No Property Tax Levy in County

No county property tax will be levied during the coming fiscal year, the county budget committee decided yesterday. As a result, the county will operate without a tax base during the year. Committee members said the action "bowed to the will of the people" who defeated a measure on the May primary election ballot which sought to establish a permanent county tax base of $652,386.68. Under the state constitution, taxes must be levied at least once every three years to preserve the tax base, unless a permanent base has been established.

No Tax Levied

With no tax levied during 1958-59, the base automatically will disappear, in as much as no tax will have been levied within the past three years. Lack of a tax base will require an election in order for the county to levy any tax in the future. County Treasurer Karl Janouch estimated yesterday that the county will have $3,924,073 on hand July 1. Estimated income for next year is $2,795,410, about 70.3 percent of which comes from the federal government, $1.9 from the state and the rest from local sources.

The 1957-58 budget totaled $3,127,195.76, of which

Two Snags Held Up County Budget

The Jackson county budget hit two temporary snags today, according to the Jackson county court. Completion of the various county department budgets into a grand total expected to be completed some time tomorrow, according to the county clerk's office.

Members of the county court said the wrong county planning commission budget was submitted. The revised budget which includes both city and county light planning expenses was submitted after the budget committee had completed what they thought was their last hearing yesterday.

Total budget request submitted by the planning commission is $14,377. Of this $5,600 in services is pledged to the city of Medford and $1,500 to the city of Ashland in the federal aid planning program. The federal government will match the $7,100 total of these services.

The other snag was discovered when it was learned that the salary total submitted for the assistant county watermaster was in error, according to the county court.

Members of the county court planned this morning to contact other budget committee members to get approval of the two revised budgets.

Additional action on the discharge of Sterling Fryrear, brand inspector for this area, is pending the outcome of a meeting between members of the Jackson County Stockmen's association and Guy Hughes, district supervisor for the brand inspection service, an association spokesman said today. Jim Miller, Medford, and Leon Offenbacher, Appleton, were appointed by the association directors to contact Hughes, a former deputy sheriff here, on the possibility of reinstating Fryrear. Fryrear had obtained about 400 signatures from stockmen on petitions urging him be rehired as brand inspector, a spokesman for the association said.

Air Force To Try To Hit Moon Soon

Milwaukee, Wis. (UPI)—Lt. Gen. S. E. Anderson, director of the Air Force Research and Development command, said today that the Air Force will try to hit the moon in three shots this year in August, September and October.

Anderson said a three-stage missile with the Thor as its basic component will be used for the shots. The goal will be to hit the moon, he said, and if the shots miss, to establish a long elliptical orbit around the moon. He said it would take about 2 1/2 days for the missile to travel from the earth to the moon.

He said he did not know if any public announcement would be made before the firings so that the public could watch the moon for a hit.

Also approved was obtaining federal pre-planning money for a new service kitchen at Fairview home.

Safety Committee Demands End To Political Parties

Action Threatens Precarious Truce

Paris (UPI)—The Super-committee of Public Safety in Algeria openly defied Gen. Charles de Gaulle today with a demand for an end to all political parties in France and a warning that the safety committee movement is going to be extended throughout the French mainland.

The move by the rebel generals and extremist European settlers in North Africa this morning threatened to tear apart the precarious truce that now exists between Paris and Algiers.

It was a direct challenge to De Gaulle's authority and showed that the Algerian dissidents were on the move again. It was a complete defiance of De Gaulle's request last week that the public safety committees refrain from political activity.

The Algiers committee also demanded that De Gaulle call off his plans for Algerian municipal elections within a month. The new Premier had promised these elections during his three-day visit to Algeria last week.

Meanwhile, De Gaulle met with his top advisors today to review France's foreign policy and to discuss possible high level meetings with world leaders.

Recreation Study Set by Groups

An on-site study of the possible future development of recreation facilities within the Talent project will be made June 26, according to members of the county court.

Making the study with the county court will be members of the state parks commission, the Portland Chamber of Commerce, forest service, bureau of land management, bureau of reclamation, the state game commission, and County Engineer Paul Rynning.

A discussion will be held on whether the state should take over development of recreation facilities of Howard Prairie, Hyatt and Emigrant lakes, or whether the county will be asked to assume responsibility.

According to present figures $150,000 is available in the total funds for construction of the Talent project for development of recreation facilities. This would mean the development of connecting roads, utilities and public recreation grounds. According to the present understanding the tentative proposal, the county court said, is for the federal government to provide the facilities and the county will supervise their operation and maintenance.

Public Hearing on Rezoning Continued By Medford Planners

A public hearing on zone changes in the Berrydale area was continued until the next meeting by the city planning commission last night.

Three other requests for zone changes were considered. One was approved and public hearings were scheduled for the others. Approved was a request for change of zone from class IB (single and two family) to class II (multiple family) on the north side of East Ninth st.

Set for public hearing were requests for zone changes from Class IA (single family) to Class IIIA (limited commercial) for property on Merriman rd. from Midway rd. to the north city limits, and for the corner of Cottage and East Main sts. The latter was at the request of the city council.

Zoning Explained Lloyd Anderson, bureau of municipal research, Eugene, explained zoning in the Berrydale area and added that the city tried to conform as closely as possible to the current zoning arrangement.

Also heard regarding the Berrydale area zoning was a request by Lloyd Neilson who owns two acres of land along North Pacific highway near Elk Lumber company. The zoning, as set up by the commission, cut his property in half, part for light industrial and part residential. He requested that it all be zoned light industrial. The commission set a public hearing on the request.

Also on the agenda were several subdivision plans submitted for tentative approval. The areas included the Crestbrook, D. L. Pickell, Springbrook and Rosedale subdivisions. A special hearing will be held for the Crestbrook subdivision. The Pickell subdivision plan was tentatively approved with the exception of 11 lots that joined the drainage canal and Juanipero ave.

Approved by the commission, with minor corrections, were the Bel Air Heights subdivision submitted by Archie Pierce and the Pioneer Subdivision extension No. 2.

It was suggested by Paul Selby, commission member, and approved by the group to meet with the city council and discuss mutual problems.

Oregon Moonwatch Team in Trouble

Portland (UPI)—Oregon's Moonwatch team may have to go out of business soon because of lack of funds, Robert Boardwell, its chief said today.

Boardwell said that so far the team had managed to get by on donations from interested persons and from limited financial success. Deficits have been made up from his salary as an art teacher at Clackamas high school.

Treasury of the Moonwatch team stood at $18 Monday and Boardwell said it would take $500 to carry the project through to the end of the International Geophysical Year in December. He said the team may have to disband in a matter of weeks, thus depriving the nation of its most westerly observation team.

Soviet Embassy Discounts Report In German Press

Helicopter Crew Still Being Held

Berlin (UPI)—East German Communists threatened today to try as spies nine American servicemen captured in an off-course helicopter. Soviet officials discounted the threat.

The official East German Defense Ministry newspaper Die Volksarmee said the U.S. helicopter flew over Communist Germany to spy, and "flying spies will be treated as such."

Story Not Official But officials at the Soviet Embassy in East Berlin said the newspaper story was "awkward" and not official.

"They insisted the East Germans had jurisdiction in the case, and not the Soviets, but they said it was hardly likely the captured Americans would be tried.

In Washington, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles today denounced the East German claims as kidnappers but said the U. S. might have to deal with them.

However, he said this would in no way imply recognition of the East German government.

Embarrassment Shown Russian officials at the East Berlin Embassy showed embarrassment at the East German newspaper report.

"The warmongers in Washington and Bonn should know that the German Democratic Republic (Communist regime)—which in their view does not exist—will not allow our border to be flown over rashly in order to carry out espionage," the newspaper said.

Macmillan Warns Against Tightening of U.S. Purse

Baltimore, Md. (UPI)—British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan warned today against Uncle Sam's tightening his purse strings too sharply in the economic cold war with Russia.

U. S. Chief Banker Russia's cold war economic offensive requires that the United States act as chief banker to the Free World, he said. Great Britain and Western Europe no longer have the money resources to be "the main props of world trade."

Macmillan, delivering the commencement address at Johns Hopkins University, compared the capitalistic system to a game. "If one player gets all the chips, the game comes to an end," Macmillan said. "Even from a narrow selfish point of view, creditor nations cannot afford to immobilize money."

Both Awarded Degrees Macmillan, accompanied by President Eisenhower, flew to the Johns Hopkins campus by helicopter directly from the White House lawn. Both were awarded honorary doctor of laws degrees. Eisenhower's brother, Dr. Milton Eisenhower, is president of the university.
