She spoke informally on women's place in the community and particularly mentioned the influence they had in promoting the better things in life. Emphasis this year in the federation will be placed more on the fine arts, she said, since the work-a-day routine has not left women much time to enjoy the arts or to learn about them. Dress Review Announced For Homemakers' Festival

The "sew your own" trend will be stressed in a dress review by Jackson County Extension unit members at the annual Homemakers' festival Wednesday, June 4 at the Central Point Grange, according to Miss Mary Pat Lucy, Jackson county extension agent. Friends and guests are invited to attend.

Of the 343 women who completed the basic dress workshop of clothing construction, 120 will model the dresses they made, in an afternoon program. Twenty-one of the 24 extension units in the county plan to have representatives. Each unit's activities and highlights will be included in the script, giving all those in attendance an idea of how a unit functions and a real chance for exchange of ideas between units.

The Evans Valley unit will present a skit written by Mrs. Alice Wales of their unit, and the Agate unit, the newest in the county, will present a skit and reading written by Mrs. Theda Havice of their unit. The new national home demonstration song, "Onward, Ever Onward," will be introduced by members of the Applegate unit.

The dresses to be modeled will all be of cotton. They will range from simple house-dresses to afternoon frocks and party dresses.

Miss Evelyn Funk, state extension agent of Oregon State college at Corvallis, will attend. Miss Funk and her team member, Jackson Ross, act as supervisors for Jackson county extension agents. The extension service is the largest out-of-school educational system in the world. There are 6 1/2 million women who take part in the nation. Of these, 19,000 are Oregonians, with 700 unit members in our own Jackson county. The unit promotes methods used by county extension agents to help improve homemaking skills.

Registration for the Festival begins at 12:30 p.m., and the program at 1 o'clock. It will close with a friendship and refreshment hour.

Group singing was led by Miss Laura York with Mrs. Katherine Larison as accompanist.

Mrs. Hazeldean Hohensee was chairman of the banquet committee. Floral decorations were used.
