Easily-Made Dessert
New York — (UPI) — Strawberry sherbet is easily made at home with two packages of frozen sliced strawberries, 1/2 cup sugar, and 4 egg whites. Thaw the berries, and put them and their syrup through a sieve or food mill.

Beat egg whites until foamy gradually add sugar 1 tablespoon at a time, beating constantly until the mixture is stiff and glossy. Fold in strawberry mixture, turn into refrigerator trays and freeze until firm.

Miss Mary Pierce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Pierce, and a member of the 1958 graduating class of Medford High school, was honored at a graduation night party by her parents. The event was given at the family home on Pierce heights, and authentic Japanese suki yaki was served. The guests are seen gathered around the table in Japanese fashion, with the young people seated on the floor. Oriental screens, fans and lanterns decorated the dining room and the hostess and her assistant, Mrs. Mary Fujimoto, wore Japanese kimonos. Seated around the table (left to right) are Dennis Walker, Miss Cheryl Dunn, Robert Allen, Miss Claudia Hoover, Mrs. Fujimoto, James Platsch, Miss Pierce, Miss JoAnn Robertson, (with only her arm showing) Larry Albright, Johnny Pierce, Mrs. Pierce, Jerry Anderson, (arm only) and Miss Janet Bohl (back of head). Mrs. Fujimoto and Mrs. Pierce prepared the suki yaki at the tables, as do the Japanese, and the young people toasted the honor guest in a hot drink prepared to resemble the Japanese sake.

Sixty Per Cent of Students Entering College Graduate

New York — If you are planning to send a child through college, you must have asked yourself about his chances of receiving a degree.

His chances are better than fifty-fifty.

Studies by the U. S. Office of Education, cited by the Institute of Life Insurance, show that about 60 per cent of students who enter college will eventually graduate. Most of those who do graduate get their degree in four years from the college they entered originally.

It is possible for parents to help increase a child's chances of completing his college course? A clue to the answer can be found among the reasons students themselves give for leaving college.

The major cause of college failure centers about studies. "I found college work too difficult," many former students admitted. "I lacked interest in my studies," others said.

Or, as some put it, "I was dismissed for academic failure." Others dropped out after being placed on probation because of low grades.

Records Studied
The Office of Education went back to the high school records and found that a student who stands high in his high school class has a better chance of graduating from college than his classmate with poorer high school grades. Thus encouragement by parents while a youngster is still in the lower grades,

Food Faddism U. S. Affliction Doctor Declares

Sacramento, Calif. — (UPI) Are you a victim of "food faddism?"

Dr. Salvatore P. Lucia, chairman of the Department of Preventive Medicine at the University of California School of Medicine, says that 10 million Americans are.

"Food fads are potentially dangerous," Dr. Lucia said, "because they may lead to nutritional disturbances which pave the way to loss of energy and disease."

The doctor said that those most likely to become victims of "food faddism" are the overweight, chronically ill, psychoneurotics and persons who have vague signs of "real or feigned" illness.

He is opposed to the growing consumption of calorieless foods.

"We are the only country in the world fighting obesity—most others are fighting starvation," said Dr. Lucia. "We eat indiscriminately, often impelled by psychic disorders, and then buy medicines to decrease the appetite and take up the slack with bulky calorieless foods."

This doesn't save any problems.

Lucia suggested that all professional personnel connected with health education—including school teachers, social workers, nurses, dentists and pharmacists—get a sound training in the basic principles of human nutrition and dietetics.

This must be done, he said, in order to "eliminate the scourge of faddism."

Spring Graduates Face Headaches

By MARY PRIME
United Press International
New York — (UPI) — The spring crop of college graduates faces a better chance for success — but bigger headaches—than any other class.

So say leaders in education, business and religion.

We asked successful persons in various fields to pass on their advice to June graduates. Here's what one leader said:

Dr. Grayson Kirk, president of Columbia university — "Never was the need for intelligence and intellectual proficiency greater. But in no country today can either the individual or society solve the insistent problems simply by demonstrating affability or good intentions."

"Character is needed, for it is the foundation stone of a meaningful and successful life. But character is not enough. Our generation will meet its trials only if it is led by men and women who have brains as well as character."

Keith Funston, president of the New York Stock Exchange — "The responsibility for being economically alert is not confined to the breadwinner. Coeds, whose next job may involve running a home and raising a family, will have to deal with an array of problems that would have stunned your grandmothers."

"You will have to balance budgets, manage savings programs, and plan for the future. You will be expected to respond to the demands that your husband's work will place on you personally. This will mean recognizing the tensions of the modern business world and providing a strong family anchor for your husbands and families."

Chicken Stew Said Easy Company Dish

New York — (UPI) — Need an easy dish for company? Chicken stew does the trick.

Simmer broilers or fryers in salted water until the meat falls free of the bones. Remove any broth. Discard bones and skin. To save time, add vegetables already prepared and ready to cook (canned or frozen). Whole kernel corn, okra, tomatoes and lima beans are good. Add freshly chopped onion, a dash of tabasco sauce, pepper, and thyme. Simmer about 1 hour, stirring occasionally. Combine butter with flour for thickening. Stir into liquid and stir constantly until liquid is uniformly thickened. Simmer about 10 min.

Mrs. Mary Fujimoto assisted Mrs. A. C. Pierce, in preparing Japanese suki yaki for a party which the Pierces gave for their daughter Mary, following graduation ceremonies for the 1958 class. Mrs. Fujimoto wears the colorful kimono and clogs of her country, and holds a tray of Japanese sweets which were served for dessert. The suki yaki is cooked at the table from food prepared in small, easily handled portions.

After that, chances of attaining a degree brighten considerably. This would seem to indicate that it is worth a special effort not only to put a promising youngster through his freshman year, but also to encourage him to make that year a success. Statistically at least, it will give him a good start in more ways than one.

utes. Add chopped green pepper and other seasoning if desired. Serve hot with buttered rolls.
