic Aviation ran up more than two points to a new high after a two-point gain Wednesday. Grumman aircraft set a new high. Curtiss-Wright ran up more than a point when its president reported orders 18 per cent above 1957.

Tires improved on reports of bigger replacement demand. Rails had small gain as did the utilities, coppers and chemicals. Some drug, sugar, amusement, and special issues made new highs.
