

Mailman Honored By His Patrons

Chicago —(UPI)— A postman who has been ringing twice for 35 years in the same neighborhood had his work interrupted by a delegation of his patrons who presented him with $300.

Walter S. Dennis was delivering mail to Mr. and Mrs. William R. Woodcock when they asked him to step in for coffee. Once inside, a dozen women representing 250 families presented him with the money.

Mrs. Woodcock said Wally is a real good friend "who has done more kindnesses than anybody can count."

The presentation came just two days before Wally retired from the postal service after serving three generations of some families in the neighborhood.

Michigan Offers Mobile Curriculum

East Lansing, Mich. —(UPI)— The nation's first university curriculum in mobile homes, started this year under a grant from the industry's two national organizations, is expected to triple in enrollment by next year.

A half-dozen pioneer students are enrolled in the beginning curriculum at Michigan State university, and university officials said they expect about 20 students in the course next year.

The course is spread equally over the three major fields available — manufacture, marketing and mobile home park management.

Donald A. Hill, who heads the new curriculum, said a sharp increase in mobile home sales in recent years emphasized the need for specialists in the field.

Birds and Bees Given Approval

Detroit —(UPI)— The village commission in suburban Roseville found itself giving practical approval to the birds and the bees.

Health Inspector George Shaw was called to investigate complaints that one man had 100 pigeons in a garage loft, and that another had "three bushels" of bees in two hives, all within the village.

Shaw made a survey and found that more persons thought the pigeons were pretty rather than obnoxious and that the bees were too busy guarding their summer store of honey to be any trouble. Only one nosy dog had been stung.
